Sparks Fly Among Reagan, Dutton, Simon

The Republican governor walked quickly around a table moments after the regents adjourned their session yesterday and shook his finger at regent Frederick G. Dutton of Sausalito, a longtime Democrat and critic of the governor.

"You are trying to use this board for politics," Reagan shouted at Dutton, who managed Gov. Edmund G. Brown's unsuccessful campaign against Reagan in 1966.

"But you've been doing it, governor," said Dutton and fellow regent Norton Simon, almost in unison.

"You are a lying son of a bitch," Reagan said, looking toward Dutton as dozens of spectators and regents gathered around.

Reagan refused to apologize for his remark and repeated his charges that Dutton and Simon were "outright liars" in a televised news conference a few minutes later.

The governor also accused the two men of "cheap politics" and "total dishonesty."

Simon, a multi-millionaire industrialist from Southern California and recent unsuccessful candidate for the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate, said of Reagan: "He lost his temper."

Simon also apparently called for the defeat of Reagan, George Murphy, who beat Simon in the primay, and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Rafferty.

"I have supported many Republicans and, in this present election, I am supporting many Republicans. But I think it is really about time to see the colors of Reagan, Rafferty and Murphy.

William French Smith, chairman of the regents and Reagan's personal attorney, later told reporters: "You are bound to have flareups like this. In the long term, I don't think it's a bad thing."

What triggered the shouting match between the governor and the two regents was decision of the board to postpone until next month a discussion of a controversy in which regents are being asked to approve enlargement of a planned city near the Irvine campus of the state university system.

Simon claimed the regents irresponsibly planned to take action that would enrich the Irvine Company, owner of the land, by tens of millions of dollars.

After the regents vote on the matter, Dutton said the delay would smother discussion "until after the (Nov. 3) election so nobody is embarrassed." Reagan is up for reelection this year against State Assemblyman Jess Unruh.

Simon noted that a past president of the Irvine Company, Charles Thomas, is a finance chairman for Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., who is seeking re-election this year.

Immediately after the meeting adjourned, Reagan walked quickly to Dutton's side and the heated argument erupted.

Ingredients of the Irvine controversy have been before the regents for a decade. In recent months, Simon began making public charges by stating some regents were being caught "with their hands in the cookie jar."

Diplomats' Fate Unknown; Quebec Is Under Dragnet

Trudeau Says Terrorists Are Directly Responsible

MONTREAL (UPI) — Police dragnet squads swept through Quebec today in the federal government's intensified effort to crush the terrorist FLQ and locate the kidnappers holding two high-ranking officials.

There was no word on the fate of British diplomat James R. Cross, kidnapped 13 days ago, or Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, abducted at gunpoint one week ago. The shaken government of Pierre Trudeau clung to hopes both still were alive.

Trudeau, who invoked emergency war powers yesterday and outlawed the separatist FLQ, placed the responsibility squarely on the terrorists for the safety of Cross and LaPorte.

"The guns pointed at their heads," he dramatically told the nation on television Friday night, "have FLQ fingers on the triggers."

A Quebec government official said yesterday "there is every reason to believe Mr. LaPorte is still alive." No one speculated about Cross.

The kidnappings have plunged the government deep into crisis. Trudeau mobilized 4,000 federal troops to aid Quebec's 9,000 police officials in the crackdown on FLQ leaders and sympathizers. Dragnets yesterday netted 270 persons in 158 raids.

His suspension of certain civil liberties, especially in arrest situations, drew fire from opposition leaders in Ottawa. One likened it to "trying to crush a peanut with a sledgehammer."

In the raids, said Inspector J.R. Melancon of the Quebec Provincial police, "large quantities of firearms — guns, pistols, bayonets and knives" — were seized.

Trudeau, his face drawn and grim, declined again Friday night to beet the kidnapper's demands for release of 23 political prisoners, safe passage out of the country and $500,000 gold bullion ransom.

"Should the government give in to this crude blackmail," he said, shifting uncomfortably in his chair, "we could be facing the breakdown of the legal system and its replacement by the law of the jungle."

He said to agree to the demands — the government has offered to seek parole for five of the political prisoners and guarantee all safe passage from Canada — would be "an invitation to terrorism and kidnaping across the country."

Trudeau said he based his invoking the extraordinary powers on communiques from various governmental officials in the province. One letter, from Montreal Police Director M. St. Aubin, had a paragraph that said:

"The slowness of procedures and the constraints which result from legal mechanisms and methods to which we are currently subjected, do not permit us to deal with the situation."

This is what Trudeau's detractors hinted at in lengthy House of Commons debate yesterday — that it was precisely

Two More Women On Top 10 List

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI today added two more women to its list of 10 most wanted fugitives. Both have been charged with the murder of a Boston police officer following a bank robbery.

The women, Susan Edith Saxe and Katherine Ann Power, are former students at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., and "reputed members of a radical, revolutionary group dedicated to attacking the United States Military system and undermining police powers," the FBI said.

Earlier this week, the FBI placed Bernardine Dohrn, alleged leader of the militant Weatherman faction of Students for a Democratic Society, on the most wanted list after capturing Angela Davis in New York.

Sixteen persons are now are on the fugitive list, although the FBI continues to call the operation its "Ten Most Wanted" program.

Miss Saxe and Miss Power allegedly joined three Massachusetts parolees in the $26,000 robbery last Sept. 23 of the State Street Bank and Trust Co. of Boston. A police officer was shot and killed outside the bank shortly after the robbers fled, the FBI said.

Miss Saxe graduated magna cum laude from Brandeis last

Romanian President Grants Visa To Marinite's Mother

A Romanian refugee — unsuccessful for three years in attempts to obtain his mother, still in that Communist country, a visitor's visa — made an impassioned appeal to the Romanion president today while the leader toured Muir Woods National Monument.

The plea apparently worked. President Nicolae Ceausescu told 44-year-old Michael Marville of Corte Madera, who escaped from Romania in 1958, that he would see that his mother obtained a visa.

"All right, you don't have to worry," Marville quoted Ceausescu as saying.

Ceausescu granted Marville's request as the head of state, accompanied by a large staff, members of the press and Secret Service agents, as he toured Muir Woods.

The entourage arrived at the park at about 10 a.m. The group proceeded to a grove of huge redwoods, where Marville made his plea.

Marville's appeal was enabled as a result of a telephone call he made yesterday to Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, after learning Ceausescu was in the Bay Area. Bagley telephoned the Independent-Journal, which arranged for Marville to accompany a reporter and photographer to Muir Woods.

"Sir, can I ask for a humanitarian favor?" Marville asked in Romanian as he handed the president a park souvenier.

"Would you let my mother come out of Romania to any country in Europe or the United States for a short visit. It has been 14 years since I have seen her."

As Secret Service agents stood aghast, the president referred Marville's request to one of his many aides.

"Will you help this man?" the president was asked by the Independent-Journal. The president who does not speak English didn't answer after an intrepreter posed the question.

Instead, he and the others began their trek back to waiting cars.

Presidential aides rushed to Marville's side, asking him

Egypt Installs Sadat; Pledges To Protect 'Territorial' Rights

CAIRO (UPI)—Anwar Sadat, the man picked by Gamal Abdel Nasser to be his successor, was sworn in as president of Egypt today with a pledge to protect the "territorial integrity of the fatherland."

Sadat said earlier he would press on with Nasser's efforts to recover territory lost by Egypt in the 1967 war with Israel.

Sadat, 51, was nominated for the presidency four days after Nasser died on Sept. 27. A national referendum Friday ratified that nomination and Sadat took the oath of office today at a special session of the National Assembly.

"I swear by almighty God to uphold the Republican system loyally, to respect the constitution and law, to look after the interests of the people fully and to preserve the independence and territorial integrity of the fatherland," Sadat said.

At the United Nations, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad Friday accused the United States and Israel of undercutting the American peace initiative in the Middle East. U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost replied, "over the past several weeks my government has been making every effort to create a situation wherein these talks could resume and the danger of a breakdown in the cease-fire would be avoided."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah said Riad's U.N. speech was "a message of hostility and abuse, a message arguing continued conflict and unhappiness."

The only optimistic note came from Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban. Returning to Tel Aviv from the United States, he said Israel would not resume shooting after the cease-fire ends Nov. 5 and "those who have some knowledge of what is happening on the other side do not at all assume that the cease-fire will expire" on that date.

Tribunal Ends Road Dispute In Marincello

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court has thrown up a roadblock ending a three-year battle to force a public referendum over a road into the controversial Marincello planned community in Southern Marin.

Monday, the court dismissed an appeal by Marin rancher George W. Wheelwright and others against lower courts' refusal to order the referendum. The order simply stated, "The appeal is dismissed for want of jurisdiction."

The whole controversy may be moot. In 1965, developer Thomas Frouge and landowner Gulf Oil Co. won county approval of a planned community development for Marincello Since then, the only work done was the erection of two stucco gates and the grading — but not paving — of the embattled road rising over the hill from Tennessee Valley.

Frouge died in January 1969. Gulf has since said that it may develop other plans for the 2,138-acre site, which Frouge had envisioned as a new community of 20,000 persons.

Early in 1967, Wheelwright and other Marincello opponents submitted a petition bearing nearly 7,000 signatures to force a referendum on the county ordinance enabling the Marincello access road. County Clerk George H. Gonss ruled the petition lacked enough vaid signatures.

Superior Court Judge Joseph H. Wilson upheld Gnoss; the state District Court of Appeal

Nixon Hits Campaign Trail; Optimistic Vietnam Picture

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI)—President Nixon declared today the Vietnam War is drawing to an end in a way which he hoped would asure a full generation of peace.

"As I stand before you today I can say confidently that the war in iVetnam is coming to an end and we are going to win a just peace in Vietnam," the President told an airport political rally over the angry "stop the war" shouts of opponents of the war. It was the President's first stop of a 3,000 mile, one-day political swing in four battleground states—Vermont, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Nixon said that if the enemy does not agree to his cease-fire proposal the war will be brought to an end by continued withdrawing of U.S. troops and allowing Vietnam to choose a new government. But however it ends, he said, "what we want to do is end the war so that the young people shouting inside 'stop the war' will have a generation of peace."

"I know there are people who say, why not end the war now. I could have ended the war the day I took office," he said.

Nixon said he was looking "not just for peace in the next election but peace for the next generaton so that the sons and brothers of the men who are fighting now won't have to fight in some other Vietnam in the future."

Nixon urged the voters to answer those who are committing violence in the United States with their votes in the Nov. 3 election.

"Don't answer them with violence but answer them in the powerful way Americans have always answered. Speak up with your votes on Nov. 3," he said.

Speaking in an airplane hangar in bone-chilling, 30-degree temperature, Nixon reasured Vermonters that he was taking all steps necessary to avert a fuel crisis this winter in New England.

"I want to say that despite all discusions and despite all the alarm, there is now no fuel crisis," Nixon said in remarks prepared for delivery at the airport rally. "And we are taking all necessary steps to insure that Vermont and New England have adequate supplies of fuel this winter."

A crowd of about 2,000 people, bundled in overcoats and carrying banners supporting state Republican candidates, waited for Nixon in the hangar and were entertained by a hard rock combo "The Canadian Goose." Outside, about 200 college students—closely watched by police armed with riot batons—otod on the wind-swept arpon of the runway chanting "power to the people."

Nixon, in his statement, firmly endorsed Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., and Gov. Deane C. Davis, a Republican seeking a second term. He described Prouty as "a man of thoughtful good sense and a real voice of Vermont" who "understands what it takes to achieve our goal in the world of a full generation of peace."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Greatest Threat

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —The greatest threat to America is not terrorists but "vigilante tactics" to which citizens may resort to protect themselves, U.S. Attorney General John N. Mitchell said Friday.

Mitchell, here for dedication of a new Indiana University law school building, told a news conference that he does not regard radical bombings and violence as a major threat to society.

Jury Clears Audie

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Actor-war hero Audie Murphy had claimed that if he had fired a shot at a Burbank, Calif., dog trainer during an altercation last May 18, he wouldn't have missed.

A superior court jury believed him and acquitted the Medal of Honor winner Friday, after four hours of deliberation.

Murphy was charged with battery and assault with intent to commit murder following a brawl with dog trainer David Gofstein over a fee charged Murphy's girlfriend.

HONG KONG (UPI)—Typhoon Joan waned to a tropical storm today after killing more than 300 persons and causing an estimated $50 million damage in the Philippines, the Hong Kong Observatory said.

14 Die In Train

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI)—An excursion train carrying about 600 high school pupils collided head-on with a freight train in a tunnel 55 miles south of Seoul today, and casualties were heavy.

Police said 14 persons were killed and 59 others injured. The dead included 10 children, two teachers and two other passengers aboard the excursion train. Fifty-nine boys were hurt, 41 of them seriously.

To Begin Rehearsals

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Orchestra's 104 musicians will resume rehearsals Monday following a 41-day strike.

Election Scheduled

ATHENS (UPI)—The Greek government has announced the first elections since it seized power in 1967, but it appeared only about 10,000 of the country's nine million population would be voting.

Details of the election, which the government called a step toward democracy, were spelled out in a decree published Friday.

Reagan Hit With Order

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) —A superior court judge has ordered Gov. Ronald Reagan to refrain from making alleged false statements about a Democratic state senator running for re-election.

Judge P. R. Borton Friday issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting Reagan and others from circulating campaign statements concerning Sen. Walter Stiern of Bakersfield.

The complaint listed the defendants as Reagan, the public relations firm of Spencer Roberts and Associates, Stiern's GOP opponent Bill Parks, and 16 San Joaquin valley broadcasting stations.

The complaint quotes Reagan as saying during an Oct. 2 speech that in 1968 Stiern "voted to kill a bill censoring University of California officials following the appointment of Eldridge Cleaver as a lecturer at Berkeley and then changed his vote when he heard 'the angry voice of the people'."

Isla Vista Report Calls For Channeling Funds Into Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Officials generally agree with the report of a commission which investigated the causes of unrest in the student community of Isla Vista adjacent to the University of California at Santa Barbara. (See another story, page 1.)

But some of them wonder whether the university, the Legislature and the County of Santa Barbara will come up with the money needed to solve Isla Vista's problems and prevent renewed violence.

The 102-page report by the seven-man blue-ribbon commission was presented to the Board of Regents Friday. Is said Isla Vista had been allowed to develop into an isolated no-man's land.

Radicals students, greedy landlords, poor university administration and poor governing by the county all were blamed for the troubles, aggravated by the fact that Isla Vista experienced an explosive population growth of 1,800 to 13,000 residents in a decade.

Isla Vista needs a more diversified population and a variety of better municipal services, including street lights, transportation, recreational facilities, health clinics and weed control, the report said.

Gov. Ronald Reagan agreed that more adults should live in Isla Vista, saying it was "unnatural to have a Peter Pan existence" with only students of the same age living together.

The governor also agreed with a recommendation that the university should involve itself in student housing problems. He said it was "necessary" that the university "put itself between the students and the landlords, taking complaints both ways."

George Clyde, chairman of the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors, said enrollment on the campus should not be allowed to grow because there are insufficient service to handle even those already enrolled.

Clyde admitted that "mistakes were made in instigating a widespread curfew" after one of the riots. He said police would issue citations in the future and that a foot patrol suggested in the report would go into effect next month.

Regent Norton Simon said that the regents have known of the problems for a long time, but chose to ignore them. He said the board must take part of the blame for poor conditions because "unless we sincerely mean and feel that, our problems are not going to be solved."

But Tom Tosdall, UC Santa Barbara student body president, expressed the fear that the report would follow many of its predecessors into the waste basket.

Tosdall and some of the regents questioned whether government and university officials would be willing to meet the "price tag" of the recommendations in the report.

UC President Charles J. Hitch praised the report as "an excellent piece of work accomplished under extremely difficult conditions.

"The basic thrust of the report clearly seeks to involve the university much more heavily in the life of Isla Vista and, by extention, in student communities of other campuses as well . . ."

The report said hostility between students and police was "remarkably intense" and recommended formation of a "community force, volunteer or paid, charged with providing policing services that do not involve apprehension of individuals for serious crimes and other activities normally carried out by trained armed officers."

The report also recommended that the university draw up a standard lease form in an attempt to reduce conflicts between students and landlords and also urged the university to develop its own housing.

The commission was headed by Martin A. Trow, a sociologist from the Berkeley campus, and included other professors, attorneys and government officials.

Report Says U.S. Economy Should Be On Upturn Soon

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (UPI) — The U.S. economy has "passed its low point" and should show steady improvement next year, but unemployment will continue relatively high, a report to the Business Council said today.

The report by the Council's economic consultants predicted unemployment would average about 5 per cent next year, down only a little from the current level of 5.5 per cent, the highest mark in almost seven years.

The two-page summary of the report handed to newsmen is about as close to an official council position as the organization of highly independent corporate executives ever gets.

The Nixon administration has been working hard during the Council's weekend meetings to head off a gloomy report that might have heightened fears about the state of the economy.

One administration official conceded the businessmen were less optimistic than were governent officials.

President Nixon invited leaders of the Council to the White House for a Sunday chat about the economy following conclusion of the organization's semiannual meeting.

"The economy has passed its low point, and the outlook is for continued improvement through 1971 despite the impact of the current strike against General Motors," the report said.

The consultants predicted a Gross National Product—the total value of the nation's output of goods and services—would exceed $1 trillion next year.

Capitol Security Is Tightened

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The recent bombings and bomb threats throughout the nation have prompted the state police to tighten security at the capitol.

State General Services Director Charles A. Dixon Friday disclosed that increased security measures have been taken but declined to outline specific action.

"We are doing what we can," he said.

Episcopalians Hear Worst: Budget Crisis

HOUSTON (UPI)—Episcopalians agreed Friday to expand a controversial funding program for black militants and others, but the church's national budget is in its worst crisis since the depression.

At a lengthy program and budget hearing Friday night, speaker after speaker complained of lack of money for ongoing and proposed programs of the 3.5 million-member church.

The church's general convention in 1967 projected the 1970 national budget should be $15.7 million. But the actual quota for 1970 was $14.7 million.

The church's 90 dioceses pledged $11.2 million for this year, missing the mark by $3.5 million, or almost one fourth. The gap in New York City and Long Island alone totaled $800,000.

Forty-six dioceses refused to pledge their quota, and one, the Diocese of New Mexico and Southwest Texas, pledged only a dollar.

The General Convention Special Program (GCSP)—the funding project the church voted to expand Friday — provoked the diocese's cutback by granting $40,000 in 1969 to Alianza, the military Mexican-American group based in New Mexico.

"This church right now is tired, frightened and with very little money and leadership," Bill Coats of La Jolla, Calif., student chaplain at the University of San Diego, told the budget hearing.

$2.8 Million Value Put On Ike's Estate

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—The late President Dwight D. Eisenhower left an estate valued by his executors at $2,870,004.

The executors disclosed the accounting Friday when they filed Eisenhower's Pennsylvania inheritance tax returns with a county register of wills.

Eisenhower, who died March 8, 1969, owned a farm home on the outskirts of this historic borough and maintained an office at Gettysburg College.

The late President's tangible personal property included cattle, farm machinery and equipment, household and office furniture and historical memorabilia valued at $211,894. Intangible personal property, bank accounts, securities, and notes, were valued at $261,793.

Royalties earned on books and publications under an agreement with Doubleday & Co., were valued at $519,434. assets worth $1,547,809, are held in trust by the Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Co., of Baltimore, Md., and Eisenhower's son, John Eisenhower, ambassador to Belgium.

The accounting listed the interest in the Gettysburg farm property which President and Mrs. Eisenhower gave to the federal government in 1967 to be used as a national historic site. His share of the gift was valued at $329,074 at the time of his death. Mrs. Eisenhower still lives at the farmhouse.

Under the terms of his will, executed May 25, 1965, Eisenhower made certain monetary bequests to persons who served with him for years. He bequeathed his papers and documentary material to the federal government for deposit in the Eisenhower Presidential Library at Abilene, Kan., his boyhood home.

He bequeathed his office furniture, medals, flags and military equipment to the Eisenhower Foundation, also at Abilene. The foundation subsequently transferred the items in that bequest for deposit in the presidential library.

Arrests In Kent Probe Due Monday

RAVENNA, Ohio (UPI)—Twenty-five persons identified only as students and "agitators" were to be arrested Monday on indictments from a sepcial grand jury, which exonerated National Guardsmen and blamed Kent State University administrators for violence on the campus last May.

The grand jury, releasing the indictments Friday, contradicted the president's Commission on Campus Unrest which said it was "unnecessary, unwarranted and inexcusable" for National Guardsmen to fire into a crowd of demonstrators last May 4, killing four students and wounding nine others.

The names on the indictments and the charges were to be kept secret until the arrests were made. First reports said the suspects would be arrested during the weekend.

Bomb Threat Clears School

A telephoned bomb threat that came from within the school cleared San Rafael High School for about 10 minutes yesterday.

Police said a boy called the principal's office from the east wing of the main building at about 10:25 a.m. and claimed there was a bomb in a locker.

For most students the time off from classes while police searched for threatened explosive was "quite a lark", according to a teacher.

The call was traced by the telephone company after an operator held the line open, police said.

Safety Building At Fairfax Pavilion Out

A proposal that a Fairfax public safety building be located in the city park on the site of the Fairfax Pavilion has been rejected by the city planning commission.

The commission reaffirmed its site recommendations for the building at a meeting Thursday, commission secretary Ernestine Healy reported.

Along with the park proposal, the commision rejected for the second time a suggestion that the building be constructed on the site of the old Buon Gusto restaurant on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Mrs. Healy said the Buon Gusto property was rejected because commissioners felt the price of the land would be too high.

The commission voted to notify the city council again that it feels the proposed building should be located either on Bolinas Road across from the city park, on Park Road at the present site of the police and fire stations or on property adjacent to Central School on Broadway.

The commission also approved a minor revision of a proposed sign ordinance and continued its discussion of the proposed zoning ordinance.

The meeting was adjourned to a zoning ordinance study session next Thursday.

20-Day Cal-Expo, Fair Shows Net Of $312,000

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A profit of $312,012 was netted this year during the 20-day California Exposition and Fair, Gen. Mgr. Thomas E. Bair reported yesterday.

The total was $64,000 higher than the figure for 1969. Bair said revenues totaled $1,949,918, up $158,000 from last year, while expenditures were $1,637,906.

Horseracing brought in the most revenue with $864,030. Bair said tris was followed by admissions, $563,321; carnival, $230,000; concessions and commercial exhibits, $197,486; parking, $77,458; and miscellaneous, $17,623.

Horseracing had a parimutuel handle of $8,393,513, up $600,000 this year. The daily average was about $600,000.

The general manager said racing license fees to the state rose by $30,000 to $419,676.

Bair said the fair attracted 942,691 persons for a record total. The number was 95,265 higher than last year's show.

"The increase in attendance reflects the fair's steady growth at the Cal Expo site," Bair said. "It was certainly the most successful one we have had.

The general manager said he was particularly pleased with the horseracing figures because the wagering was overlapped by the Tanforan meet at Bay Meadows.

More Funds Needed For Decorations

The Christmas Decoration Committee of the Novato Chamber of Commerce needs more funds to install holiday ornaments this year, committee chairman Richard Gronberg has reported to the chamber board.

The committee has collected only $1,800 out of a goal of $5,600, Gronberg told the board Thursday. He urged merchants other than those on Grant Avenue to help with the decorations, secretary Billie Garl reported.

The board accepted the resignation of Paul Terry as director because of business commitments. George Barnwell resigned as chairman of the economic development committee and Iver Sues was named to succeed him.

The board went on record as favoring use of Hamilton Air Force Base by Golden Pacific Airlines, which has applied for use of the base runway.

The board voted to support on the Nov. 3 ballot Measures B, the College of Marin override tax; C, the college's $17 million bond issue, and D, the $3.25 million street bond issue for Novato.

$168,000 Tag On Additional Land To Beach

Marin County can add 31 acres to the county park at McNears Beach at a cost of $168,000, Pierce W. Joske, parks and recreation director, reported yesterday.

Joske said owners of waterfront property to the north of the present 24-acre McNears Beach have offered to sell to the county.

The 31 additional acres, which would extend the county beach to China Camp property, is owned jointly by Donald C. Titus of Sausalito and Linda Graham of Peacock Gap.

Titus's half interest was purchased by the county for $80,000. Miss Graham, through her attorney, is now willing to sell her half interest for $88,000, said Joske.

He will recommend to the board of supervisors Tuesday that the county purchase the additional land. Of the 31 acres, 26 are offshore.

LARKSPUR'S PITCH

Ferry Terminal Plan On Monday

The City of Larkspur's bid to get the Golden Gate Bridge District's main ferry terminal will be unveiled on Monday before district directors at 9:30 a.m. in toll plaza offices.

The fight over the rich plum has been brewing between the city and the Town of Corte Madera since August, when the town disclosed plans for putting the terminal on its shoreline south of the mouth of the Corte Madera Creek.

Larkspur City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst promised then that a plan would be drafted to show the advantages of putting the terminal on the city's shoreline north of the creek mouth.

But nothing more was heard about a Larkspur terminal until yesterday, when Mill Valley architect and planner Norman T. Gilroy announced that agreements had been signed by private property owners to develop the 82-acrea quarry property on Larkspur's waterfront.

Gilroy said the agreements had been signed between the owner of the quarry, the Hutchinson Co., and TI Properties Corp. of Los Angeles, owner of adjacent lands. Gilroy said his firm had been hired at midweek to prepare the plan, and that at least a "concept" would be ready in time for Monday's meeting of the district's joint transportation and finance-auditing committee.

He said his work still was too incomplete to provide details of the plan, but that it would include a "central bus terminal and other related public and commercial facilities to serve Central and Northern Marin County."

He said the dollar value of the development still was unknown, but that it would be a "staged" development over seven to 14 years, eventually replacing the existing quarry operation that has been there since 1924.

Gilroy said TI Properties had set up a Northern California negotiating agent for such projects, Centrum West of San Francisco.

The acreage includes the quarry and 25 acres already diked and filled between East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and the barge landing on the creek.

Bathurst said the city's position would be presented Monday by Mayor Benton A. Sifford. He said that he and the mayor would draft the position over the weekend.

The city staff, Bathurst said, "has reviewed the potential financing and general site locations, and the city will be prepared to make comments on the plan at Monday's meeting." He said that he learned of the agreements on Wednesday.

Bathurst said the project also included "a parking complex in the general area, together with possibilities of shops adjacent and further development in the upper area north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard." He said there was "considerable open space contemplated," including a "marina concept."

He said the advantage of the city's site was that it was accessible from population centers in Ross Valley without using "an already crowded freeway." The Corte Madera site would depend on freeway access.

The bridge district's consulting naval architect, Philip F. Spaulding of Seattle, has said that the Larkspur site "appears to have some advantage over the Corte Madera site," but added that "the final decision might ultimately be based on the merits of the development plans for each site."

Spaulding said in August that the Larkspur site was on existing filled land, while the Corte Madera site would require extensive filling — and therefore approval from the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Spaulding's water transit plan called for a $14 million system. It would include five 636-passenger vessels for peak-hour service each 12 minutes between Central Marin and San Francisco.

He estimated that the system would attract 5,500 passengers a day, and cut by about 3,500 the number of vehicles crossing the congested bridge eacn day.

There are an estimated 45,585,435 students in the nation's public elementary and secondary schools.

Bloomfield Land Sale Is Delayed

The Shoreline Unified School District board has delayed indefinitely the sale of 2.3 acres in Bloomfield because of uncertainty on the status of the property.

The board had decided to sell the property, adjacent to the old Bloomfield School, at its Oct. 1 meeting and the Bloomfield Community Club had asked to purchase the land for a park, but trustees tabled the plans Thursday night, according to Supt. Charles A. McCully.

Board member Roy A. Parks explained the board wanted more information on the property because it was unaware whether the previous trustees had made any commitments.

In other business, the board heard the district will be reimbursed 57 per cent of the $27,678 cost of a new bus by the state, and N. Louise Passalacqua was named trustee representative to the County Committee on School District Organization, with Robert Gallagher as alternate.

The board also voted for David Ring of the Tamalpais High School District board as representative to the California School Boards Association.

San Pablo Bay Refuge Is Approved

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 12,000-acre San Pablo Bay National Wildlife Refuge has received formal approval from the National Migratory Bird Conservation Commission.

The land runs from Mare Island Naval Shipyard in Solano County westward to Tubbs Island in Sonoma County.

The refuge, which contains some of the best waterfowl habitat in the North Bay, had been in the planning and development stages for the past year. Its formal approval had been delayed for several months until land title claims were checked and cleared.

Key to the refuge was the purchase of Tubbs Island last year by the Nature Conservancy, which effectively cut off much of the remaining area from feasible development. Since then, negotiations with neighboring land owners made commission approval possible.

Total cost of the site was not available.

Government Readies Contempt Citations

Bay Area truckers played hide-and-seek with pickets in San Rafael yesterday as government attorneys in San Francisco prepared contempt citations gainst two, and possibly three, labor unions.

Walter Kintz, supervising attorney for the National Labor Relations Board in San Francisco, said the NLRB was preparing to seek citations against San Francisco Typographical Union 21, Teamsters Union Local 85 of San Francisco and possibly Teamsters Local 70 of Oakland for violations of two court orders.

U. S. marshals, for the second day in a row yesterday, roamed Marin, serving pickets with papers ordering them to cease picketing.

Kintz said the contempt citations would be sought against the unions for violation of a restraining order issued in February against attempted union stoppage of newsprint bound for the Independent-Journal and a temporary injunction issued in April against illegal picketing of I-J advertisers. Both orders were issued in U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

Pickets at several stores — carrying signs saying they represented the Seafarers' and International Longshoremen's and Teamster's unions — and carloads of men identifying themselves as Teamsters were said by truck companies to have threatened drivers in Central Marin again yesterday.

Most companies were again trying to make Marin deliveries and many drivers — taking back roads and side streets — were getting their deliveries through.

Delta Lines of San Francisco, which had tires on trucks slashed Monday and Tuesday in San Rafael and Corte Madera, said its three trucks made most of their deliveries yesterday.

"At a couple of stores the goons showed up," a spokesman said, and store owners told the drivers not to endanger themselves and to try to make the deliveries some other time.

Three trucks of California Motor Express of San Francisco also made most of their deliveries. A Willig Freight Line truck from Berkeley came into Marin about 10 a.m. and made some deliveries before it "got run out" about 1 p.m., a spokesman said.

Michael McMahon, terminal manager for Alltrans Express of California, said one of his company's trucks out of San Francisco made five of 20 Central Marin deliveries before being "intimidated" by pickets at the Singer Sewing Center, 1235 Fourth Street, San Rafael. McMahon said pickets threatened to slash the tires of the truck if the driver didn't get out of San Rafael.

Most supermarkets received all their deliveries yesterday, in some cases in spite of pickets.

The Safeway store on B Street in San Rafael had its deliveries before pickets showed up in the afternoon. The Lucky store in Fairfax received its goods when pickets left after being served injunction notices by U.S. marshals.

The manager of the Cala Foods store at the Corte Madera Shopping Center said all deliveries to his store had been thwarted during the day, but that produce and one brand of bread finally got into the store in the late afternoon.

Extradition Of Morais Turned Down

Minnesota Gov. Harold LeVander has refused to extradite Forrest Jerrold Morais, 34, former captain of Nor-Cal Security guards employed at the Independent-Journal and wanted in Marin for grand theft.

Marin Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas said yesterday that LeVander had written to California officials that there "seemed to be a dispute of a civil nature" between Morais and his former boss.

LeVander said an extradition hearing had been held and the matter "thoroughly investigated." The governor concluded that until the civil dispute between Morais and Robert Borissof, owner of Nor-Cal Guards, was resolved, he would not send Morais to California.

Morais was arrested in Minneapolis in August on a warrant issued by Marin officials when Morias and money belonging to Nor-Cal disappeared in March.

He was charged with embezzling $1,431 by allegedly keeping a check which had been given him to pay a bill for uniforms.

LeVander's decision against granting extradition also left in doubt Morais's pending trial in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of battery against an I-J picket.

Terra Linda defeated Novato, 7-0. (See Sports for game details.

Mill Valley Middle School Pact Signed

The Mill Valley School District board, at a special meeting last night, signed a $2,592,000 contract for construction of a middle school at Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue.

Carroll Killingsworth, director of administrative services, said the Dickman Construction Co. of Mountain View would begin construction next week.

He said that if additional district funds are not appropriated within the next few months, installation of showers and lockers in the gymnasium would be postponed.

The board discussed the possibility of selling property purchased in 1958 as a possible school site to raise the funds.

Sale of the Alice Eastwood School site, which has never been developed, would bring approximately $50,000, Killiingsworth said.

No completion date for the middle school has been set, Killingsworth said, but the school is planned to open in the fall of 1971 and accomodate 1,200 sixth, seventh and eighth graders.

The board also agreed to cooperate with the Marin County Health Department's anti-Rubella campaign, but not during school hours; endorsed Tamalpais High School District's opposition to a state requirement that unification elections be held every four years, and met in closed session to instruct its negotiating team on contract discussions with employees.

said Wilson erred. and the county and Marincello interests took it to the state supreme court.

That court ruled for the county and Marincello, against Wheelwright. But, according to attorney Douglas P. Ferguson, precedent was set because the decision also said that the original issue of the road ordinance was a proper subject for a referendum.

The anti-Marincello faction then carried its battle to the U.S. Supreme Court directly — where it was dismissed this week.

Still wending its way through state appelllate courts is a City of Sausalito challenge against the procedure for adopting the planned community ordinance.

THE BUFFALO IS COMING!

The Original Galaxie Ruined By Explosions

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI)—The original C5A Galaxy, world's largest aircraft, expoded on the flight line at the Lockheed-Georgia Co. plant early today, killing one worker and injuring another.

A rapid-fire series of explosions rocked this Atlanta suburb about 1:20 a. m., split the fusilage on the giant plane and sent "Lockheed No. 1" crumpling to the concrete runway apron like a great wounded silver whale.

The plane was valued by Lockheed at about $23 million, although it was brought out during congressional hearings on the controversial plane that each of the C5's was costing about $50 million. A company spokesman said the $50 million figure included crew training and engineering development costs, spare parts, repair manuals and other such items. Were the company to build a commercial version of the plane, the spokesman said, it would sell for about $23 million.

questions in Romanian. During the 10-minute walk back to the park entrance, there was a constant stream of chatter between the men. The president and his wife walked ahead, admiring the redwood trees.

However, in an unexpected move as the presidential party was about to leave the park, Ceausescu got out of his black limousine and approached Marville, then speaking with newsmen.

The two men exchanged what appeared to be warm comments for about five minutes and then the president re-entered his waiting car and left the park for a tour of Tiburon.

Marville said later the president had told him the request would be granted.

"For three years my mother has been trying to get a travel visa from Romania," Marville told the Independent-Journal. "But they will not grant it to her."

Marville, who said he escaped Romania in 1958 to live in America, said Ceausescu "asked me why I don't come to Romania and visit her. I told him I would be happy to if I received an official invitation and after my mother is allowed to visit me.

"The president told me I could come to Romania and nothing would happen to me," said Marville, a civil engineer. "I told him it was very difficult for me to get time off from work for such a vacation."

Marville said the president told a man (later identified as the president of Romania's passport commission) to give his mother a visa for as long as she wants — "two weeks or two years."

After that, Ceausescu entered his car and the entourage drove off.

Federal warrants issued in Boston on Sept. 24 charged both women with unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for murder.

The FBI said they also were charged in federal warrants issued the next day with theft of government property from a National Guard armory at Newburyport, Mass., on Sept. 20.

Still other warrants issued in Philadelphia charge them with the Sept. 1 robbery of the Bell Federal Savings and Loan Association there. A total of $6,000 was taken at gunpoint.

Miss Saxe and Miss Power, both 20 and white, should be considered armed and dangerous, the FBI said, adding:

"They reportedly belonged, along with the three male bank robbery suspects, all of whom have been apprehended, to a small, revolutionary-type organization which, in addition to attacking military and police forces, reportedly advocated violent attacks against established society and robbery to further their aims and provide financial contributions to such organizations as the Black Panther party."

Designer Oscar De La Renta Colors Spring Bright, Bold

By CAROLYN A. BOWERS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Spring without color is like a day without sunshine. And the way designer Oscar de la Renta sees it, it will be a perfect spring, bright, bold and beautiful!

De la Renta's spring collection mixed and matched every color in the rainbow and the result was a breathtaking fashion collage shown the nation's store buyers and press Thursday afternoon.

Softy, clingy chiffons in lively oranges, yellows, green and lilacs were shown for evening. Solids and small geometric prints showed throughout the group, most of them mid-calf to ankle length and sweeping the floor. One ankle-length number mingled red, turquoise, and green. Floral Chinese floss embroideries were added on many of the printed chiffon and crepe de chine dresses.

OTHER EVENING wear included a large group of black chiffons, most with sheer long sleeves.

(It's a big season coming up for black in most New York collections). De la Renta showed flowing black chiffon skirts worn with very feminine white lace blouses for after-five combinations.

For daytime there was a group of suede separates. Most in navy or red, they included coats over dresses or skirts and blouses. There were some vests. One of the more striking coat was in red tie-dyed suede. Soft wool jersey capes were on the daytime scene too, paired with matching dresses. One eye-catcher was a lilac cape trimmed in navy, worn over a lilac dress.

Dress and skirts were soft and refined. Although many were pleated, the look was unstructured. Pleats were big for evening too. Daytime lengths were mid-calf to slightly longer.

PANTSUITS FOR daytime were minimal, but culottes and jumpsuits were big for evening. The jumpsuits, in black chiffon, had soft, long sleeves and slightly puffed legs. A second glance was required to catch some of the culottes since many had a long flowing front and back matching shiffon panel giving the illusion of a dress.

The collection closed with two painted leather flower-garden coats. Both were trimmed in feathers down front and around the hemline. De la Renta's retail prices are about $350 and up.

ANOTHER EXCITING spring show happened Thursday at the Jacques Tiffeau collection. The lively offering included barefoot girls, models with faces painted in a measles motif and a white lace short-legged jumpsuit bridal outfit.

The bridal outfit was a stove-pipe pants costume topped by a little lace cage that had a floor-sweeping train attached. The barefoot girls wore jumpsuits or midis, slit up four sides on the skirt. One wore a blue and white blurred print pants outfit and carried a fishing pole with a red heart on the end of the line.

Via dots at odd places over the eyebrows, down the cheek or across the forehead the measles look arrived. But these were black, blue and only sometimes red splashes.

The message coming across

FOR EVENING wear designer Oscar de la Renta showed this black chiffon with long sheer sleeves as he introduced his spring collection in New York this week. It's a big season coming up for black in most of the New York collections.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Should Sanctity Of Wedding Vows Come Before Personal Happiness?

DEAR READERS:

Many of you write, "I read the question, cover up your answer, then see how close I come to your solution — or reaction."

Well, here's your chance to play Helen Help Us!

Below is a problem which has no easy way out, so I'm asking my readers to send me their answers. I'll publish the best, and I'll also keep count of how many modern young people still put wedding vows before personal happiness. It may be an intriguing experiment.

(How do I vote? When in doubt, an advice columnist says, "Wait a while and see." Sometimes true love isn't where one thinks she has found it.)

Forthwith:

DEAR HELEN:

Fifteen months ago my boyfriend of three years, Jimmy, and I had a stupid fight and broke up. To spite him I accepted a date the next night with Ted, and we saw each other all that week. Then he gave me his ring. I took it only to show Jimmy I wasn't hurtin', which I was.

The next day, however, Jim called. After we made up I told him about Ted, expecting him to understand. Instead he got furious, and said if I ever wanted to come back, I'd come crawling. So that was the end of that.

I realize it was a case of pride that kept us apart. Also, Ted was good for my ego. He adored me. Nothing was too good. He'd turn the world upside down for me.

After three months, we progressed to an affair, and I got pregnant. Actually we had intercourse only once, and I regretted it terribly, but the damage was done. We had to get married. Ted wouldn't have it any other way.

Just before the wedding, Jimmy begged me to come back to him, but I couldn't hurt Ted. I thought we'd both get over this. Ted was so happy about the marriage and the coming baby, and I was at the point where I couldn't think.

We moved away from town so I couldn't bump into Jimmy. I destroyed everything that had anything to do with him. I really tried to be a good wife. When the baby came, we seemed very happy and contented. Ted said that now he had everything he'd ever wanted.

Then the inevitable happened — I ran into Jimmy, and the past months of resolutions were all gone. Instead of resenting my baby, he said he wanted her for his own —and me for his wife.

I decided to ask Ted for a divorce but, Helen, I couldn't. I know now I've never loved him, and I may always love Jimmy. But I care so much for Ted (another kind of love, I guess) that I can't hurt him.

Do I stay with him out of loyalty, or crush him by turning to my first and only real love? — JOAN

. . . .Okay, readers, send me your answers. Which will win —romance or reality? Stay tuned for the next episode in this real-life drama —sometime in November. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In our city they let high school and college students come to classes in any kind of clothes — girls in pants, guys in jeans. You can even go barefoot in college. But in junior hi, we still have to wear dresses and tucked-in shirts. Is this fair? — DISCRIMINATED AGAINST

DEAR DIS:

No. And I'm sure the rules will be changed soon. Relaxed dress codes filter down through the school system fast, once they've gotten a start. You'll see. — H.

PRESS GUIDE IS AVAILABLE

The booklet, "Getting News Into Your Newspaper," is issued as a service of the Independent-Journal Women's Section to assist press chairmen for women's organizations.

The booklets at the San Rafael office may be obtained from the switchboard on the main floor.

FASHIONS ARE COMIC

Designer Geoffrey Beene closed his spring press show Thursday in New York with these three long, crepe dresses featuring comic strip characters, from left, John Held Jr.'s flapper male with wide-legged pants and patent leather looking hair, Krazy Kat and the Little King. It is speculation whether the comics have made it to fashion's front ranks or fashions have reached comic strip level. (UPI Telephoto)

Capes Are Easy To Make And Rank High In Fall Fashion

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I'm not much of a seamstress since I haven't been sewing too long. After looking at ready-made clothes, I find I not only can't afford what is being offered, but the selection is never just what I want. I am wondering if it wouldn't be much easier to make a cape than a coat? Also, some capes are lined, some are underlined and lined, and some aren't lined at all. Why is there such variation in construction?

MARY V.

DEAR MARY V., Yes, a cape is definitely easier to make than a tailored coat, and it is certainly at the top of the pashion picture this fall. A top designer that I interviewed told me that a well-dressed woman always keeps a cape in her wardrobe, even though they seem to come and go in the fashion magazines.

The weight of the fabric and the style of the cape is the determining factor in the construction. When our clothes had a very structured and firm look, it was possible that a cape would need to be underlined to maintain the lines of the design. Naturally, if it is underlined, it would have to have a finish lining to cover the inner construction. If the fabric had a great deal of body, many times the capes were not underlined, but a finish lining was desired.

Today, there is a completely new look in capes. They are softer, more flowing, and have taken on the appearance of a cloak from Medieval times. These capes can be made of lovely wools that look beautiful on both sides and simply finished with flat-felled seams and no interfacing for the fronts, just a turned back facing that is an extension of the front of the garment. These are especially practical in moderate climates.

If you don't use any inner construction to maintain the shape, it is very important that you stay stitch the outer cut edges of your cape before you proceed with the construction. This should be done just inside the seam line, not close to the cut edge of the fabric.

I would like to advise everyone who has a flair for fashion, to make a cape of some type this fall. Corduroy, velveteen, wool, fake furs, vinyls and water-repellant fabrics are all good choices.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have found that often the patterns are cut too high at the neckline for me since I have a short neck. When I cut the neckline down further, the facings won't fit. How can I get the facing to fit the neckline?

MRS. M.C.F.

DEAR MRS. M.C.F.,

The simplest way to adjust the neckline is to pretend it will be just right. Baste your interfacing, cut the same size as the facing on the wrong side of your garment. Next pin the facing in place and machine stitch the neckline.

Try it on and decide if you need to bring your seamline closer to the cut edge for a closer fit or deeper than the seamline if the neckline is too high. If you are sure it is too high, clip the seam clear to the stitching line to release pulling when the facing is turned. If it is still too high, machine stitch slightly lower, usually tapering to the normal seam allowance at the shoulder mark.

Clip down to your new seam allowance and try it on again. This is the most accurate way to keep the neckline from stretching. You can be certain the facing will fit since you are changing the facing and the bodice at the same time.

After the neckline has been properly adjusted, clip the entire seam allowance on the curve of the neckline, grade your seams and understitch. You will have a lovely, flat neckline that will feel comfortable.

DEAR EUNICE,

I love the polyester knits for my clothes I work in and the clothes I have been making for my children to wear to school. The fabric is great, but I really fall down when it comes to the trims. I am mystified that the stores don't carry polyester trims similar to the ones that are used on ready-made garments which are so necessary to avoid the homemade look.

I just want you to know that I love your column because I love to sew. It is especially interesting to me because sewing is essentially a lonely hobby and keeping in touch with others who sew helps one not feel so all alone.

MRS. M.W.J.

DEAR MRS. M.W.J.

Perhaps the town where you live was a little slow to realize that these trimmings are certainly available and in many, many varieties. You should be able to find fringes, braids, edgings, yarn type braids that are used on Chanel suits, laces and almost anything that you will see on ready-mades. Often a manufacturer will weave special collars, cuffs or other trim which is usually not available at fabric shops. However, with a little imagination and searching for the right trims, you should obtain a look even more original than the ones you buy.

De La Renta's Designs Are Colorful

from another show—designer Geoffrey Beene's collection—turned comic. In a tribute to "the great cartoonists of the thirties," Beene closed his showing with three long crepe dresses featuring nearly-life sized comic strip characters. They included the Little King, Krazy Kat, and John Held's flapper male.

THE FLAPPER male—a very dapper type—had patent leather looking hair and wide pants. All of the characters were embroidered on with sequins.

Inspiration from the boys was a feature of much of the Beene collection. He showed a football hero suit with a jacket that looked like a school athlete's sweater complete with two rings of contrasting color on one sleeve.

The American cowboy was another boy look, complete with the authentic cowboy cut shirt and hip slung belt on pants. There were even nautical and hardhat looks.

But a touch of femininity was in the collection too—gay 90s demur print dresses.

Bad Taste Or A Good Joke Gone Wrong?

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — The Italian ready-to-wear collections for spring and summer 1971 closed Thursday with the serious fashion news overshadowed by the high incidence of what looked like deliberate bad taste or a joke gone wrong.

One boutique flatly stated its whole collection was based on what it called the bad taste of another era.

In such circumstances, it would be easy to overlook the important trends. Chief among them are a multiplicity of skirt lengths, but with the midcalf length far and away the favorite, a soft and drifting look in fabrics and the return of the bare midriff and platform soled shoes.

Floral prints abounded on silk and voile and colors got away from the muddy tones of the past ready-to-wear show that were so unflattering to the complexion.

Several houses liked a military look for men and women with jackets and hats dating from the two world wars.

One house pushing the military look was Guarnera, which came up with a skirt no woman soldier wore in any battle. A mini, it had a rectangular opening several inches wide which ended well above the crotch.

Walter Albini, designer for Montedoro, had a World War I line of midi skirts and jackets with elbow length sleeves worn over striped blouses, some of them unfastened from throat to waist.

Fur Collection

IN TAMALPAIS VALLEY

A 'Liberated' Fire Department

WHERE'S THE FIRE? — Volunteer fireman William Mason (center) and Eric Watson, a paid fireman, who trains volunteers for the Tamalpais Valley Fire Department, instruct the department's newest — and first woman — volunteer in the fine art of using the hose. Housewife Jeanne Creemer overcame male skepticism to win appointment. (Independent-Journal photo)

By PAT ANGLE

A few months ago a Tamalpais Valley housewife's suggestion that women serve as volunteer firemen was greeted by hoots of laughter from directors of the valley's fire district and male members of the audience.

But Jeanne Creemer, who came up with the proposal at a budget meeting where firemen expressed concern about the dearth of volunteers — particularly during the week — may have the last laugh.

This week, after a good deal of official skepticism and head scratching, her application to become a volunteer fireman was accepted by the fire district board.

And the board members, now that they have decided to take the plunge, appear quite pleased with the innovation. "She is very capable and I am certain she will perform to our advantage and her credit," said Director Bernard Lenhart.

Still a bit surprised to find herself the only lady fireman in Marin County and perhaps the only one in the Bay Area, Mrs. Creemer is nevertheless enthusiastic about her new status.

"The more you learn, the more fascinating it is," she said, adding: "A month ago, I knew absolutely nothing about fire fighting; I thought firemen just plugged their hoses into hydrants to get the water they needed."

Now, she is taking a fire science course at the College of Marin, has completed advanced first aid training and began attending drills this week. Her instructor, Eric Watson, who teaches volunteers for the Tamalpais Valley department, finds her to be "very quick, very responsive to training and a person with a fine attitude."

Perhaps the person most responsible for Mrs. Creemer's being accepted as a volunteer is Tamalpais Valley Fire Chief Richard K. Oswald who recommended her to the board.

The chief admits he was "very skeptical" at first. "I had never been involved with a woman volunteer before," he explained, "but she seemed very sincere, interested and capable and I'm interested in anyone who is civic-minded enough to take time out to help us."

With a grin, he added, "Besides, I like women."

Oswald admitted the department will be very careful with Mrs. Creemer — at least in the beginning — "to not subject her to anything in which she could be seriously injured."

If she proves she can keep up with the other volunteers, then the chief said his only concern "will be that she does what she's told to do."

Mrs. Creemer's latest excursion into a male-dominated field is nothing new for her. Her first job (in Maryland when she was 17 years old) was working in a service station, pumping gas and changing tires. Later, she drove a truck for a ship maintenance firm in Baltimore and worked as a dispatcher for a moving company, a position usually reserved for males, since it entails overseeing the work of many men.

Mrs. Creemer admits she had no idea she would end up as a volunteer when she attended the budget meeting as an interested citizen and taxpayer. "But when I heard the department was short of volunteers, especially during the week when most men are working, it seemed logical to me to use women to fill the gap," she explained.

When she went to the firehouse — also a voter registration center — to apply for the position, she said the fireman at the desk told her brightly: "Well, I'll bet you want to register to vote."

"His mouth dropped when I told him I had come to register as a volunteer fireman," she recalls with a smile, "but he gave me the application anyway."

Mrs. Creemer has found enthusiastic support from her husband, Lloyd, manager of the Mill Valley Lumber Company, her two married daughters ("they're used to me by now") and most of her friends. "Every woman I've told thinks it's great," she said.

How does it feel to be married to Marin's only lady fireman? Great, according to Lloyd Creemer, interviewed at the lumber yard. "I think she had a good idea and I'm glad she's going through with it," he said.

Creemer said he won't mind if his wife has to rush out in the middle of the night to fight a fire, "as long as she doesn't wake me up." The tall, broad-shouldered man admits he has received a lot of teasing and razzing from his coworkers.

"But he's big enough not to have to take too much of it," said a fellow worker, a head shorter than Creemer.

The unusual position does have its amusing moments — because of her sex, like the time the Plectron alarm system rang in her home to announce a fire while a well-groomed houseguest was around.

Mrs. Creemer said she rushed into her boots and gear and started to run out the door when the woman stopped her. "My God, Jeanne, you're not going out of here without combing your hair, are you?" she asked in a shocked tone.

Mrs. Creemer said she hopes she can do a good enough job as a volunteer to open the firehouse door to other women, perhaps eventually as full-time, paid firemen.

She feels strongly that women should have equal opportunities in every kind of job. "I've been fortunate in never running across a job I wanted that wasn't open to me," she said. "It can be done and I'm really happy to hear about women breaking into all-male fields."

However, she knows — but doesn't mind — that her ambition to fight fires is a laughing matter to a great many people, including some of her fellow volunteers.

"It's kind of a joke at this stage of the game, as far as a lot of the guys are concerned," said James A. Oberg, president of the Tamalpais Valley Volunteer Fireman's Association.

Oberg expressed doubts that a woman was physically capable of getting into the fray during a fire. "It can become quite rough," he said and admitted the volunteers will be watching Mrs. Creemer closely to judge her performance.

Mrs. Creemer herself is aware that many eyes will be on her and doesn't relish the idea ("I prefer anonymity"), but knows it can't be helped.

"I just hope I will be good enough so, when people from other departments call up to ask 'How is she doing?', they'll have to say 'She's doing okay,'" she said.

Typographical Error Cleared

A typographical error in yesterday's Independent-Journal report of the jury acquittal of a Sacramento ranch hand on charges of beating a former Novato horseman rendered the story's fourth paragraph unintelligible.

The sentence should have read:

The district attorney's office has maintained that Novato horsetrader Danny Leroy Sedgwick, 30, had hired (Pierre Jon) Hall and (James) Marquis (the acquitted defendant) to beat up Wyatt because he had reported Sedgwick's allegedly crooked horse dealings.

Hall earlier pleaded guilty and was sentenced on an assualt charge. He did not testify in Marquis's Superior Court trial before Judge Samuel W. Gardiner and a jury.

Maria Leone To Sing For Dixie Students

Soprano Maria Leone, former member of the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York, will perform Tuesday for the 120 Dixie School District students who will attend a student matinee of "Carmen" Wednesday at the San Francisco Opera House.

This will be the first of a series of appearances in Marin planned by the singer, in private life Mrs. Joe Alessi of Terra Linda.

The soprano will sing Micaela's Act 3 aria from "Carmen" in the program to be presented at 10:15 a.m. at the Vallecito Junior High School in Terra Linda. It is sponsored by the Council of Music and Arts of the Dixie School District. Douglas Perrin, a teacher at the school, will tell the story of the opera.

Sentencing Date In Burglary Case

Sentencing has been set for Nov. 23 in Marin Superior Court for William James Hayes, 18, of San Rafael, who has pleaded guilty to a charge of concealing stolen property on June 30.

At the time of the guilty plea to the felony, a charge of carrying a concealed weapon was dismissed.

Hayes was arrested in the Country Club area near San Rafael with articles reportedly taken in a burglary there.

Tiffany Park Bid Is Backed

The Sausalito Recreation Commission has recommended that the city council accept a bid for development of Tiffany Park from Albert Bidegain Landscaping Co. of San Rafael.

Norman Wohschlaeger, director of public works, said Bidigan's bid of $12,599 was the lowest received by the commission.

He said the project will include planting of trees and shrubs, construction of flagstone walkways, benches and a drinking fountain.

THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

San Rafael School Outlay

Salaries of public employees have been the subject of strong debate this year in budget sessions throughout Marin, at meetings of the board of supervisors, at meetings of city councils and of school district and special district boards.

Employees and their representatives, pleading for large pay increases, cited the rising cost of living and often argued that more money was paid in other counties, cities or districts for similar work.

Few employees got as much as they requested. Most local agencies granted more than they were willing at the outset.

The 1970-71 payrolls of all local agencies in Marin as of the start of the new fiscal year, July 1, are being published by the Independent-Journal during the next few weeks as a complete accounting of what is now paid public employees and as a basis of comparison from agency to agency.

Whale Is Well On Its Way To Pet Food Cans

Inverness's woebegone whale that died Wednesday night is well on its way to being turned into pet food today — or whatever it is they do with whales now that whale oil lamps have vanished along with buggy whips.

The 30-foot creature stranded itself Tuesday on the Inverness beach. Concerned neighbors towed it to sea — and it came back. It gasped its last Wednesday night, despite first aid attempts by neighborhood youngsters who poured water over its hide.

The county health department reported yesterday that it had recruited help from the Marshall Boat Works, which sent a boat to pull the whale off the beach at high tide Thursday and tow it back to the Marshall docks.

There, at low tide yesterday, it was hoisted onto a county truck and taken across the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge to the Del Monte fish works at Point San Pablo.

County officials heaved a sigh of relief that the problem had been solved before nose pollution set in.

THE WEEK'S BUSINESS

Market Cautious On Many Fronts

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market backed off in slow trading this week as Wall Street wrestled with a number of discomforting items, including prospects of a large budget deficit, generally sloppy third quarter corporate earnings, the strike at General Motors Corp., and the apparent firm rejection of President Nixon's Vietnam peace plan by the Communists.

Of 1,765 issues crossing the tape, declines outscored advances 1,124 to 491. The NYSE common stock index fell 0.53 to 45.98; Standard & Poors' 500 stock index was off 0.80 to 84.28; and the Dow Jones industrial average, a blue chip barometer, lost 5.34 to 763.35.

Turnover for the five days receded to 50,561,710 shares from 84,132,080 shares a week earlier, and also was well below the 82,561,125 shares traded in the comparable week a year ago.

Congressman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., predicted a fiscal 1971 budget deficit of between $12 billion and $20 billion. He also said he saw no signs of an upturn in the economy or an end to inflation.

Saul Smerling, analyst for Standard & Poor's, said the General Motors strike has cast a pall over things temporarily, but most people are looking for better progress in the economy, probably in early 1971.

He said theoretically the Federal Reserve Board's easier monetary policy is "laying the groundwork" for economic recovery.

Monte Gordon of Bache & Co. attributed the market's setback to the absence of visible evidence that the economy is on the recovery track despite an optimistic statement by a high government officials.

Paul W. McGracken, the President's top economic adviser, said the lagging U.S. economy is "on the threshold" of a vigorous upswing.

"The next major move in the economy almost certainly is going to be upward," he said. McCracken addressed the 1970 UPI Editors and Publishers Conference in Williamsburg, Va.

Lucien Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co. noted that some worry stemmed from belief that economic statistics are not as good as the administration has been advertising. Late in the week, the Federal Reserve reported a sharp drop in industrial output last month.

At Thusday's 88th session of the Paris peace talks Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates turned thumbs down on Nixon's five-point peace plan, announced on Oct. 7.

"Our rejection is firm, radical and categoric", North Vietnamese spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le told newsmen after the session.

One analyst observed that some of the market's recent strength had been attributed to hopes the Communists would at least consider the new peace overture despite their initial denunciation of the plan.

But, he added, these hopes would appear to have been crushed for the time being.

HARVEST FESTIVAL BEGINS

Children of the United Jewish Community Center in Santa Venetia decorate a hut with fruits and vegetables to mark the beginning of the Sukkoth, a festival of harvest and thanksgiving. The festival, which began Wednesday occurs eight days after Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, and continues for five days. It is a reminder of celebrations in ancient Palestine when crops had been gathered and the rainy season was approaching. The hut, called a Succah, has a roof through which the sky must be seen in order to serve as a reminder of 40 years of wandering by Israelites through the wilderness. The last day of Sukkoth is Simchat Torah, celebrating the conclusion of the reading of the Pentateuch and the beginning of the reading of the First Book once again. A speecial Simchat Torah service has been set for 7:45 p.m. next Friday at Congregation Rodef Sholon. (I-J photo)

'Fellowship Of Spirit' Is Key To Rekindling Church

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The church has a curious way of putting forth vigorous shoots of new life at the very moment it seems most in danger of dying.

It has happened time and again during the 2,000 year history of the Church. And it's happening right now.

By all external appearances, the Church today is a badly ailing institution. In many big denominations, membership is declining, attendance is off, and giving is down. There is demoralization among the clergy. Conflict over the church's stand on social issues is causing grave internal dissension.

But in the midst of all these discouraging developments, something new and infinitely hopeful is taking place.

It is a rediscovery of the dynamic reality which the early Christian community called "the power of the Spirit."

When Jesus took leave of his disciples, he promised they would not be left alone and unguided, and would not have to rely on their own dubious strength to carry on in the self-sacrificing way of love he had taught them.

SPIRIT OF GOD

He said the Spirit of God would come into their hearts and take possession of their lives, giving them courage, hope, a capacity for life and a power for goodness vastly exceeding anything they could will or achieve by themselves.

The fulfillment of this promise is vividly described in the New Testament Book of Acts. Indeed, it shines through the entire history of the Church during its first 150 years, when the good news of the gospel spread like wildfire across the Roman world.

When filled with "the power of the Spirit," frightened men became brave, weak men became strong, selfish men became generous, and insensitive men became understanding and compassionate.

The power of the Spirit, which was so central to the life of the early Church, grew less conspicuous over the years, as the Church grew into a rich and successful institution with a good deal of power of its own.

From time to time, the power of the Spirit would flare out, like a sun spot, in a dramatic movement of renewal. But over long periods, the Church acted as though it had all but forgotten its dependency on a power beyond itself. Worse, it sometimes acted as though the power of the Spirit could be tamed, confined to institutional channels, and summoned forth at will by appropriate rites.

WEAKENED STATE

Today, the Church again is in a weakened state, and is compelled to look beyond itself for strength and renewal. So emphasis on the power of the Spirit is undergoing a remarkable resurgence across the whole spectrum of Christian denominations.

Wherever this revival of Spirit-centeredness occurs, the Church quickly learns that it is the answer the modern world has been looking for, and has not found in the dry doctrines, the customs and ceremonies, and the moral preachments offered by the Church when it is in the mood to pass out stones instead of bread.

People who've never been much interested in theological speculations about God are intensely interested in the possibility of actually encountering God as a Reality that can be known and experienced here and now.

And that, of course, is what the "power of the Spirit" is — God in action, God at work in the world, God dwelling in the hearts and minds of men, God here-and-now.

There is nothing for which the modern world has a greater hunger than the experience of direct personal communion with God. To come out of its present doldrums, the Church has only to reclaim its birthright as the "fellowship of the Spirit."

Canadian Lutherans Face Restructuring

WINNIPEG, Manitoba ((LC) — Serious budget restrictions will apparently cause a restructuring of the Lutheran Council in Canada even though proposed constitutional and by-law amendments may not be effected immediately.

The exeuctive committee of the co-operative church agency, meeting on Sept. 30, heard the report of a study committee recommending a restructuring of the Council.

Noting that grants from the partner churches would be $18,000 less in 1971 than in 1970, the study committee recommended that the governing board of LCIC be reduced to 12 members from the present 22 and that thedivisions of Canadian Missions, Service to Military Personnel and the Committee on Youth Activities be discontinued.

The report also recommended discontinuing the standing committees for the remaining divisions: Theological Studies, Information Services ,Campus Ministry, Educational Services and Social Services.

Present executive secretaries for the divisions would be maintained, but would report directly to the councillors (governing board) of LCIC. Their work would be aided by regional committees.

The executive committee accepted the study committee report and agreed to recommend it and necessary constitution and by-law changes to the annual meeting in February,1971.

After hearing that funds available for 1971 would amount to only $140,000, it seemed evident that the study committee recommendations would have to be implemented in order to effect cost savings. The 1970 budget is $167,900.

The study committee had been established at the annual meeting in February this year partly because of the financial squeeze, and partly to evaluate Council programming with a view to recommending changes to effect greater efficeincy and control.

The executive committee, to tailor hte 1971 budget to balance with expected income, found it necessary to also recommend that grants to campus ministry foundations be discontinued entirely.

There are eight local foundations at Canada's universities that have been receiving an annual grant of $3,000.00 ech towards costs of each campus chaplain.

The LCIC is the co-operative agency of the Evangelical Lutheran Chuchrch of Canada; Lutheran Church in America - Canada Section; and Lutheran Church-Canada. It was organized in 1967 to "further a Lutheran witness by co-operating in matters of common interest.

TWO SURVEYS

Clue To Empty Pews On Sunday

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Ministers who wonder why they face so many empty pews on Sunday may find a clue in two surveys conducted recently among Episcopalians.

Both were concerned with the qualities that are desirable in a pastor.

One survey, conducted by the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio, asked both laymen and clergymen for their views. The results demonstrate how wide a gulf has grown up between laity and clergy on the proper role of the latter. Respondents were asked to rank various traits in order of their relative importance to the success of a clergyman's ministry.

The laymen agreed overwhelmingly that the most important trait to be sought in a pastor is "a strong personal faith." The second most important, they said, is a capacity for "responsible interpretation and communication of the faith."

The clergy did not attach comparable importance to these things. They ranked personal faith third among the desirable attributes of a minister. Communication of the gospel was seventh on their list of priorities.

Clergymen feel their most important function is to display "concern for the problems of the community and the world." The next most important trait, they said, is "an attitude of openness to change." The laity ranked both of these things very low in importance.

The other survey was conducted by the Episcopal Church Foundation, and involved questionnaires sent to 2600 laymen across the nation. They also were asked to rank, in order of importance, attributes desirable in a clergyman.

A strong personal faith was not even mentioned in the foundation's questionnaire, so the laity had no chance to vote for that. But they did give first priority to a quality which closely corresponds to it: that a minister be "well grounded in theology."

The second most important trait, they felt, was that a pastor be "an interesting and relevent preacher" — which corresponds to the capacity for "responsible communication" which Ohio laymen placed second on their list of desirable ministerial qualities.

What stands out from both polls is that laymen want ministers who are — in the old-time phrase — "men of God," imbued with a deep and contagious personal faith.

The clergy, on the other hand, tend to see their role primarily in terms of social activism.

A minister certainly has a right to define his role in the light of his own conscience.

But if his exercise of this right causes him to ignore or disappoint the expectations of laymen, he should not be surprised to find them drifting away from his church.

Two Groups Will Sponsor Interfaith News Program

NEW YORK (LC) — A new "Church World News" interfaith news program, sponsored jointly by the Lutheran Church in America and the American Lutheran Church, will be offered radio stations in the United States and Canada starting Oct. 24.

Church World News, now distributed to 330 stations by the LCA, will be combined with the ALC's "Church at Work." Initially, the newscast will be sent to 490 stations.

Dr. Robert E. Bornemann of the Lutheran Seminary at Philadelphia, chairman of the LAC's Commission on Press, Radio and Television, said:

"This new cooperative effort by the American Lutheran Church in America replaces Church inAmerica replaces what has been described as 'America's first interfaith religious newscast' with a new format that should better serve those stations which broadcast it. And it marks another milestone in the combining of Lutheran interests in areas of common interest or concern."

Church World News was introduced in 1951. It has won several national awards as an "outstanding public service." Included have been honors by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Ohio State University and the Catholic Broadcasters Association of America.

It will continue to be offered through the Broadcast and Film Commission of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. And a Spanish translation provided in cooperation with the Episcopal Church will be continued.

Bornemann said "tribute must be paid Dick Sutcliffe who has been commentator for the present LCA program for most of its 19 years."

Sutcliffe, former associate director of the PRT Commission, now is director of University Relations at Southern Methodist University.

The new program, Dr. Bornemann said, will include taped actualities — the voices of many of those making the top religious news these days — and news and commentary will be presented by two radio veterans.

Back And Forth

SAN GABRIEL (UPI) — The San Gabriel Mission was built here by the Franciscan Fathers in 1771, secularized in 1852, and signed back to the Roman Catholic Church in 1859 by President James Buchanan.

Mount Harmon Leader To Be Guest Speaker

Rev. Bill Gwinn, executive director of Mount Hermon Conference Center near Santa Cruz, will be the guest speaker tomorrow at the 9:30 worship service of the Marin Covenant Church. He will be speaking on "Who's In Charge Here?"

Following the morning service there will be a discussion of the message with adults and teenagers during the church school hour.

Gwinn is widely-known as a speaker and an authority on Christian camping. He is on the board of directors of Bible Study Fellowship, Westmont College in Santa Barbara, and of African Enterprise. Most recently he was a representative to the Billy Graham-sponsored Congress on Evangelism in Minneapolis.

The two Sunday morning sessions with the congregation of the Covenant Church will conclude a three-day visit in this area. Beginning last night, Gwinn led an adult retreat for the congregation on the theme of the "Lordship of Christ."

The Marin Covenant Church now meets on Sundays at the Miller Creek Junior High School at 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue in Marinwood.

Graham Session To Be Held Thursday

Marin County ministers are being invited to attend a planning session at 8:30 a.m. Thursday in regard to next July's Bill Graham Crusade to be held in the Oakland Coliseum.

The meeting will be held at the Christian Church of San Rafael, 50 Los Ranchitos Road, Rev. Sam Walberg of the Marin Evangelical Free Church, county chairman, has announced.

Slides On Passion Play To Be Shown

Slides of the Oberammergau Passion Play given this past summer in Germany, will be shown by Rev. Tod W. Ewald at Holy Innocents' Episcopal Parish, Corte Madera, on Tuesday, October 20 at 8 p.m.

Father Ewald will include in his talk the Ludwig's Fairy Castles and adventures in the Bavarian Alps.

MANY FACTORS INVOLVED

Cutbacks In Church Pledging Concern To All Denominations

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religious Writer

This is "every member canvass" season — the time when churches across the nation seek financial pledges to support their work during the coming year.

Unless the results are a lot better than they were last fall, many churches are going to be in serious trouble.

In most of the major denominations, giving has leveled off or declined during the past year. With inflation driving up costs at a rate of 5 to 6 per cent a year, even a leveling off means a reduction in church programs of ministry, education and service.

Foreign missions have been particularly hard hit. The United Presbyterian Church, whose 3.3 million members probably have the highest average income of any religious body in the world, had to slash its support of overseas work from $16 million in 1969 to $14.6 million in 1970. The cut would have been even steeper had not the church tapped its reserve funds for $2.5 million.

"We can't keep that up," warned Dr. Theophilus M. Taylor, secretary of the denomination's General Council.

"These reserves, which have been accumulated over long periods of time as a buffer against emergencies, never were very large and soon will be exhausted."

The same kind of pinch is being felt—all the way from the local congregation to the national level—in many other leading denominations, including the United Methodist Church, Episcopal Church, American Baptist Church, Lutheran Church in America, and Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Many factors seem to be involved in the decline in giving.

INFLATION SQUEEZE

Inflation has put a severe squeeze on millions of middle income family budgets—and giving to the church is a painless place to economize.

Some pledge-cutters justify their giving strike as a protest against social activism by the church. This is a classic example of burning down the barn to drive out a rat. Out of every dollar given to churches, less than one half of one cent goes into social programs designed to help victims of poverty and racial discrimination.

Still another factor is increasing competition for the giver's dollar. Some people who used to give generously to churches are now diverting a major portion of their annual giving to educational institutions, welfare agencies, or health programs.

The most important factor, perhaps, is a widespread public impression that churches are rolling in wealth and don't need any more money. This is pure nonsense. Churches do own a great deal of real estate—about $100 billion worth—but most of it consists of unsaleable buildings which are used for only a few hours a week.

A LIABILITY

Far from producing income, church property is a liability: it has to be heated, lighted, insured, swept, painted, and periodically re-roofed. The overhead costs of building repairs and maintenance consumes a very large share of the average church's income.

New congregations have the option of avoiding this heavy burden by meeting in rented or makeshift quarters. But an established congregation which already owns a costly building has little choice but to go on making the mortgage payments and trying to keep the place in repair.

Possibly it's time for Americans to ask themselves: Do we really want to dispense with the Church as a community institution? If not, we are going to have to start supporting our churches a little more adequately.

Film On Israel To Be Shown Monday

"His Land," a film on Israel, will be shown at 8 p.m. Monday at the San Rafael Improvement Club, Fifth and H streets.

It is being sponsored by the Marin Evangelical Free Church and open to the public, according to Rev. Sam Walberg, pastor.

SUCCESSOR SOUGHT

Gompertz Leaves Church In Ignacio For A New Field

Left without a vicar, the congregation of the Church in Ignacio is to meet tomorrow at 10 a.m. to discuss its future.

Rev. Charles Gompertz, who founded the Episcopal congregation in the Pacheco Shopping Center five years ago, resigned effective Oct. 1.

While a successor is sought, Rev. Don Sower, newly arrived in Novato from a Livermore parish, is filling in at the 8 and 10 a.m. Sunday services.

Gompertz, who resigned to take a job with Land Investment Research of Larkspur, said money was not his motive. The innovative vicar claimed most churchgoers resist departure from traditional religious practices.

He said that after five years with the church, it is "time to let it fly on its own ability."

Faced with waiting three to six months for a successor, the congregation is scheduled tomorrow to adopt a plan submitted by the bishop's committee — the church ruling group — which calls for use of a worker priest and seminary student until Gompertz' successor is chosen, according to Irwin Griffin, warden of the ruling group.

Any plan adopted must be submitted to the Department of Missions of the church for final approval. Approval by that body is required because the 60-family church — technically a mission — is not yet self-supporting, Griffin said.

CHARLES GOMPERTZ
Progressive vicar

Known as a progressive, Gompertz spoke out on such issues as birth control and germ warfare from the pulpit, but he felt his greatest contributions were working with the young and sponsoring dances.

In 1968 he produced in San Francisco an Interfaith Council television program for teenagers called "Help" and in 1965 produced a folk mass by jazz musician Vince Guaraldi.

He donated church facilities to the Terra Linda Little Theater in 1966, saying the play was "a more effective sermon than most preachers are able to deliver . . ."

Gompertz is still president of the Planned Parenthood Association of Marin, but has resigned from other organizations like the Volunteer Bureau of Marin, the Marin Institute on Alcoholism, the Family Service Agency of Marin, Marin Mental Health Association and the Marin Council of Churches.

Case Referred

The case of Paul Edward Le Clair, 19, of San Anselmo, who is charged with possessing marijuana Sept. 26 in San Anselmo, was referred yesterday to the probation department for a report on whether it is acceptable for disposition in juvenile court.

16.5 Per Cent Pay Boost Wins Regents' Favor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The University of California Board of Regents has voted to recommend a 16.5 per cent faculty pay boost next year, but reserved the right to change the figure later if a special committee decides it's too much.

The decision Friday was a compromise after some regents complained the figure was too high and others contended it was barely enough to cover rises in the cost of living over a two-year period.

The proposal would boost salaries 11.2 per cent to the median level of salary schedules at 19 public and private comparable universities with which California competes in hiring professors.

The proposal also recommends increased fringe benefits equivalent to 5.3 per cent of salaries.

Glossy Green House Upsets Homeowners

"Bright, glossy green" is simply not acceptable as the color for a house in Peacock Gap, according to a suit filed in Marin Superior Court by the homeowners association of the subdivision.

Not only did Robert G. and Naomi T. Bruce paint their house at 212 Riviera Drive the unacceptable color about two months ago, but they then moved to Southern California, leaving the house for sale, according to attorney Bryan McCarthy.

The Peacock Gap Homeowners Association, noting that the Bruces did not apply for approval by the subdivision's architectural review committee as required by deed restrictions, has asked that the court require abatement or a new paint job.

Large Emigration To West Germany

WIESBADEN, GERMANY — West Germany has rapidly become one of the world's choice countries among emigrants. Last year alone, one million people arrived in the country and took up residence.

At the same time, 440,000 West German residents emigrated from the country, leaving a net gain of 560,000. Foreign workers coming to West Germany for better pay and jobs are believed to have accounted for the lion's share of immigrants.

Hall Defends Angela For Hiding Out

NEW YORK (UPI)—Angela Davis might have surrendered after the November election, American Communist Party chairman Gus Hall indicated Friday.

Hall spoke at a rally of about 150 supporters of the black revolutionary outside Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's office. He said she had opportunities to flee the country in the two months she was hunted in connection with the shoot-out at the Marin County Hall of Justice that left four persons dead.

She choose to remain and face the murder charge at an "opportune time" and might have surrendered "when the hysteria has subsidied and Gov. (Ronald) Reagan can't use it in his election campaign," Hall said.

Miss Davis was arrested by FBI agents in a New York motel this week, David R. Poindexter Jr., who was arrested with her and charged with harboring a fugitive, was released Friday on $100,000 bail.

About 150 persons took part in the rally in support of Miss Davis who is accused of buying the guns used in the shootout.

Reagan was expected to ask Rockefeller to extradite her to California for trial. Rockefeller's office said it had not yet received the request from the California governor.

Time In Jail On Burglary

Judge Peter Allen Smith, sitting as a superior court judge, placed Robert Sterling Evans, 22, of San Rafael, on probation for three years yesterday and ordered him to spend six months in the county jail for two burglary convictions.

Evans was convicted by a jury of the attempted burglary of a San Anselmo residence on June 10 and the burglary of a San Rafael house on June 27.

He is to receive credit on his jail sentence for the time he has served since the second arrest.

A co-defendant in the San Anselmo arrest, Dennis Victor Chesley, 20, of San Rafael, is to be sentenced next Friday.

Terra Linda Wins Tough Battle, 7-0

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Linebacker Larry Mandin intercepted a pass deep in Novato territory late in the fourth quarter to set up the only touchdown of the game last night as Terra Linda High School edged past the Hornets, 7-0 in a Marin County Athletic League football game played before 3,500 fans at San Rafael High School.

For the prideful Trojans, the victory, in their 1970 homecoming game, was number three against no losses in league play. And as been the case in all of their wins, the defending MCAL champions produced a tremendous second half surge that did the job.

Once again it was defense that dominated as Terra Linda held the Hornets to a total of 98 yards, and dropped them for minus 19 yards rushing. In the second half Novato registered only a single first down as the Trojans time and again foiled the passing attack of quarterback Marty Moroski.

BULLET BACKFIRES

With the ball on the Hornet 17 yard line and less than four minutes left in the game, Moroski shot a bullet across the middle, which Mandin stepped into as though it has been meant for him. He brought the ball back to the 15, and from there the winning touchdown was practically inevitable.

Matt Bowman, who finished as the game's leading rusher with 41 yards, carried twice to the one yard line, and quarterback Larry Kerr muscled his way over for the score.

Moroski had a somewhat nightmarish game, completing only 8 of 21 passes. Considering Novato's pitiful ground game, however, the junior signal caller did a creditable job. The Trojans dumped him only four times; he scrambled around well.

SCREEN ATTACK

Kerr, on the other hand, completed 12 of 17 passes for 141 yards and did an outstanding job finding open receivers. More than half his passes were screens, which continually fooled the Hornet defense. Tiny Rick Trono caught five passes, four of them screens, for 55 yards, and Bowman caught three screens for 39.

Novato played the Trojans even up in the first half, when the Hornets had the game's only other scoring opportunity. Early in the second quarter, Moroski put the Hornets on the Terra Linda 17 yard line when he hit Dave Judnick with a 42 yard bomb.

The Trojans held, however, and blocked a field goal attempt by Bob Cooper, who had kicked three-pointers in each of Novatos' two previous league games.

LaHAYE STARS

Terra Linda's defensive effort was spearheaded by end Bill LaHaye, who recovered two fumbles, and by Trono, who as halfback had the unenviable task of covering wide receiver Judnick. He held the big end to only two catches, although they were worth 56 yards.

Novato now has one win and two losses in league play.

SHARON WALSH STUNS ENGLAND'S MISS WADE

"It was the best win of my career," gushed San Rafael teener Sharon Walsh yesterday after she stunned top-ranked Virginia Wade of England in the semi-finals of the Dewar Indoor Tennis Cup tournament at Edinburgh, Scotland.

Miss Walsh, the national junior champion who graduated from San Rafael High School last June, had her usual first set jitters, losing to Miss Wade by a 2-6 margin. But the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Les Walsh of San Rafael came back strong to take the match 6-2, 11-9.

Miss Walsh, who is eligible to win prize money abroad although she can't collect cash in the United States until she turns 19, also advanced in doubles yesterday. Teaming with Betty Stoever of The Netherlands, Miss Walsh downed Miss Wade and Ann Hayden Jones, also of England, 17-15, 7-9, 6-2.

Castillo Wins Title On A Cut

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Chucho Castillo capitalized on his willingness to trade punches and an eye cut suffered by champion Ruben Olivares to lift the bantamweight crown in a hard-fought bout Friday Night at the forum.

Olivares suffered the cut in the first round, possibly as the result of an accidental butt, but lasted until 2:27 of the 14th round when referee Dick Young halted the bout on the recommendation of ring physician Dr. Jack Useem.

Before the fight was halted, it had the crowd of 16,007 which paid a gross gate of $215,902.50 cheering wildly. Promoter George Parnassus said a rematch was in the making to be held either in Mexico City, Chicago or here.

The two judges, Lee Grossman and Rudy Jordan, and the UPI scorecard had the fight even while Young had Castillo ahead by a point at the finish.

"Considering the cut Olivares suffered in the first round and how even the fight was until it was stopped, there has to be a rematch," Parnassus said.

UPHILL CLIMB

The victory was the climax of a long, uphill climb for Castillo, who dropped an unpopular 15-round decision in a title fight with the then champion in 1968, Lionel Rose. The 26-year-old Mexican battler lost a 15-round decision to Olivares in a title bout last April.

Castillo denied he had butted Olivares in the first round and said if the cut over the left eye had been the result of a butt it would have been on the cheek or forehead.

"I hit him with an overhand right," the new champion said. "He's a tough guy and hit me solid but I was never in danger of going down. I was stronger than ever at the finish."

SOLID HOOKS

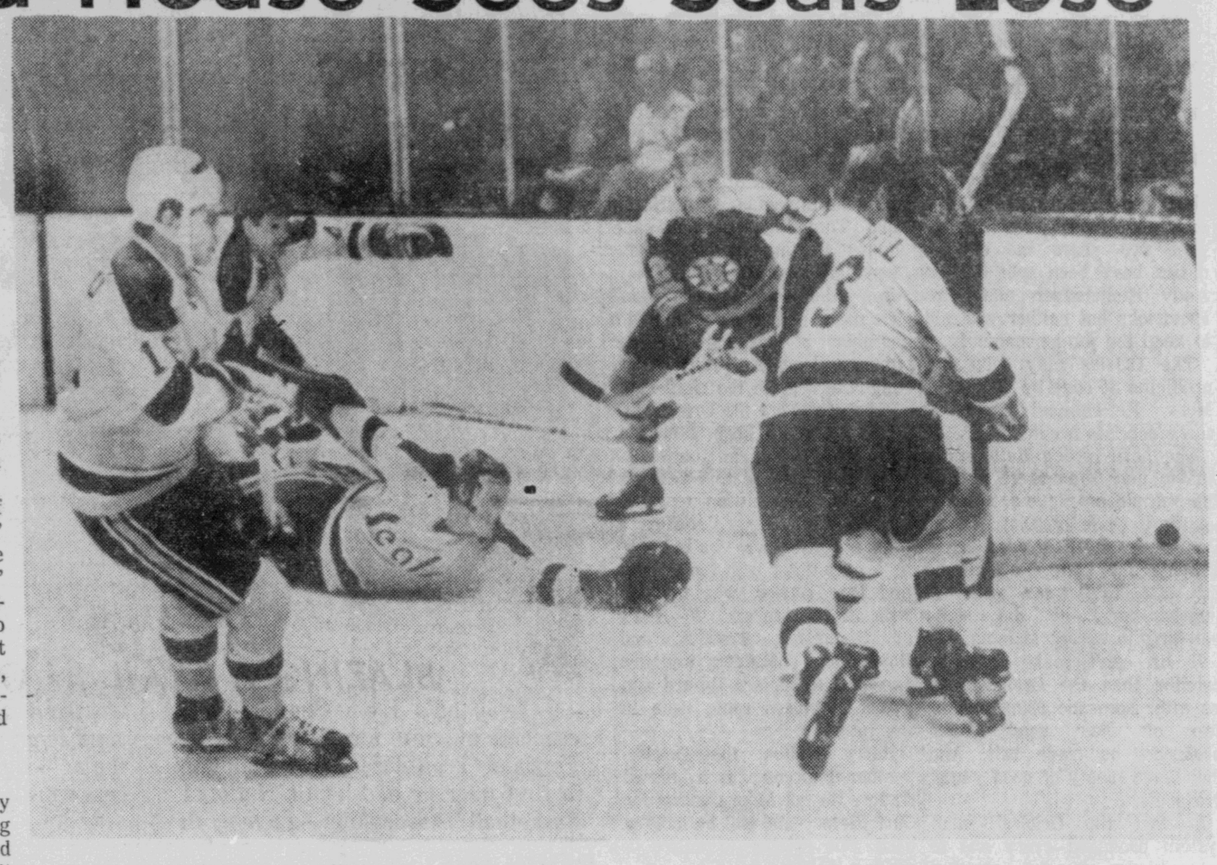
Olivares won the first round before he suffered the cut in the final seconds. The flow of blood was stemmed for several rounds during which he piled up a lead with his solid left hooks.

"When the bleeding started again in the middle of the fight," Olivares said, "I had to change my style of fighting. I had to keep my left up more and when I let it go I was wide open."

Under California boxing rules, the outcome goes into the record book as a knockout even though the fight was halted as the result of the cut.

Packed House Sees Seals Lose

By DAVID DIETZ



BRUIN SCORE — Bobby Orr (partially obscured by Oakland's Harry Howell - 3) scored goal in leading Boston to 5-1 victory over Seals last night. Other Seals are goalie Gary Smith on ground and Gary Croteau (18) and Wayne Muloin. (UPI telephoto)

OAKLAND — If the Kansas City Chiefs have the football offense of the 1970s, then the Boston Bruins defending Stanley Cup Champions, are the hockey symbol of the decade.

The marauding Bruins, led by Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito, spoiled the Seals' 1970-71 National Hockey League homecoming last night with a 5-1 victory before a capacity crowd of 12,089 at the Coliseum Arena.

It was a close game (2-1) after two periods, but Boston, which has now scored 20 goals in three games, broke it open in the third with three tallies.

Orr and Esposito, a pair of dynamos who make the Bruins' offense go, had a profitable night at the expense of Seals' goalie Gary Smith. The 22-year-old Orr, a defenseman who is called by many the greatest in hockey history, scored twice, once on a thunderous breakaway Esposito scored once and assisted on three other tallies.

BRUINS BOTTLED

The Seals played good hockey in the second period, keeping the tall, mobile Bruins bottled up in their own end, but couldn't generate much offense in the first and third sessions because of poor passing.

"We had problems in our own end and you don't play offense down there," said coach Fred Glover. "Unfortunately, these aren't problems which are going to cure themselves overnight."

Glover praised the Bruins. "They're a good hockey team. They have a great deal of confidence and they show it when they move that puck."

Boston took a 2-0 lead after the first when Wayne Cashman scored only 17 seconds into the game on a tip-in and Orr followed five minutes later with a shot into an open net after Smith had sprawled to make a save.

Seals' winger Gary Croteau set up Dennis Hextall with a pretty pass to make it 2-1, but scores by Esposito, Bucyk and Orr put the game away in the last period.

BUSY NIGHT

The Seal management said it turned away 3,000 fans for the opener. For those who did get a seat, it was a busy night. There were fights on the ice and even one in the stands, and Charley O. Finley showed off a host of frills that would curl the hair of purists. There were skating walruses, skating mules and a lady skater with a Seals' sandwich board attached to her.

When Charley O. the mule (two skaters under a sheet) skated out before the game, a wag in the stands roared: "C'mon, let's play hockey."

Vacuum Car Sweeps To Laguna Record

MONTEREY (UPI)—Vic Elford of England drove Jim Hall's new Chaparral sports car to a record qualifying lap in the opening day trials of the $76,000 Monterey-Castrol Grand Prix at Laguna Seca Raceway.

The British driving ace stormed around the 1.9 mile, nine turn Monterey road course in 59.4 seconds averaging 115.1 m.p.h. at the helm of Hall's revolutionary "vacuum cleaner" type sports car. The quick lap was one-tenth of a second faster than the previous mark set last October by Bruce McLaren.

Elford's run came as somewhat of a surprise. Hall's Chaparral was said to be ready for the Laguna race, but it took a record effort to prove how well development of the ground hugging sports car had come along.

Denny Hulme of New Zealand, point leader in the million dollar Can-Am series, posted the second fastest time of the day, a 1.00.2 clocking in the Team McLaren No. 1 car.

New York's Peter Revson temporarily holds on to the post spot in the second row by virtue of his 1:01.2 run.

Foreigners dominated the opening trial sessions. This year's Monterey field lists ten starters from overseas. Four qualified in the first five spots.

Hulme teammate Peter Gethin of England held fourth fastest time while Jackie Oliver took the new titanium car home fifth.

On Saturday, qualifying will be completed for Sunday's featured 200-mile event. Four national amateur championship sports car races will be held.

Long Beach Romps

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —Randy Drake ran over from the six-yard line in the opening period and then fired a 59-yard strike to Chuck Davidian to open a four-touchdown barrage in the second period as Long Beach State belted winless UC Santa Barbara 33-7 Friday night.

76ers Trade Imhoff To Royals

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Royals have acquired veteran 6-foot-10 center Darral Imhoff from the Philadelphia 76ers in a four-man deal on the eve of the first meeting between the two clubs.

The Royals sent center Connie Dierking, forward Fred Foster and the team's second round 1971 draft choice to the 76ers for Imhoff.

Imhoff, who had been suspended by the 76ers for not signing a contract before the season began, will join the club Sunday after the two teams play in the Cincinnati Gardens tonight.

Tam Sailing Club

A sailing club for beginning as well as experienced sailors will be formed at an organizational meeting tomorrow from 9 a.m. to noon at the Mill Valley small craft harbor at the foot of Sycamore Avenue.

Stanley Pease, social studies teacher at Tamalpais High School, will head the club, which is open to all Tamalpais High students. He invited all interested youths, experienced or not, to attend Sunday's meeting.

20 Turnovers Ruin A Black-Tie Affair

The San Francisco Warriors don't have much time to reflect on Friday night's 120-106 National Basketball Association loss to the Detroit Pistons.

The Warriors swing right back into action tonight, traveling across the bay to the Oakland Arena where they'll entertain the first-year Cleveland Cavaliers.

Except for the fine all-around play of Jerry Lucas, San Francisco's season opener—a Black Tie affair at the Cow Palace—was a dismal one. The Warriors committed 20 turnovers.

Two quick field goals by Bob Lanier, the NBA's first draft pick, in the second quarter put the Pistons ahead for good, 32-28. During the period, Lanier hit for 10 of his 19 points to give Detroit a 56-46 halftime edge.

Behind Lucas and Jeff Mullins, the Warriors made a run, closing the difference to 62-57, but an 11-2 Detroit spree in the third period proved too big to overcome.

Dave Bing topped the Detroit scorers with 27 points. Lucas topped all point-makers with 31. In addition, he had 16 rebounds.

In other NBA action Friday night, Porland beat Cleveland 115-112, Los Angeles edged Chicago 106-102 and Philadelphia downed San Diego 127-119.

Jim Barnett and Geoff Petrie rallied Portland in the last 3½ minutes to give the Trail Blazers their triumph over Cleveland in a battle of expansion teams.

Barnett had 31 points and Petrie, the Blazers' No. 1 draft choice from Princeton, scored 13 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter as Portland, Oregon's first major league team, won its NBA debut.

Jerry West scored 29 points and Wilt Chamberlain had 26 as Los Angeles put down a second half Chicago rally to beat the Bulls. West and Chamberlain teamed for 24 points as the Lakers took a 60-44 halftime lead, but Chicago moved to within three points in the second half before West's free throws late in the game put it out of reach.

CHANGING OF THE TITLE

49ers Favored Over New Orleans

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco's shuttle defensive line came of age against the Los Angeles Rams last Sunday but will have to be as good again this Sabbath when the 49ers host the New Orleans Saints.

The 49ers used eight linemen — ends Tommy Hart, Bill Belk, Cedric Hardman and Stan Hindman and tackles Charlie Krueger, Roland Lakes, Earl Edwards and Sam Silas—to stop Roman Gabriel and Los Angeles, 20-6, last Sunday.

All except Hindman will be in action this Sunday against the Saints, and coach Dick Nolan said "we will sink or swim with these fellows. They have done of late what we expected earlier, and naturally, now we'll expect them to be as good every week."

Nolan, while praising his defensive troops, said not to forget "the whole gang." That would be linebackers Dave Wilcox, Frank Nunley and Skip Vanderbundt and backs Jimmy Johnson, Bruce Taylor, Mel Phillips and Rosey Taylor.

IN THE CLOUDS

It's been difficult for Nolan and his coaching aides to bring the 49ers out of the clouds in practice this week.

Beating Los Angeles is a big thing for San Francisco, and isn't easily forgotten.

"We've had some problems," said Nolan, "but nothing we couldn't handle. New Orleans has won only one of three but that's a better club than the record shows. We can't look back, as good as the victory over Los Angeles was. The club that looks back may forget to look ahead."

The oddsmakers have installed the 49ers, tied for first in the NFL's Western Division race wtih the Rams at 3-1, 10 point favorites over the Saints, who are 1-3.

The Saints, who go into Sunday's tilt without defensive end Dave Long and tight end Ray Poage, came up with their best offensive show of the season last Sunday while bowing to St. Louis, 24-17.

Edd Hargett took over at quarterback for New Orleans in that one and completed 13 of 38 for 220 yards. The Saints also gained 222 yards on the ground for a total offense of 342 yards. Dave Parks, an ex-49er, snagged seven passes for 114 yards and a TD.

NO INTERCEPTIONS

John Brodie, the veteran San Francisco quarterback, leads National Conference passers with no interceptions in 99 attempts and a nearly 67 completion average.

As good as Brodie has been this year it's the defense, though, that has made the difference.

"We are doing things now we never did before," Nolan said of the defense.

The fact the 49ers are carrying four ends and four tackles indicates Nolan's emphasis on defense.

"With that many men (linemen) available we can always have fresh players in the game," Nolan said. "Late in the game it makes a difference."

In the Rams game Nolan shuttled his ends and tackles almost on every play. As a result, Gabriel never was able to concentrate on any one man to wear him down.

Hindman injured his leg in the Los Angeles game and will not be able to play against the Saints. Offensive guard Randy Biesler and Wilcox are questionable but more than likely will see some action. Biesler has a pinched nerve in his back and Wilcox a banged up knee.

Preston Riley, the swift rookie from Memphis State, once again will start at wide receiver in place of the recuperating Dick Witcher. Riley lost a couple of teeth in practice this week. Witcher's problem is a sore shoulder.

Brodie, after last week's game against Los Angeles, has completed 1,936 career passes, just 64 short of 2,000, a plateau reached previously only by Johnny Unitas, Y. A. Tittle and Sonny Jurgensen.

Kickoff for Sunday's game is 1:05 and a crowd of 50,000 is anticipated.

O's Won't Rest On Laurels, Eye Trade Mart

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The world champion Baltimore Orioles made it to the top through a strong farm system and some key trades and they intend to stay there the same way.

Although the Orioles were still basking in the glow of their World Series victory Friday, some were already looking toward next season and thinking about some changes that may be made.

The Orioles are not a standpat team and do intend some changes in the roster before next April.

"There are going to be some trades," a spokesman said.

First of all the Orioles want a first line catcher, a fellow who can play every day. For the past two years the catching duties have been split between Andy Etchebarren and Elrod Hendricks but neither was able to keep the job permanently.

The Orioles may solve two problems at once by converting Merv Rettenmund from an outfielder into a catcher.

The hard hitting Rettenmund has to play somewhere and all the outfield positions are locked up for a while by Don Buford, Paul Blair and Frank Robinson. Playing part time, Rettenmund hit .322 this year with 18 homers and he did some catching in spring training.

If he can't make it as a catcher then the Orioles may go after someone using one or two of their good young prospects as trade bait. And they have plenty of good young prospects.

In fact the Orioles' farm system produced every one of the players in the starting lineup and the starting pitching rotation except Frank Robinson, Don Buford and Mike Cuellar. For nine years in a row the combined record of the Oriole farm clubs has been over .500 a record no other system can match.

In addition to a catcher the Orioles are looking for another relief pitcher as insurance against some wear showing in their bullpen next year. Eddie Watt, Pete Richert and Dick Hall were the mainstays this year but Hall is 40 and the other two have seen a lot of work over the past two seasons.

The Orioles don't have any really strong immediate pitching prospects in their farm system so to get a relief pitcher they will have to trade.

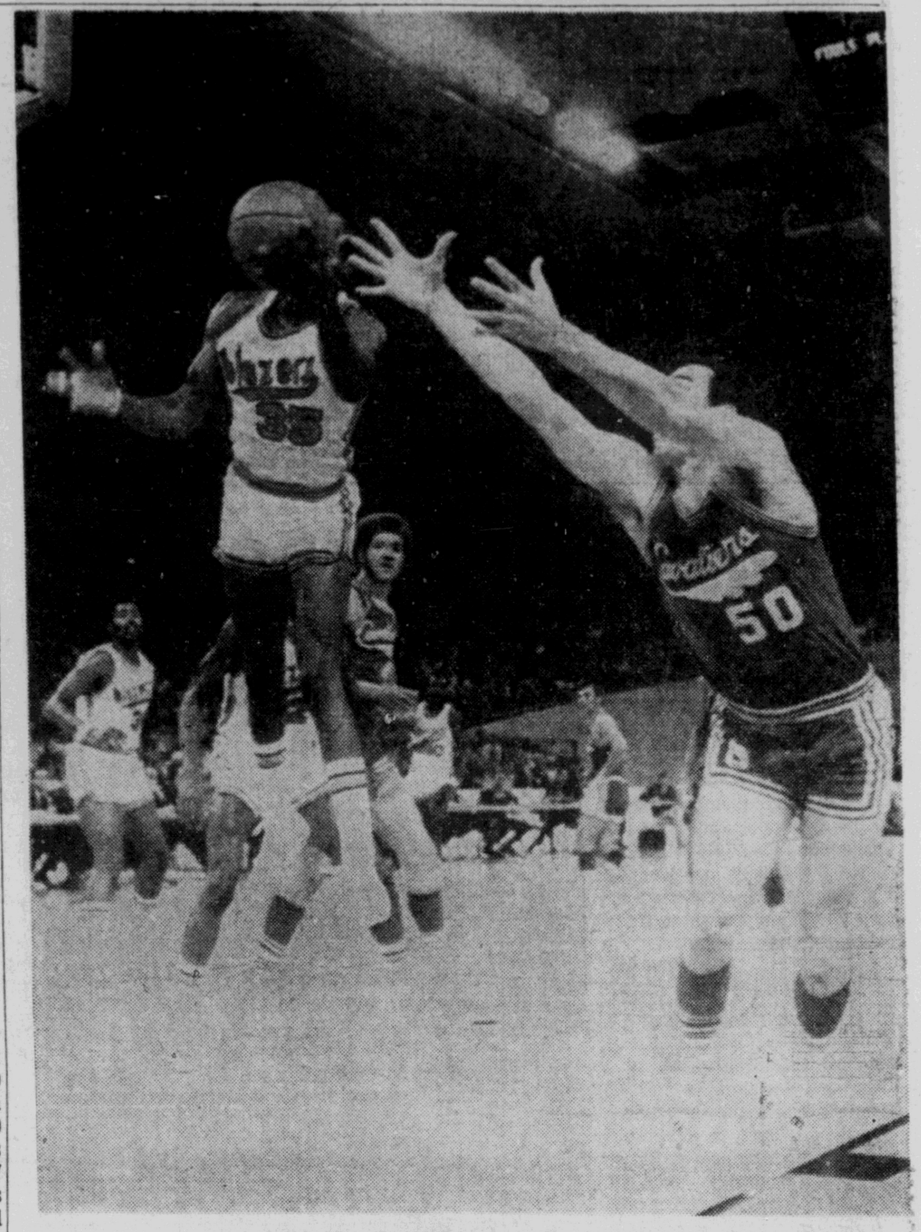
They have plenty to offer other teams. In a trade for a top catcher and a relief pitcher the Orioles might offer a combination drawn from the list of names of Curt Motton, a seldom used but hard hitting outfielder, Chico Salmon, a good utility man, Jim Hardin and Tom Phoebus, both adequate starting pitchers, Dave Leonhard and Marcelino Lopez, spot relief pitchers who didn't see much action this year and a number of players in their minor leagues. Rettenmund might also go in the right deal.

Three players the Orioles are almost sure to keep, however, are Bob Grich, an outfielder who spent half of this year on the bench after hitting over .300 at Rochester, Terry Crowley, a natural hitter who batted .260 as a part timer with the Orioles and Don Baylor, who hit .327 with 22 homers and 107 RBI's at Rochester. Crowley and Baylor are outfielders and are expected to replace Buford and Frank Robinson some time in the future.

Harry Dalton, the Orioles' personnel director, is a shrewd trader. He got Mike Cuellar for Curt Blefary and will be looking hard this winter to make a similar trade.

But he knows it won't be as easy. The Orioles got Frank Robinson from Cincinnati for Milt Pappas and two players no one can remember. They got Buford for Luis Aaparicio and they made that Cuellar trade.

"Nobody's going to trade us another starting pitcher now," a spokesman said, "but we may get a reliever."



BLAZING A TRAIL IN OREGON

Cleveland's Len Chappell (50) reached in vain for ball taken by Portland Trailblazers' Ed Manning in first quarter of their National Basketball Association game in Portland last night. It was the Portland team's debut as Oregon's first major league team and the Trailzers won it, 115-112.

Fast, Explosive San Rafael, Tam Gridders Vie Tonight

San Rafael and Tamalpais, the fastest and most explosive football teams in the Marin County Athletic League, both will be trying to get back on the winning tract when they collide tonight, 8 o'clock, at San Rafael High School.

In games last Saturday night, Tam lost to defending MCAL champion Terra Linda while San Rafael bowed to Napa in a non league game.

But the Bulldogs have won their only league game to date, and a win tonight would keep them a half game behind Terra Linda.

Both the Indians and San Rafael rank high in the league offensively. The Bulldogs are first with 265 total yards in their only game, and Tam rates third with a two game average of 181 yards.

The Indians, who defeated Redwood in their league opener and have a league record of a win and a loss, will be counting on the rushing of halfbacks Bill Washington and Clifford Hall, who rank second and fourth among league rushers. But while they have been exceptional on offense, Tam's dynamic duo have been unbelievable on defense. Hall has two interceptions in league action one in each game, and Washington has one, which he ran back for a touchdown against Redwood. In addition, Hall has run back a kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown against Terra Linda.

San Rafael doesn't do too badly on offense either. Mark Farrar, the Bulldogs' fullback, leads the MCAL in rushing even though he only has one game under his belt while everyone else in the top five has two. Farrar gained 163 yards in San Rafael's 12-3 win over Novato.

Farrar isn't the Bulldogs' best runner, however. That title belongs to Scott Duncan, who has gained 375 yards in four games this year, and has scored at least one touchdown in each game. Don't be surprised if his name appears among the top rushers soon.

San Rafael, according to coach Bob Muster, is a completely healthy team, while Tam is still without the services of fullback Mark Costello and tackle Van Westerbeke.

Chicago Ace Sayers Out For The Season

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Bears star running back Gale Sayers will undergo surgery on his injured left knee Wednesday and will be out of the lineup for the rest of the season.

The Bears announced the surgery Friday after Oklahoma City orthopedic specialist Dr. Donald O'Donoghue concurred with Dr. Theodore Fox, the Bears team physician, that Sayers' ligament injury would not respond to treatment.

Fox said Sayers' injury was due to a "stretching of a posterior cruxiafe ligament" and that he did not believe it would respond to treatment.

Robin Malm scored both Napa touchdowns on runs of four and one yards while Petaluma rallied on the arm of quarterback Dan Hart who threw a 45-yard touchdown pass to end Don Billing in the fourth quarter. Hart also passed to Chuck Pippus for the two-point conversion.

Petaluma had another try for a score in the closing minutes but Hart was unable to find his receivers.

Packers Meet Rams In NFL Headliner

By FRED MCMANE
UPI Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers are finally getting around to honoring quarterback Bart Starr Sunday, and all the Los Angeles Rams are hoping is that they don't become one of the gifts.

Starr, who has quarterbacked Green Bay for 15 seasons, is being feted with a testimonial dinner and a special day for his outstanding contribution to the cussess of the Parkers over the years. The Packers have won five National Football League championships and two Super Bowl titles under Starr's leadership.

President Nixon, pro football commisioner Pete Rozelle and members of the 1962 Packers' championship team are expected to attend Sunday's game to pay homage to Starr.

"The Packers are strong," says Rams' safety Ed Meador. "If we do what we did last Sunday (against San Francisco), we're going to get beat again. And in this league, you can't afford to lose more than one . . . or at the most, two games."

The Packers were clobbered by Detroit in their seaon opener but have rebounded to win three in a row and are in a three-way tie with Minnesota and Detroit for first place in the NFC's Central Division. The Rams won their first three but were beaten by the Forty-Niners last week and are tied with San Francisco for first in the Western Division.

Physically, the Rams shape up better for Sunday's game. The Packers have lost linebacker Dave Robinson for the season with a ruptured Achilles tendon and defensive tackle Kevin Hardy is still questionable because of an injured knee. The Rams, on the other hand, expect to have running back Larry Smith return to the lineup. Smith has been out with a pulled hamstring muscle. The game is rated a tossup.

In other Sunday games, Detroit is at Cleveland, Dallas at Minnesota, Baltimore at the New York Jets, New Orleans at San Francisco, Kansas City at Cincinnati, Atlanta at Denver, San Diego at Chicago, Miami at Buffalo, St. Louis at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at Houston and the New York Giants at Boston. Washington is at Oakland in a Monday night game.

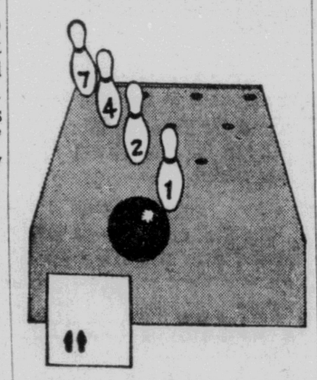
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



There is no surefire method of converting the 1-2-4-7 spare. But your best bet is to hit the headpin lightly and let the ball bounce off and touch all the other pins. The danger, obviously, is missing the headpin altogether. However, this is a better method than throwing a strike ball and hoping to get all four pins in falling-domino fashion.

'300' Bowler Walker Still Has Hot Hand

Stan Walker, still fresh from rolling a 300 game two weeks ago, again found the conditions at Greenbrae Lanes to his liking and rolled a 722 three-game series to lead all bowling scores for the week.

That gives the 37-year-old bowler consecutive series of 745 and 722, a two-week average of 244 per game.

Two 702s were rolled during the last week's bowling action, Fred Lindskog rolling one at Greenbrae Lanes and Mike Weddell the other at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

Leading the women's scores again was Penny Tauscher, a blisteirng 684 series on games of 244, 236 and 204 in the Women's Classic at Country Club. Judy Griggs rolled a 640 series at Greenbrae.

Top junior score for the week was Wayne Ziegler's 647 at Greenbrae.

Today is the final day for entries in the Marin County Women's 600 Club sixth annual Queens Tournament, scheduled this year at Greenbrae Lanes, Oct. 24-25. Entries, at $10 each, can be given to Sylvia Knutson, Pat Weddell, Mitzie Brown or Bea Hoffmann. Deadline is midnight tonight.

MacKay Scores Another Upset In Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—Unseeded Barry Mackay of Ross, Calif., scored his second upset victory in as many days, eliminating seventh-seeded Charles Pasarell Friday in the $25,000 Thunderbird Open tennis tournament.

Mackay, who advanced to the quarterfinals with a victory over Arthur Ashe Thursday, ousted Pasarell 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Mackay's victory assured him of a berth in today's semifinals against another unseeded player, Jim Osborne of Honolulu. Osborne defeated Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodes, the No. 4 seed, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 Thursday.

In other quarterfinal matches, Stan Smith, seeded second, beat Tom Edlefson of Los Angeles 6-2, 5-7, 7-6 and Bob Carmichael of France, the No. 3 seed, eliminated Frank Froehling, Coral Gables, Fla., 6-4, 6-2.

Rancho Cotate Upset By Analy

Rancho Cotate High School's Cougars failed on all all-out bid for a two-point conversion in the fourth quarter and were upset by the Analy Tigers, 7-6, last night at Petaluma in a North Bay League football game.

Analy took a 7-0 lead in the third period on a seven-yard pass from Tony Schimetz to Don Clark and Clark's place kick for the extra point.

Rancho Cotate came back in the fourth period when fullback Mike Wlodarczky ripped off a 77-yard touchdown run. An incomplete pass for the two-point conversion spelled doom for the Cougars of Rohnert Park.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

Those born today are under the sign of Libra.:

On this day in history:

In 1777 British Gen. John Burgoyne surrendered his forces to the Americans at Saratoga, N.Y., in one of the great turning points of the Revolutionary War.

In 1931 bootlegger and racketeer Al Capone was convicted of income tax evasion by a federal court in Chicago and sentenced to 11 years in prison.

In 1933 Albert Einstein arrived in the United States, a refugee from Nazi Germany. The famed scientist later became a citizen of the United States.

In 1945 Juan Peron staged a coup and took over the government of Argentina. He was dictator of the country for 10 years.

A thought for today: Scientist Albert Einstein said, "As long as there are sovereign nations possessing great power, war is inevitable."

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Good Bridge Player Must Be Top Mathematician, Too

People often express the opinion that a good bridge player must be a good mathematician. "That's perfectly true," I usually agree. "A good bridge player must be able to count up to 13. But sometimes it's enough if he can count up to nine or 10. But that's more mathematics than most people can master."

FIRST TRIP

In today's hand South was no mathematician. He won the first trick with the jack of hearts and started on the diamonds with the ace and then a low diamond to dummy's jack.

East won with the queen of diamonds and returned a heart to dummy's ace. Declarer cashed dummy's king of diamonds and discovered that the suit was not going to make him a rich man.

NO RE-ENTRIES

Since there were no re-entries to dummy, South had to abandon the diamonds. He tried a club finesse, losing to the queen. Back came another heart, and South found that he had only eight tricks: three hearts, two diamonds and three clubs. Down one.

FIRST STEP

The first step of a mathematically inclined bridge player is to count his tricks. South sees that the opening lead gives him three sure hearts and that he has two sure diamonds and two sure clubs for a total of seven easy tricks.

South needs two additional tricks for his contract and can get them from the spades. Instead of tackling the diamonds, South should lead a low spade at once. West takes the king of spades and leads a heart to the ace. Declarer knocks out the ace of spades and then runs his nine tricks in perfect safety.

SANTA BARBARA — A network linking six universities to the UCSB Computer Center was recently established to improve chemistry education, according to the project director, Dr. David C. Harris of the UCSB chemistry department.

Co-sponsoring the project are the National Science Foundation, UCSB, and the six participating universities. With the addition of three more universities in the near future, the network will include the University of Missouri, Illinois Institute of Technology, Georgia Institute of Technology, Beloit College (Wisc.), Louisiana State University, Washington State University, Florida State University, University of Pittsburgh and the University of Minnesota.

The Editor's Notebook

When Will 'In' People Learn Smoking Stinks?

Today's newspaper is tomorrow's garbage wrapper.

So goes the old saying.

If a newspaper writer's head ever tends to swell, he has only to be reminded of the old saying. His ego is quickly deflated.

On rare occasions a reader will do something to salve the chronically wounded ego of a newspaper writer.

Such a reader of the I-J is Howard B. Saunders of San Anselmo.

He reports that for five years he has been passing out copies of a piece that appeared in this space back in 1965. Now he has written to say that piece deserves reprinting.

It is a pleasure to comply with his request. Here is the "Editor's Notebook" column which appeared here Jan. 16, 1965:

THE MEMBERS OF MARIN'S Inter-agency Committee on Smoking and Health are facing a tough job.

As participants in the activities of such health agencies as the Heart Association, the Cancer Society and the T.B. Association, they are well aware of the long-range likelihood that continued smoking will ruin the good health of the smoker.

But smoking is "in" nowadays. It is equated with sophistication.

THE COMMITTEE MEMBERS must at times feel like loyal WCTU supporters in the late 1920s and early '30s. They must feel they are battling a relentless tide against them.

On every hand there is pressure for smoking. TV commercials extoll the benefits of it. So do the beautiful color ads in the slick magazines and in the Sunday rotogravure sections.

Offering a cigarette has come to be considered a warm, friendly gesture.

Clergymen smoke. Doctors smoke. Teachers smoke. Mothers smoke. Fathers smoke. Sisters and brothers smoke. And, according to TV commercials and magazine ads, romance is somehow encouraged as sweethearts smoke.

HOW, IN THIS atmosphere, can the Marin Interagency Committee on Smoking and Health hope to accomplish anything constructive?

More than 300 years ago John Milton wrote (in his "Areopagitica") "Let her and Falsehood grapple, who ever knew Truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter?"

Since the committee has Truth on its side — along with reason and the facts — the committee could fail to win the final decision only by quitting too soon.

WHAT IS THE TRUTH which the committee can depend upon as the weapon that assures ultimate success?

The truth is that scientific investigation, verified by the top health authorities of the national government, has found cigarette smoking in particular and tobacco use in general to be harmful to health.

The association between cigarettes and respiratory cancer has been dramatically shown for everyone to see in authoritative governmental health reports.

SMOKING IS A FILTHY habit. When non-smokers with normally sensitive olfactory nerves find themselves in close quarters with a smoker — male or female — the smoker's odor is strongly offensive. In short, the smoker stinks. His office stinks. His car stinks. His clothes stink. His home stinks. His ash trays stink.

This is sophistication?

ACTUALLY, DOCTORS WHO are most acutely aware of the health hazards of smoking show one of the largest ratios of individuals who have disciplined themselves to break the smoking habit.

Weaklings continue to smoke. Only the strong can kick the habit. How can smoking really be "in" under such circumstances?

Borrowing some of the favorite terminology of the sophisticate (more accurately, the psuedo-sophisticate), smoking is evidence of emotional immaturity.

Race For Arkansas Governor Shows Change In Southern Politics

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

LITTLE ROCK — Vivid evidence of changing southern politics is emerging here in Arkansas.

A nearly total transformation of political thinking is in the making.

For the first time since President Eisenhower sent troops to desegregate Little Rock Central High School, both Democratic and Republican parties are presenting Arkansas voters with new-breed candidates for governor. Both look to the future, not to the past. They are not wrangling over integration and are not trying to stimulate racial prejudice.

That's something. That's a very great deal. That is the shape of political things to come elsewhere in the South.

THE CONSEQUENCE is that GOP Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller is in some trouble in his bid for a third term. He no longer has the easy target of an Orval Faubus or another in his image.

The reasons for his trouble reveal the remarkable change in Arkansas which only two years ago gave its presidential vote to George Wallace.

Winthrop Rockefeller's reelection is not in doubt today because he has failed — but because he has succeeded. He has succeeded in winning such substantial and sustained approval from Arkansas voters for his kind of progressive, modern-minded government that the Democratic party finally decided it had no present — and no future — unless it did likewise.

IT DID LIKEWISE by the uprising of Arkansas Democratic voters. After 16 years of Faubus and Faubus-type candates, Democratic voters in this state demanded a complete break with the past — and got it.

They forced Faubus into a run-off in the Democratic primary, then turned decisevly against him and everything he stood for by giving the nomination to a 44-year-old small-town lawyer whose only elective offices had been on the local school board and city attorney of Charleston, Ark. (population 1,353).

Ever heard of Dale Bumpers? The fact is that few Arkansans ever had. He was one of the six candidates to challenge Faubus, and one of the higher estimates was that he might get one per cent of the vote.

He ran second to Faubus, who got only 36 per cent, but in the run-off the revolt of Arkansas Democrats produced nearly 60 per cent of the vote for Bumpers. He was, in effect, telling the Democratic voters that they could have a Democratic governor pretty much like Winthrop Rockefeller has been for the past four years.

IT REMAINS to be seen whether Bumpers can make it against Rockefeller as he did against Faubus. It will be harder. He was riding the tide of widespread revulsion against what the Democratic party had been offering Arkansas for nearly two decades.

He is radically different from anything the Democratic Party has offered for a long time.

But he is not radically different from Rockefeller, except that he hasn't the experience in public life or the record of achieving any of the reforms he advocates.

Where he has a record, it has been good. He player a part in encouraging the desegregation of the first southern school district (his home town) after the Supreme Court decision in 1954 and three years before Faubus put racial prejudice ahead of the Constitution in 1957.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Can't Be Unfair, So Stop Eating

Since we deal exclusively at Lucky's Fairfax market, my family have decided to stop eating entirely, because a sad, forlorn looking man, with a sign on his shoulder, is picketing this market and advising customers that Lucky's are unfair to this man's union because nobody in Lucky's will help him throw rocks through the windows of the Independent-Journal plant in San Rafael.

Now that we have decided to stop eating, we're not entirely sure who WE are unfair to, but anyhow.

One Who Cared; One Who Didn't

On Oct. 14, my white Puli sheepdog, Sean, was hit by a car on Center Boulevard in San Anselmo. The driver continued on his way, leaving Sean injured by the side of the road.

A young man driving by sometime later saw Sean and picked him up. He took him first to the nearest veterinarian, but he was operating on another animal so he took him on to the Fairfax Veterinary Clinic. They took him in immediately and did all they could for Sean, but he died on the operating table.

Fortunately, they took the young man's name and I have been able to thank him for his concern and efforts personally by phone. Thank you again, Fred Crockrell, for your concern for life.

Everyone who has lost their dog or cat in such a way has known the shock and grief an animal lover experiences.

May the person who hit Sean someday in some way realize that another life, be it human or animal, especially in time of need, is worth involvement.

Officials Know Problems— But Do Not Solve Them

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Have you ever seen something bad happening in your town and wished you could show it to the mayor and demand to know why something wasn't being do to fix it?

Joe Mack Jr., a veteran taxi driver and fledgling newsman recently did something very much like that. He took a group of highranking District of Columbia officials and some of his UPI colleagues on a tour of "the other Washington," the one most tourists never see. He showed them uncollected trash, abandoned and vandalized public housing units, pot-holed streets, air-polluting power plants — the whole picture of city blight.

THE CITY OFFICIALS did not seem to be men who didn't care. They spoke with bitterness about their inability to get money from Congress to make the national capital city into the "showcase" that presidents have been talking about for years.

And they gave explantaions for each fouled up example of urban decay that came into view: this bridge was patched and bumpy because the river crossing that will permit traffic to be diverted so it can be fixed right isn't completed yet; that housing project is choked with trash because its owners have neglected their legal obligations to arrange its removal; this body of water (the Washington Tidal Basin) is disgustingly polluted because someone in Maryland or Virginia is dumping sewage into the Potomac River upstream. Plus, the explanaton that this or that problem is "under study."

Obviously, the city officials were aware of the problems (and said they knew of even worse examples). And they had plausible reasons why each had not been solved.

EXCEPT THAT the problems have not been solved. Except that the people who live with them every day can't get a personal explanation from the housing director or the highway chief. Except that some people believe the explanations are excuses, to be described in one of those short, barnyard terms that isn't supposed to be uttered in polite company. Except that some people don't believe anything will ever be done.

Now this is a different kind of problem. It has to do with the fragile fabric of trust and belief that makes it possible for governments to operate without holding guns on the people. If the people believe the government will not or cannot solve their problems, the government is in a lot of trouble.

Yet, despite the demonstrable capacity of the subject to turn off people, reform may be the only alternative to violence on a scale not seen since 1860-65. Except for the unlikely possibility that dissent will wither or the unacceptable option of killing it, the solution is for government to start solving the people's problems faster and better. If government as set up now can't do that, the obvious first step is to fix government.

THE DEFENSE Department has worked out ways to respond to missile attack within seconds. Is it impossible for a city to figure out how to collect garbage twice a week? Is it really necessary to spend five years in Washington checking urban renewal proposals? Must a person charged with breaking the law always wait months or even years for trial?

Some governmental reform will cost money — for more garbage trucks and collectors, for more judges. Some will save money — for less paper shuffling, regulation writing and memo exchanging. You really can't count on reform to reduce your taxes, but it might make them better spent. And it certainly might do something toward making government a part of the solution instead of yet another problem.

The Great American Rat Race, Or Why Kids Have To Study

WASHINGTON — One of the complaints the kids voice today is that parents put too much pressure on them. I accidentally listened to such a discussion the other evening at Goldfarb's house.

Young Goldfarb, aged 16, told his father he saw no reason to study such irrelevant subjects as math, language, science, history and English.

"Who needs it?" young Goldfarb said.

"You need it," his father shouted.

"Why?" young Goldfarb demanded.

"BECAUSE OF Springfield. If I don't push you, Springfield's kid is going to get ahead of you in school. How would you like that?"

"Who cares if Springfield's son gets ahead of me?" young Goldfarb said.

"Springfield does, that's who," the older Goldfarb replied. "Oh, wouldn't he love it if he could say his kid was doing better than Goldfarb's."

"You mean to say you've been leaning on me all this time because you're in a contest with Springfield?" young Goldfarb said.

"I DIDN'T start it," the older Goldfarb said. "It was Springfield who began pushing his kid first. Years ago, I heard Springfield tell his kid, 'Never take second best. Go for all the marbles. Get out in front and show them what you can do.'

"When I heard this, I had no choice but to make you work your tail off. If you're mad at anyone, you should be mad at Springfield."

"But Springfield's kid doesn't want to compete with me any more than I want to compete with him. Why don't I call him up and tell him if he knocks off beating his brains out, I'll knock off beating my brains out?"

"THAT WOULD be just fine," old Goldfarb said. "But what about Ascarelli's kid?"

"What's Ascarelli's kid got to do with it?"

"You think Ascarelli is going to stop pushing his kid just because you two let up? And how about Bernheim's son? Bernheim has already announced his kid is going to Yale. You want Bernheim's kid to go to Yale and you wind up at some community college in Florida?"

"But don't you understand, Pop?" young Goldfarb said. "Ascarelli's son couldn't care less if he got ahead of us, and Bernheim's son doesn't give a damn whether he gets in Yale."

OLD MAN Goldfarb got up and took his son over to the window and pointed out to the flickering apartment lights across the Potomac.

"If it was just one springfield or one Ascarelli or one Bernheim, I would say, 'Enjoy yourself; don't break your back.' But out there where you see those lights are thousands and thousands of Springfields and Ascarellis and Bernheim, and do you know what they're saying to their kids tonight? They're saying 'The only thing I want you to do is to beat Goldfarb!'

"All over America, the Springfields, Ascarellis and Bernheims are vowing to beat you out of a job, a sale, a taxi, a contract, a home, a wife. And do you know why they're doing it?"

"No," said young Goldfarb. "I don't know why."

"BECAUSE at this very moment they know I'm telling you to get them before they get you."

"But if you stop, maybe they will," young Goldfarb said.

"It's too late," the older Goldfarb said. "Springfield, Ascarelli and Bernheim are too ambitious for their sons to quit now. So be a nice boy and go do your homework."

Two Men Named Flournoy

Two men named Flournoy are candidates for state offices in the Nov. 3 election.

The name is unusual enough to make the coincidence surprising. It has also given rise to some confusion — which may even have contributed to the nomination of one of the Flournoys.

Both are Republicans. Both are from Los Angeles County.

HOUSTON FLOURNOY of Claremont, the incumbent state controller, is seeking re-election. His operation of the controller's office has been free from scandal and almost free from criticism. He has backed — though without success — Assemblyman William T. Bagley's bills to remove inheritance tax appraisers from political appointment, and claims he has ruled out politics in his own appointments of these appraisers.

Houston Flournoy is opposed by Democrat Ronald B. Cameron, a certified public accountant who appears qualified for the controller's job. But since Flournoy has performed well, he deserves re-election.

THE SECOND FLOURNOY is James Flournoy of Los Angeles, candidate for secretary of state. Confusion of him with Houston Flournoy in the minds of voters may have contributed to his victory in a seven-way Republican primary race.

Principal duties of the secretary of state in California deal with supervision and conduct of elections. The office is "up for grabs" this year because of death of the longtime incumbent, Frank M. Jordan.

JAMES FLOURNOY is a Negro attorney whose principal political activity heretofore has been in Republican party work. But he has among his endorsers Secretary Jordan's widow, who was active head of the office during her husband's long illness and an unsuccessful candidate for the nomination.

This indicates that Flournoy (James Flournoy, that is) can be expected to carry on the office in the manner of his predecessor. This would seem to entitle the second Flournoy to the nod over his Democratic opponent, Edmund G. Brown, Jr., attorney son of the former governor.

Two Flournoys in California state government might be a bit confusing. But it looks like a good idea.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to the contractors who are providing trucks, the service groups coordinating the job, and all others involved in the "Novato Trash Bash" today and Oct. 25. This is a civic effort that deserves emulation.

BRICKBATS to Teamsters Union members who are attempting a reign of terror in Marin County by trying to intimidate other members of their own union who are not involved in any strike.

BOUQUETS to the winning Baltimore Orioles, and to the losing Cincinnati Reds, too, for a baseball World Series that gave us a much more pleasant type of competition than most of the uptight arguments filling too many columns of news these days.

BRICKBATS to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for venturing into "joint venture" financing for the Corte Madera branch library to avoid going to the voters for approval of a bond issue.

BRICKBATS to all those candidates who resort to dirty campaign tactics. None of them is fit to be elected.

Red Chief Remains A Violent Apostle

EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of this assessment of what Red China is up to in Indochina and the Middle East is a veteran among "China Watchers." Stationed in Hong Kong where he is UPI bureau manager, Charles R. Smith has been covering Asian affairs, with emphasis on Red China, since 1957. He was among the first to report on the Chinese "Cultural Revolution" of the 1960s.

By CHARLES R. SMITH

HONG KONG (UPI)—Mao Tse-Tung is an apostle of violence who remains unchanged in a changing world.

The 76-year-old Chinese Communist Party chairman is more convinced than ever that support of armed revolution—which includes limited wars in today's terminology—is the main means for the advancement of communism and China's influence, even at the risk of a major war.

The turn of events in Indochina and the Middle East, two key areas of Chinese trouble-making, have reinforced Mao's belief that this is the correct way, according to diplomats and China specialists based here and in Peking.

"The danger of a new world war still exists and the people of all countries must be prepared. But revolution is the main trend in the world today," Mao declared in a rare public statement last May.

By continuous urging of others in such places as Indochina and the Middle East to "dare to struggle", and helping them with arms where possible. Mao shows that he still adheres firmly to the doctrine of violence that he advocated in one of the first major articles he ever wrote.

"A revolution is not a dinner party, or writing an essay, or painting a picture, or doing embroidery; it cannot be so refined, so leisurely and gentle, so temperate, kind, courteous, restrained and magnanimous", Mao wrote in 1927. "A revolution is an insurrection, an act of violence . . ."

When he wrote that 43 years ago, Mao was speaking of the embryonic revolution he and his Communist comrades were pursuing in China.

Since the success of the revolution, in 1949, Mao has broadened his horizons. He speaks now of world revolution — "wars of liberation" "people's war" and other forms of limited war—with Peking as the center and him as the chief prophet.

Promoting and supporting such wars against American interests, Mao contends, is the best way to undermine the United States and sap the strength of the country that he considers the main enemy of China and Communism.

"People's war is a magic weapon most effective in dealing with U.S. Imperialism and its lackeys," Mao says.

Such wars waged since the end of World War II, Mao said earlier this year, have put the United States into a position where it is "beset with troubles internally and externally, with utter chaos at home and extreme isolation abroad."

Mao's advocation of such wars has brought him into sharp conflict with the leaders of the Soviet Union, who have warned that such strategy runs the risk of provoking a wider war that would benefit no one.

Mao says, in effect: So what?

"With regard to the question of world war, there are but two possibilities: One is that the war will give rise to revolution and the other is that revolution will prevent the war," Mao asserts.

In his last public statement, entitled, "People of the World, Unite and Defeat the U.S. Aggressors and Their Running Dogs," Mao had this to say:

"In the world of today, who actually fears whom? It is not the Vietnamese people, the Laotian people, the Cambodian people, the Palestinian people, the Arab people or the people of other countries who fear U.S. imperialism; it is U.S. imperialism which fears the people of the world. It becomes panic-stricken at the mere rustle of leaves in the wind.

"Innumerable facts prove that a just cause enjoys abundant support while an unjust cause finds little support. A weak nation can defeat a strong, a small nation can defeat a big. The people of a small country can certainly defeat aggression by a big country, if only they dare to rise in struggle, take up arms and grasp in their own hands the destiny of their country. This is a law of history."

The coup d'etat in Cambodia last March, which led to the establishment of an exile government in Peking by deposed Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, gave China the initiative in the Indochina region so far as the Communist camp was concerned.

This came as China was just getting into her most significant, and successful, diplomatic campaign in more than five years.

The campaign was characterized initially by the return of Chinese ambassadors to many countries whose relations with China had soured during the cultural revolution that Mao launched almost five years ago.

Premier Chou En-Lai put the campaign in high gear with a visit to North Korea.

Since then, Chou has dispatched a large number of lower level delegations to other parts of Asia, Africa, Europe and the Middle East. At the same time, a steady stream of delegations from these areas has been coming to Peking. These included such disparate groups as a French delegation led by Andre Bettencourt and a Palestinian guerrilla mission headed by Yasser Arafat.

Chou has a briefcase full of invitations to visit countries in Asia, Africa and the Middle East. There are persisting rumors in Peking diplomatic circles that he is preparing to fulfill some of the invitations soon.

China's foreign policy now appears generally aimed at restoring relations all around and pursuing a more moderate course except for an implacable attitude towards the United States.

But the main thrust at the moment is to increase her influence in the Middle East.

Nothing in recent years has better demonstrated China's impotency in power politics away from her own borders than her inability to influence significantly the course of events in the Middle East, the world's hottest trouble spot.

To change this, the Chinese have embarked on what some diplomatic analysts describe as an "East Africa-Middle East strategy".

This involves building a solid base of diplomatic relations, bolstered by considerable aid spending, in countries along the northeastern seaboard of Africa and in the Middle East.

Key African countries involved in this strategy are Tanzania and Zambia, where China is building a 1,200-mile railroad, and the Somali Republic.

The main middle eastern countries are the Sudan, Syria, the Republic of Southern Yemen (where China is believed to be doing its main training of Arab guerrillas), and Iraq, which is believed to be the main channel for Chinese military aid to Palestinian guerrillas.

China has received delegations from and sent delegations to all of these areas during the past few months.

STILL SAME VIEWS — at 76, Mao Tse-tung, Chinese Communist Party chairman, is reported unchanged in a changing world. He is reportedly more convinced than ever that support of armed revolution — which includes limited wars in today's terminology — is the main means for advancement of his nation's influence. This picture taken last year shows him with another party leader, Lin Piao.

EVEN 'MORE ACTIVISM'

Canadian Society Fashions Goals From John Birchers

By DAVID COHEN

TORONTO (UPI) — "Chicago Seven" lawyer William Kunstler went on trial Tuesday on charges of assault brought on by two members of the Edmund Burke Society.

He pleaded innocent and the trial was adjourned to Nov. 30. Only one witness appeared at the trial's opening.

What, many will ask, is the Edmund Burke Society? Simply put, it is a 3-year-old rightwing group that describes itself as similar to the John Birch Society in the United States but says it is "more activist." Its members believe in "counter demonstration."

If there's a protest march in Toronto against the war in Vietnam, or a peace vigil outside the U.S. consulate, or a radical speaker addresses a meeting, Edmund Burkers will be there — waving flags, ready to fight for "western civilization and you!"

To anti-U.S. chants or songs such as "Give Peace a Chance," they roar back, "Reds out!", or "Kill the Viet Cong!" or, more recently, "Let Spiro speak!"

The Society was formed, according to one of its three founders and present chairman, Donald Andrews, 28, to warn Canadians their country was being driven by its politicans "along the Socialist trail."

The Society says that leftwing activities — protest marches, peace demonstrations, even rock festivals — are condoned, and used, by politicians to achieve this goal.

Andrews explained in an interview with UPI: "It's their way of creating pressure from the bottom of society to allow them to go further along the Socialist trail."

The Society decided on a program of "action and not just words" as a counterforce.

Much of its program has been educational. Members speak at city schools, show movies with titles such as "Anarchy U.S.A." "Revolution Underway" (a public outcry last year stopped the showing of this film by Toronto police), and invited speakers to meetings.

But the Burkers do more than talk. They criticize the John Birch Society, in the words of Edmund Burke Society public relations officer Jeff Goodall, 21, as being "strictly confidential — and that's not enough."

With a proud smile, Andrews told UPI, "I guess we have counterdemonstrated every major leftist demonstration in Toronto in the last three years." The results often have been violent and sometimes bloody.

In April at a banquet celebrating the centenary of Lenin's birth, attended by the Russian ambassador to Canada, Society members were present and refused to stand when a toast was proposed. In the fracas that followed, the Burkers and the Lenin-honorers fought it out with fists, chairs and bottles. The Society claimed one of its members was stabbed. Police said he fell on some broken glass.

On May 9, in a demonstration in front of the U.S. Consulate protesting the U.S. invasion of Cambodia and the student shootings at Kent State University the Society's counter-demonstrators clashed with the protesters. Eleven Burkers were arrested and one was led away with a bleeding scalp. Some 80 other demonstrators also were arrested.

Predictably, the Society made a showing June 22 at the University of Toronto's Convocation Hall where "Chicago Seven" lawyer Kunstler was speaking.

About 45 Burkers heckled Kunstler until he let one of them Paul Fromm, a 21-year-old student, come on the stage to speak. Opinions vary on what happened next. What is clear is that Kunstler emptied a water pitcher over Fromm's head and a melee broke out. Kunstler was thrown to the stage floor. Fromm was later found unconscious, and was taken to the hospital and released after treatment for minor injuries.

Fromm and another society member, Alan Overfield, also 21, both laid assault charges against Kunstler, and it is that case that is due to be heard here Oct. 13.

"The trial will be very important," said Burke publicist Goodall. "We will see if we can rely on the courts for justice."

The trial also promises to be a publicity bonanza for the Burkers.

"You have to be dramatic," said Andrews of the Kunstler incident. "You don't get anywhere discussing things over a cup of coffee.

"But we didn't go to the Kunstler thing looking for a fight. We could have held that stage—we had 45 members there—but only five of us were involved. We went there to heckle and maybe get five minutes to be heard."

Fromm, who is studying for a masters degree in medieval studies at the University of Toronto, founded the Society along with Andrews and an Ottawa school teacher, Leigh U. Smith, 31.

They say they took the name of the 18th Century English parliamentarian and philosopher Edmund Burke to symbolize their conservative attitudes.

Society critics have, however, pointed out that Burke's writings run contrary to a number of the society's stands. For instance, it argues that the Nixon administration is commiting "a kid of treason" by not bombing North Vietnam into submission and thus "win the war."

Burke once wrote, "The use of force is but temporary. It may subdue for a moment, but it does not remove the necessity of subduing again; and a nation is not governed, which is perpetually to be conquered."

Using such reasoning, Burke advised King George III to negotiate with the rebellious American colonists rather than try to suppress them by force.

"We use the name strictly as a symbol," said a society member, Jaanus Proos, 20. "Simply, we believe in individualism, hard work, a sense of history, morality, and personal pride. And we know that a price has to be paid for freedom."

The society was founded in March of 1967 because its founders, according to Burker literature, were "profoundly disturbed by the continuing career of Red imperialism, the official toleration of its fith column activities in Canada, and appeasement of that imperialism by our home-grown defeatists, unilateral disarmers and Quislings as well as by the unmistakeable drift on the part of the leadership ranks of our major parties . . ."

In 1968, the Society distributed a pamphlet entitled "East Wins Over Ottawa" that called Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau a dangerous leftist who had been in Moscow in 1952 and was opposed to Canada having nuclear weapons.

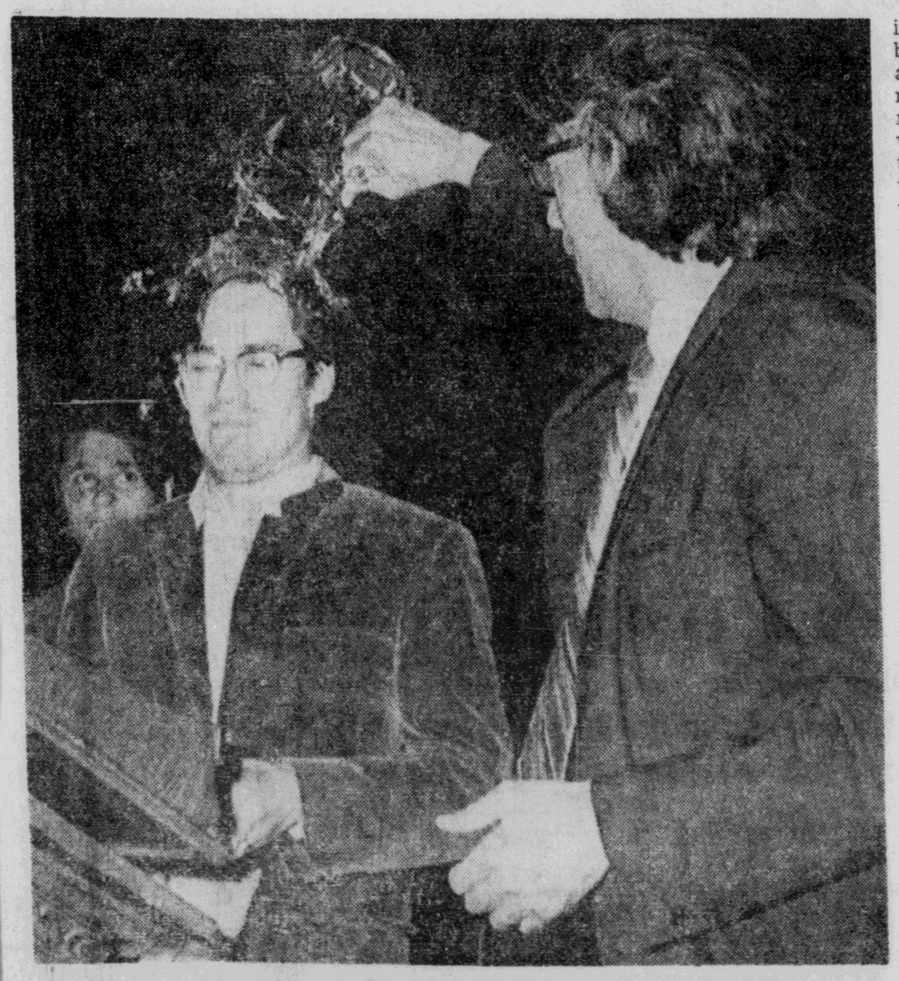
The Society refuses to say how many members it has. A recent newspaper estimate placed the number at 400, about 14 per cent of them women. "Headquarters" is a box in a post office in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough, where Andrews is a health inspector.

Governed by a council of nine, the Society has six chapters in Canada—two in Toronto, two in Montreal and one each in Edmonton and Vancouver. It puts out a monthly bulletin "Straight Talk."

The membership appears to be made up of a mixture of older Eastern Europeans and younger native-born Canadians. They come from all walks of life—enginners, professors, office works . . ." We don't discriminate on the basis of sex, religion or race," Andrews said.

Eastern Europeans, many of them immigrants from territories now in the orbit of the Soviet Union, make up 40 per cent of the membership according to Andrews.

The Society admits to having only a small number of Jews. "Most Jews are brainwashed with the idea that if you're anti-Communist you're a Nazi," Fromm said.



WATER ON A BURKE MEMBER — Chicago Seven attorney William Kunstler empties a pitcher of water on Paul Fromm, a member of the Edmund Burke Society at Toronto University forum. The society, a 3-year-old group, describes itself as similar to the John Birch Society in the United State.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Congress adjourned after passing a bill setting up a private corporation to run long-distance passenger trains. Senate opponents of the proposed amendment guaranteeing women equality had tacked on changes that probably would kill the measure. The President signed into law an anti-crime bill dealing with bombings and campus disorders. He vetoed a bill to limit broadcast spending by political candidates.

The Commerce Department reported the Gross National Product from July through September rose slightly despite the General Motors strike.

The National Highway Safety Bureau said more than 4,000,000 Fords and Mercurys built from 1965 through 1969 may have safety defects, but it did not have evidence to warrant a request for recall.

A Pentagon official said that it now appeared less likely Russia was planning to build a submarine base in Cuba.

The FBI arrested Angela Davis in a New York motel. She is the black former college instructor wanted in California on murder and kidnap charges in connection with a shootout in a San Rafael courthouse.

The United Nations began its 25th anniversary observance. Security was tight. The public was barred.

The Baltimore Orioles whipped the Cincinnati Reds four of five games to win the World Series.

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau invoked a special War Emergencies Act Friday to prevent further troubles that began with the kidnaping of two officials by French-Canadian separatists.

The FLQ, which has the goal of a separate nation for Frenchspeaking Quebec, demanded the release of 23 "political prisoners" in exchange for freedom for James R. Cross, a British diplomat, and Pierre Laporte, the provincial labor minister.

The move by Trudeau permits police to make arrests, searches and seizures without warrants and permits Trudeau to suspend civil liberties. More than 1,000 combat-equipped soldiers massed in Montreal as the prime minister invoked the act.

Canada this week also established diplomatic relations with Red China. Relations with Nationalist China were broken.

North Vietnam and the Viet Cong formally rejected President Nixon's peace proposal. But the U.S. team in Paris did not accept the rejection as final.

Nixon announced that 40,000 additional American troops would be pulled out of Vietnam by the end of the year—all part of the 150,000 to be withdrawn by next spring.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird ordered the chiefs of the armed forces to move toward an all-volunteer force. He hopes to abolish draft calls by July 1, 1973.

Reed School Trustees Hold Leader Session

The Reed School District board has met in closed session to decide its course of action in what one trustee termed "the crisis over our interim superintendent."

The board took no action as a result of the meeting, according to board chairman Gordon C. Wright, but decided to hold another closed meeting Oct. 26 to confer with its superintendent screening committee.

Wright confirmed yesterday that the meeting was to discuss "the crisis over the contract of (interim Supt. Stanley H.) Friese," on loan to Reed from the county schools office, where he is deputy superintendent.

Friese's contract, under which Reed pays $100 a day to the county board for his services, was to have extended to Dec. 31 but was cancelled Tuesday by County Supt. Virgil S. Hollis.

Hollis, in a letter to Wright, said he was taking the action "since the Reed board has felt it necessary to object so strenuously" to Friese's delivery of a report to the county board last week.

Wright said yesterday that Reed trustees "tried to persuade Hollis to change his mind, but our attempts were futile."

If Hollis does not reconsider, two choices are open to the Reed board. It can speed its search for a permanent successor to former Supt. Robert B. Gaw, although it probably could not find one before the Oct. 31 deadline set by Hollis for Friese's departure, or it could replace Friese with another interim superintendent.

Hollis suggested the second alternative in his letter to Wright.

At the Oct. 26 closed session, which will convene at 8 p.m. at Bel Aire School, trustees will confer with their 10-member screening committee set up last spring to interview applicants for superintendent.

Subdivision To Seek Crackdown On Nude Bathers

Property owners in the Bello Beach subdivision of Muir Beach want a county crackdown against nude bathing at public beaches.

Ernest E. Emig, who lives at Bello Beach, will ask the board of supervisors Tuesday for a county ordinance against disrobing in public.

In a letter to the board, Emig acknowledged that law enforcement agencies and courts have tried to control nudism but had been "completely ineffective this summer."

Although he said he had observed no more than a dozen nudists at any one time, "my neighbors tell me they have counted 200 at once."

The supervisors are scheduled to hear Emig's plea at 4:30 p.m.

Cotati Gets Good Deal For City Hall

An elated Cotati City Council has voted to purchase a section of Cotati School for a new city hall at a price far below what it had expected.

City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen said appraisers set the price at $3,-500. Previously, he had estimated the cost might be as high as $20,000.

Salfen said he is working out an agreement to acquire the older section of the school on a lease-purchase basis with payments spread over five years at a five per cent interest rate.

Salfen said the building could be bought outright, but that some funds must be set aside to repair the leaky roof. He said the repair work could cost more than the entire building.

The council, meeting Thursday, agreed that the Cotati School District could use two rooms for storage until city offices are relocated from rented quarters on East Cotati Avenue.

Salfen said he hoped the move could be made by Christmas and said the building will be painted green to distinguish it from the pink school building at the rear of the lot.

The Cotati City Council also:

PARKING — Heard Police Chief Tony Locarini request that vertical parking on La Plaza between West Sierra Avenue and Old Redwood Highway be changed to parallel parking for greater safety. Michael Ohannesian complained that six parking spaces in front of his business would be reduced to two. The council asked Locarini to present a diagram of the plan for study.

DOGS — Took under study a proposed ordinance that would extend the leash law to 24 hours rather than the present 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. The ordinance would also increase impound fees from a flat $5 rate to $5 the first time, $10 the second and $15 the third and succeeding times. It would also limit the keeping of large animals, such as horses and cows, to two per acre.

COMPLAINT — Heard Victor A. Fontes, 74 Benson Lane, complain that he has been bothered by thieves, rock tossers and noisy motorcycles and has not been receiving adequate police protection. The council said it would look into the problem.

There are four species of honey bees.

San Rafael Chamber 50 Years Old

Started By Few In 1920

By DOROTHY GARDINER

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce was founded half a century ago by a small group of Fourth Street merchants and professional men.

Next Friday the chamber's manager, staff, 16 directors, five officers, members and guests will celebrate the golden anniversary with a noon luncheon at the Holiday Inn.

The chamber's immediate goal is to unify the city's business districts and double the membership, declared Robert Nelson, a 25-year chamber veteran who took over the manager's job last April after the death of former manager, Glen Adair.

Nelson said he was "amazed" at the contributions of the chamber's officers and directors and praised President Larry P. Biancalana, a 35-year member, who donates at least five hours of worktime weekly and "is personally responsible for bringing in more new members than any other member."

BIANCALANA, Marin district sales supervisor for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., is also active in the United Bay Area Crusade and the San Rafael Kiwanis Club.

Both downtown San Rafael and the Chamber of Commerce have suffered difficulties during the past eight years, Nelson said. The chambers' 1962 membership of 441 dropped to 258 by the spring of this year. (The chamber is working to double to 516 by 1975 and Nelson happily reported 72 new members have been recruited this year.)

Business in downtown San Rafael has been adversely affected by car dealers moving to Southern Marin and other firms going to the Northgate area, Nelson observed.

The chamber not only lost members during the recent years, he added, but also suffered financial reverses. During the mid-1960s, he added, there was not enough money to hire a manager or pay the rent.

(The late Harry Albert, civic leader, chamber director and son of founder Jacob (Jake) Albert, built the chamber's office building at 824 Fifth Avenue in 1963, Nelson said. During the "depression" in the 1960s, the Albert Estate waived the rent.)

DURING the periods when the chamber was without a manager such men as investment broker Jesse J. France; architect Robert W.F. Severin; insurance executive Clifford S. Lund; Charles W. Try, manager of the J.C. Penney Co. and merchant Stanley K. Goldsmith, doubled their duties and worked both as presidents and volunteer managers, Nelson said.

The Chamber of Commerce is financed by its members "with about 60 or 70 per cent of downtown merchants belonging," according to Nelson. It operates

"Can't I Dryclean My Cashmere Sweater?"

Yes, you can put your cashmere sweater through a self-service drycleaning machine, but you may be unhappy about the result. After all, a cashmere sweater is too delicate to trust to anything but professional care.

There are a number of fragile fabrics which should not be tossed into an unmonitored machine. Among these are angora sweaters, silk suits and dresses, fur-trimmed pieces, chiffon, organdy, laces and nets.

Be careful of throwing flocked garments and those with metallic printed designs into a machine. Some dacron prints and printed sweaters, also, are too delicate for unskilled cleaning.

If you have any of the above garments to be cleaned, Miss I.N.P., you'll be wise to trust them in the hands of a professional drycleaner.

the members volunteering dues ranging "from $50 to $500."

The chamber has two fulltime employees, Nelson and Mrs. Marie Leonardi, secretary since 1958. One part-time office employee, Verle Honsinger, is also employed.

NELSON, a chartered life underwriter for Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co. and former Asst. San Rafael City engineer (1937-40) eyes the "development of the Courthouse Square as a revitalizing force for downtown San Rafael.

He also sees the joining of forces of the Northgate Shopping Center and downtown San Rafael as "an ecumenical movement" that will benefit the entire business community. (He hopes in the near future the chamber will have a president from the Northgate area.)

Predicting tremendous growth in the county and San Rafael during the next decade, he added, the chamber will need new members to help the city improve and develop the "proper economic climate."

For the past 50 years the Chamber of Commerce has worked to promote business, keep the community growing and make San Rafael a fine place to live, Nelson said.

Recently the Chamber of Commerce has turned its eyes toward education and is forming a new committee to help the schools, he added. ("Five consecutive bond issues for the schools have gone down to deon a $25,000 annual budget with $1,000 being paid by the city and feat without the aid of the chamber.")

ANOTHER new Chamber of Commerce group acts as "Court Watchers" volunteering time to sit in courtrooms to collect data that might eventually be used for judicial reform, he explained.

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce also has published a pamphlet, "Shoplifting Tips — A Guide for Merchants and Their Employees" and sponsored the backing for the recent publication of the "Guide to Youth and Parent," Nelson added.

The chamber also publishes and circulates literature listing general information about the county and city for newcomers and visitors. "We really are the front door of the community. We receive at least 30 telephone calls daily from callers looking for information," Nelson said.

When the Chamber of Commerce was organized by 14 men at an informal meeting at the old Elks Club on Aug. 23, 1920, both the chamber and San Rafael were far different than they are today.

San Rafael was a "nice little town" with a permanent population of 5,512 and a "floating" one of about "1,000," according to Mrs. Mae Kirner of San Rafael, widow of Guy Kirner, one of the chamber founders and first directors.

TODAY, according to a preliminary report of the federal census taken this year, 38,493 persons live in the city. In 1920 the city issued 600 business licenses. Today 2,900 are in use — a growth of 2,300 firms since the chamber's founding.

When Jake Albert, Sigfried (Sig) K. Herzog Sr., George V. Kaenel, Kirner and the others organized the chamber "more as a social group," Fourth Street was a mixture of old homes surrounded by picket fences, small stores, three banks and the towering Marin County Courthouse.

Fifth Avenue, now Marin's "Wall Street" was a residential street housing some of the city's most prosperous families in tall Victorian mansions.

Fourth Street's sidewalks were wider than the street. Hitching posts and water troughs still lined the thoroughfare and the horseless carriage was slowly being accepted.

VERY SLOWLY, according to Frank Healion of San Rafael, member of an old Marin family and former partner of George Kaenel in the real estate business. He remembers drivers on seeing approaching horses pulling their cars off the roadway, removing goggles, dusters and waiting patiently until the automobile-shy animals had passed out of sight.

(Kaenel along with Louis W. Becker Jr. owned the first Buick agency in San Rafael.)

The streets were lighted by electroliers hung every few feet. It was these old fixtures the young Chamber of Commerce first decorated for Christmas in the 1920s.

The chamber also launched a campaign to "spruce up the town," recalled longtime chamber member and former Marin County Superior Court Judge Carlos R. Freitas. Residents were asked to do away with their wire and picket fences that had been used to "keep the horses from getting in."

The "floating" population that Mrs. Kirner referred to came across the San Francisco Bay by ferry, transferred to the "electric" operated by the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co. out of Sausalito and were met at the Union Depot in San Rafael by carriages sent by the Hotel Rafael.

THIS 400-ROOM resort had been built above Belle Avenue near Grand Avenue in 1886 at a cost of $700,000 and was the city's biggest tourist attraction until it burned to the ground in December of 1928.

It was in this hotel's dining room on Dec. 16, 1920 that the Chamber of Commerce hosted its first event — a dinner dance.

The program, found in family mementos by Mrs. Aileen Ziegler of Greenbrae, daughter of Sig K. Herzog Sr., announced the founding president as Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy and M.T. Scott, secretary. The first directors included George Alpers, Joseph Block, Elwood S. Rake, R.H. Thayer, A.M. Newhall, Ralph Rogers and Kirner.

SAN RAFAEL "was hot as Hades," Mrs. Kirner recalled. The weather prompted many to "promenade" up and down Fourth Street "long after dinner." They often stopped by Hoover's Candy Store, operated by the Kirners at 501 Fourth Street, for a 10-cent ice cream soda.

The Kirners had moved to San Francisco from the midwest in 1902 and operated a candy store on Market Street until they lost it in the earthquake and fire of 1906. They moved to San Rafael five years later and bought Hoover's.

Mrs. Kirner vividly remembers working "16 hours a day" at a time when "five lamb chops could be bought for a dime and a girl helper was paid $8 a week."

The Kirners's daughter, Blanche, now Mrs. Carl Schieck of San Rafael recalled a carnival coming to town every year, pitching tents in a "great empty lot on Lootens Place between Fourth and Fifth." Youngsters armed with 25 cents visited the sideshows, touched a boa constrictor and rode the ferris wheel and merry-go-round.

ACROSS the street from Hoover's on the site now occupied by Macy's and Penny's, stood a row of stately old homes. A large white house on the corner had been the residence of Judge and Mrs. M.C. Dufficy, parents of the chamber's founding president.

Next door the county operated a detention home for juveniles under the charge of Tom O'Connell, county probation officer. According to Chamber President Larry P. Biancalana, this county official "didn't have anything to do."

In 1942 Jake Albert bought this parcel of land at Fourth and Court streets and erected the largest store in Marin, the Albert Department Store. This firm was sold to Macy's 10 years later but the Albert family still owns the real estate.

During a recent interview, Nelson commented that what San Rafael really needs now "is another Jake Albert and Sig Herzog." These early day businessmen invested in Fourth Street property and worked untiringly to help the community grow.

ALBERT'S DEPARTMENT STORE, founded by Jacob (Jake) Albert, was the keystone of business development in San Rafael for decades.

"Albert really started the chamber of commerce," according to George Kaenel, only surviving founder and a former president. At the beginning about a half a dozen members met informally once or twice a month in a rent-free office Albert provided.

JAKE ALBERT arrived in San Rafael in 1892 with a peddler's pack on his back.

He opened his first store "The Wonder" at Fourth and B streets and with the help of his young wife, Annie, and later his son, Harry, built a multi-million dollar fortune from the trade he developed in San Rafael.

Born in Palestine, he immigrated to Russia and Pennsylvania reaching San Francisco with his family in 1892. He bought a dollar ticket on the North Pacific Coast Railroad and got off where his fare had taken him — Tomales, the center of Marin's ranch belt.

He worked the area from ranch to ranch, pack on his back, even "selling swallow tail coats to the milkers," according to Johannes Petersen of San Rafael, a lifelong resident and businessman.

When the young peddler reached San Rafael, he was promptly arrested for peddling without a license. After paying his fine, Albert decided to turn that fine into an investment and stayed.

LATER ALBERT moved the "Wonder Store" across the street to the present site of the Albert Building. Around 1917 he again moved to the opposite corner of B into the newly completed Aileen Apartment building erected for his use by fellow chamber founders Herzog and Rake. (The building was named for Herzog's daughters, Mrs. Ziegler.)

During the depression, Albert erected the Albert Building, giving the city its first building with an elevator.

In 1937 Albert, a quiet, intelligent and unassuming man, was drafted to run for the San Rafael City Council. He was so surprised and pleased by the number of votes cast for him that he purchased and presented Albert Field to the city.

In 1943 he gave a piece of property at Second and A streets to the Marin Council of Boy Scouts of America and later added $20,000 so that a building could go up on the site.

Albert died in San Rafael three years later.

opened a butcher shop at the corner of Third and D streets.

THE SENIOR Herzog, born in Germany, immigrated to New York and came around the Horn to San Francisco between 1864 and 1866. He married Augusta Kramer, also a native of Germany, in San Francisco in 1870. He worked as a butcher there until moving to San Rafael eight years later to improve a chronic asthmatic condition.

His business prospered and Herzog moved his family into a spacious home on Fourth Street, a block and a half east of the courthouse.

Sig Herzog Sr., one of seven children, grew up in San Rafael. His first job was running errands for his father. He started the Marin County Ice Co. and in 1906 leased a 1600 acre dairy in Sleepy Hollow becoming the first local dairyman to market certified milk.

In 1925 Herzog moved his dairy to a site on the Petaluma River. The dairy today is operated by his son, Max Herzog.

Sig Herzog started dabbling in real estate and along with his partner, Elwood Rake, acquired the Marin Hotel property at the southwestern corner of Fourth and A streets; another parcel of land across the street where Sig K. Herzog Jr. built the Herzog-Rake Building 13 years ago; the Rafael Theater building and the property where Herzog and Rake erected the Aileen Apartments.

HERZOG WAS also an original member of the San Rafael Volunteer Fire Department and a president of the Marin County Bank that in the 1920s was located in the Cheda Building. (This bank is now part of Wells Fargo Bank.)

Herzog died in 1953, just 17 days after celebrating his golden wedding anniversary. The home he built in 1903 for his bride, Rebecca Lobree, at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Court Street, now is the site of Bell Savings and Loan Assn.

The Herzog interest in the Chamber of Commerce has been maintained through the years. Herzog's son, Sig Herzog Jr. was president four years ago.

The Chamber of Commerce of San Rafael got down to business in 1930.

JUDGE FREITAS, then a young attorney just five years out of law school, suggested the chamber incorporate as a protection against liability claims. That year he drew up the papers and the Chamber of Commerce was duly incorporated on Dec. 2.

The papers stated the chamber was formed for the purpose of "upbuilding the city of San Rafael . . . encouraging and assisting in public improvements of all kinds . . . attracting and locating schools, colleges and industrial and manufacturing enterprises . . . to foster and promote commerce, industry, physical and moral development of the city.

The nation was in the beginning of the terrible depression of the 1930s and according to Judge Freitas in San Rafael "everyone was poorer but things were not totally black "because we were not a laboring town."

But the judge recalled, "a lot of people didn't eat . . . they went begging or lived by barter."

It was during these troubled years that the chamber sprang to life.

THE CHARTER directors including Harry Albert, Kaenel, J. Harold Dollar, William P. Murray Sr. and Judge Freitas worked to acquaint the business community about the chamber.

Two years later in an effort to try and boost business, the Chamber of Commerce inaugurated a "Trade at Home" festival.

The Saturday night event was described in the San Rafael Independent on Sept. 26, 1932 in a by-line story by the late Florence Donnelly, longtime Independent-Journal women's page editor and historian.

"About 10,000 persons witnessed the parade . . . and declared it the most spectacular and stupendous ever seen in the County. It was an immense pageant. Gorgeous floats, bands, marching units, clowns, pretty girls, everything which go to make a parade a thrilling event . . . '"

"People were lined from curb to building in one solid mass the entire length of the line of march and it kept a special detail of police busy keeping them from breaking through the lines . . ."

ON OCT. 17 the Independent reported "leading merchants of San Rafael are busily engaged today slashing prices of high quality merchandise for the observance of "Trade at Home Dollar Days," to be started here Wednesday . . . the sales will be county wide in their appeal and every merchant participating will endeavor to make trading at home an economic necessity . . ."

The same year during the presidency of the late John G. Leibert, a building contractor, the chamber held its first major membership drive. Two recruit teams, competed to see who signed up the most members. That year the chamber reported a membership of 231 with $6,498 in dues pledged and $1,752 collected.

The Chamber of Commerce supported the start of the summer season program at Dominican College's Forest Meadows; worked for $100,000 in federal funds to build a post office; fought for the bringing of Hamilton Field to the county in the mid 1930s and for the building of the Golden Gate Bridge that was opened on May 27, 1937.

IN 1936 the chamber members sparked a project to widen Fourth Street and suggested the city adopt a sign ordinance. They supported the building of Highway 101, fought for the original overpass and for all highway improvements made through the years. (Before the fleet oilers and 62 tankers were turned out on the Sausalito ways.

During this time 75,000 men and women became welders, shipfitters, boilermakers, machinists, pipefitters and sheet-metal workers racing the clock to turn out ships for World War II.

Many of the Marinship and Hamilton Field personnel stayed in Marin after the war. The post war years were to see the building of Highway 101, Lincoln Avenue, then called Petaluma Road and later Avenue, was the roadway that led to the north.)

Marin's financial picture brightened in 1942 when the federal government built Marinship at Sausalito.

Sausalito became a seething industrial center when the shipyard opened on a 230 acre site along Richardson Bay. In the three year period between 1942 and 1945, 15 liberty ships, 16 county and San Rafael turn into a new, thriving community.

IN THE early 1950s an old San Rafael family made a decision that was to bring an influx of new residents to the area and open new commercial and industrial centers.

The surviving five sons and three daughters of Marin land baron Manuel T. Freitas agreed to sell their 1200 acre Home Ranch north of the downtown area.

Freitas had purchased the ranch from the Lucas family for $80,000 in 1898 and operated it as a dairy ranch during the following years. The family, who had a large townhouse on Fifth Avenue, used the ranch's three-story, 24 room mansion as a second home.

In 1953 the Freitas heirs started negotiating for the sale of the land, according to attorney Walter F. Freitas, who handled the sale for his brothers and sisters. The following year the dairy was shut down and bulldozers started ripping apart the 400 acres north of what is now the Manuel T. Freitas Parkway. This site became the community of Terra Linda. The land was sold for $2,500 an acre.

After an initial developer changed his mind about proceeding, the 800 acre portion of the ranch that is now part of the Northgate Shopping Center was taken back by the Freitas family.

FOUR YEARS later developer Jerry Draper took over the land and began construction of the shopping center. In 1964 the Emporium opened and the shopping center has been growing ever since.

Fairchild Semiconductor was also built on 10-acres of the Freitas land and in the late 1950s and early 1960s the Northgate Industrial Park began to grow on the marshland of the old ranch.

Quail Hill, another section of the ranch, is now being developed by Commerce Clearing House.

The 17-year-old Manuel Freitas, founder of the family, immigrated to San Francisco from the Azores Islands in 1870. He became a dishwasher and a little later, a fry cook in a short order house.

Soon he started working as a dishwasher and cook in a Portugese hotel in San Francisco and ended up owning the business a few years later.

BY THE time he was 27 he had become a wholesale produce broker. He prospered and in 1895 at the age of 43 married 16-year old Maria Bettencourt, who had come to San Francisco from the Azores Islands.

Freitas brought his bride to live in San Rafael on Lincoln Avenue near Linden Lane.

A "believer in land," he purchased four more ranches in Marin and another in Solano County before his death at 70 in 1923. (He liked to say he had a ranch for each of his six sons.)

By 1911 Freitas had become a partner in Sherry-Freitas Co., a dairy firm in San Francisco. He became a founder and vice-president of the Bank of San Rafael and bought a corner building at Fourth and B Streets and leased it to the bank.

The Bank of San Rafael became the first chartered national bank in the city in 1925 with the commercial department known as the First National Bank and the savings department, the Bank of San Rafael.

Manuel T. Freitas Jr., who worked in his father's bank in the early years, recalled only three banks in the city in the 1920s. The Marin County Bank; the Tamalpais Bank, then located in the Hotaling building on Fourth Street between C and D Streets. (This bank was later taken over by the Bank of America and moved to the corner of Fourth and C Streets.) and his father's bank that later merged with the Crocker Anglo Bank in 1961 and became Crocker-Citizens National Bank in 1963.)

THE SENIOR Freitas became president of the Bank of San Rafael after the death of founding president A.W. Foster.

In the post War II years the San Rafael business community continued to grow.

The Montecito Shopping Center was developed in the 1950s; Francisco Boulevard began growing into a main commercial thoroughfare in the late 1940s; Bret Harte now has 350 business firms, according to Nelson, and a redevelopment of the west end of Fourth Street is underway.

THE CHAMBER backed the building of the $68 million double-decked Richmond-San Rafael Bridge that started in 1953 and was finished three years later.

In 1957, on the 29th anniversary of the Hotel Rafael fire, wind-fanned flames leveled a San Rafael city block on Fourth Street between D and E Streets. Seventeen business houses and one residence were destroyed in the $2 million blaze the night of July 29. Today a complex of new buildings line the street.

The growth and change in the business community has been staggering during the last 50 years, Nelson commented. Looking to the future he said the Chamber of Commerce will continue to work for the prosperity and well being of the community.

Gardening In Hills Near Inverness

By MRS. DONALD S. GRANT

A 35 year "interlude" in the Navy did not daunt his enthusiasm for gardening, stated Capt. L.F. "Ike" Teuscher of Drake Highlands.

His interest in horticulture began in his native Burlington, Iowa, as a boy and was interrupted by Navy duty, to be resumed upon his retirement from active service fifteen years ago.

Upon retirement in 1954, he enrolled in the Ornamental Horticulture course at City College of San Francisco under the G.I. Bill. While there, he received the Alice Eastwood Scholarship awarded by the San Francisco Garden Club. During this time, he and his wife, Adelaide bought three acres of woodland on the eastern slope of Inverness Ridge.

THEY CLEARED two acres, built their home, and began a horticultural development which has continued to the present time. They also maintained a nursery for nine years, but as Ike said, "I was pretty good with plants but a lousy merchandiser." The last year he finally got into the "black" for $5.71.

He enjoys propagating plants and most of the one hundred and fifty species in the yard and one hundred more in the rock garden are his production. He always has fifty to one hundred for sale at the Garden Society of Marin's Fall Flower Show.

He says he feels brave when he prunes a plant and resists the impulse to "stitch" the cutting for rooting.

WITH MUCH emphasis on gardens, the Teuschers have made two, five month trips to Europe, trips to the Pacific Northwest and Alaska and more recently, a seven weeks tour of New Zealand.

While there they were invited to attend a four day Symposium in Christchurch conducted by the Canterbury Alpine Garden Society, which was exceedingly interesting. This included several fascinating garden tours.

Captain Teuscher and his wife Adelaide, reside on the Drake Highlands hilltop along with their loving apricot poodle "Sammy" overlooking Tomales Bay amid a setting of California Native plants, alpine plants and the plants of New Zealand.

There is great satisfaction in knowing this once uncultivated hilltop is now a well manicured

THIS BEAUTIFUL setting of the garden is conducive to reflecting on one's life work. Among Capt. Teuscher's recollections, one stands foremost in his thoughts, that of being presented to King George VI of Great Britian just ten days before the Normandy Invasion when he was in command of 29 L.S.T.'s in the Gold Beach Landing.

Captain Teuscher, who was presented with the British D.S.C. for which he can be justly proud, has many garden affiliations and is honorary President of the Inverness Garden Society, whose membership is limited to the "female of the species."

The Teuschers are members of many years standing in the Garden Society of Marin who will be holding their Annual Fall Flower Festival at the Marin Art & Garden Center. The hours will be Saturday, Oct. 24, noon to 6 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 25, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

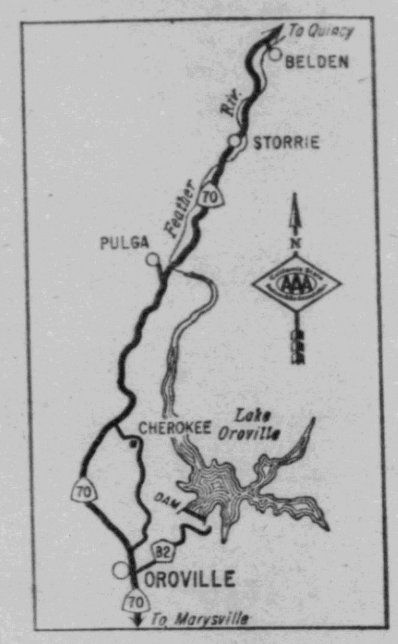
SNOW-COVERED giant Sequoia trees offer visitors breathtaking winter beauty at California's Kings Canyon National Park. In Sequoia there is skiing as well as ice skating at Wolverton near the park's southwest entrance for winter sports enthusiasts.

Historical Land At Feather River

History began for California's Feather River in 1817, when Captain Luis Arguello led an exploring party up its valley.

Because he saw numerous wildfowl feathers floating on the water, he called it "Rio de las Plumas," "plumas" being Spanish for feathers.

Like many another region of the state, it was miners of the Gold Rush times, seeking out every stream and bar where treasure might be found, who made the first real penetration of the mountains of the Feather River Canyon some 30 years later.



THEY FOUND the gold at such places as Rich Bar, Indian Bar, Smith's Bar and Elizabethtown, mostly mere placenames on old maps now, but all serving to recall that the whole watershed of the Feather was rich in gold.

Today, the gold mining is but a memory as are the old mining towns, and the old stage and horse trail is now a modern highway that travels at virtual water-level up the canyon of the Feather.

The portion of it between Oroville and the crest of the Sierra Nevada is one of the most spectacular drives in California, reports the California State Automobile Association.

ALL THE way up through the canyon, the highway and the Western Pacific Railroad play leapfrog at the river crossings. The railroad was built first (1909) and naturally was laid out on the best alignment. At one point the highway bridge is directly over the railroad bridge, the two forming an X. The canyon is so deep and sheer in places that roadbuilders had to be lowered on ropes to drill and blast out a right-of-way for this scenic motor route. Arch Rock and Elephant Butte tunnels run through granite cliffs that drop steeply to the river's edge.

AUTUMN camping on the Feather offers bright fall colors, uncrowded campgrounds and late season trout fishing. One particular area to find this is off state Route 70 about two miles east of Belden along the improved Prattville-Butt Reservoir Road toward the Caribou Power House.

Western Parks Often At Best In Spectacular Winter Coat

Most people are under the impression that the only time to visit a national park is during the traditional summer vacation months for many of the parks are closed in winter.

But those who have visited the parks which remain open have discovered a very special treat. Summer crowds are gone and one is free to enjoy the splendor of nature at his leisure.

GRAND CANYON is more spectacular than ever, especially when the snow has fallen. The junipers and pines on the canyon rim laden with powdered snow, frame an unforgettable view. And the coloring of the temples and buttes within the canyon seems more brilliant than at any other season.

Snowfall at the south rim of Grand Canyon is usually moderate and highways within the park as well as those leading to it are cleared of snow as soon as it falls. The north rim is higher and colder, and closed from mid-October until May.

The giant trees of Sequoia and Kings Canyon National parks in California are another of nature's wonders which should be seen in winter. Visit there in summer, of course, when the trip through Kings Canyon may be made. But come again when there is snow, especially if you are a winter sports enthusiast.

IN SEQUOIA there are skiing facilities at Wolverton near the park's southwest entrance. Service here includes ski instruction, equipment rental and a snack bar. Food service and overnight accommodations are available at Giant Forest. There is also an ice skating rink and snack bar at Lodgepole, four miles from the Giant Forest.

Death Valley National Monument, also in California, is a special case. While a few hardy desert enthusiasts venture into the area in the summer, from November to April this once feared desert becomes one of the West's most popular vacation areas.

The weather is perfect with seldom a cloud in the sky. Midday temperatures average 64 to 80 degrees, dropping in the 60's at night.

ACCOMMODATIONS are available at either the Furnace Creek Inn or the Furnace Creek Ranch. Golf on an 18-hole-all-green golf course, tennis, riding, swimming and hiking await the active visitor.

Death Valley has nearly two million acres of wild, unspoiled desert. The sand dunes, abandoned mining towns and claims of early prospectors are some of the many points of interest that await those who wish to explore the area.

San Luis Obispo Mission Has Retained Its Charm

SAN LUIS OBISPO — An aura of history which bridges two hundred years and melts into the present, premeats the viewer when he visits Mission San Luis Obispo de Tolosa, in the heart of this colorful Spanish town on California's central coast.

The stunning old mission, fifth in the chain of structures built during the late eighteenth century by Franciscan padres under the leadership of Fra Junipero Serra, is still a practicing church — witness the young people's class being conducted by the parish priest. It is also a treasured monument of rare charm and endless antiquarian interest.

ARBORS of grapes still grow profusely in the garden behind the mission during the spring, summer and early fall. An ancient fountain still splashes in the rose garden.

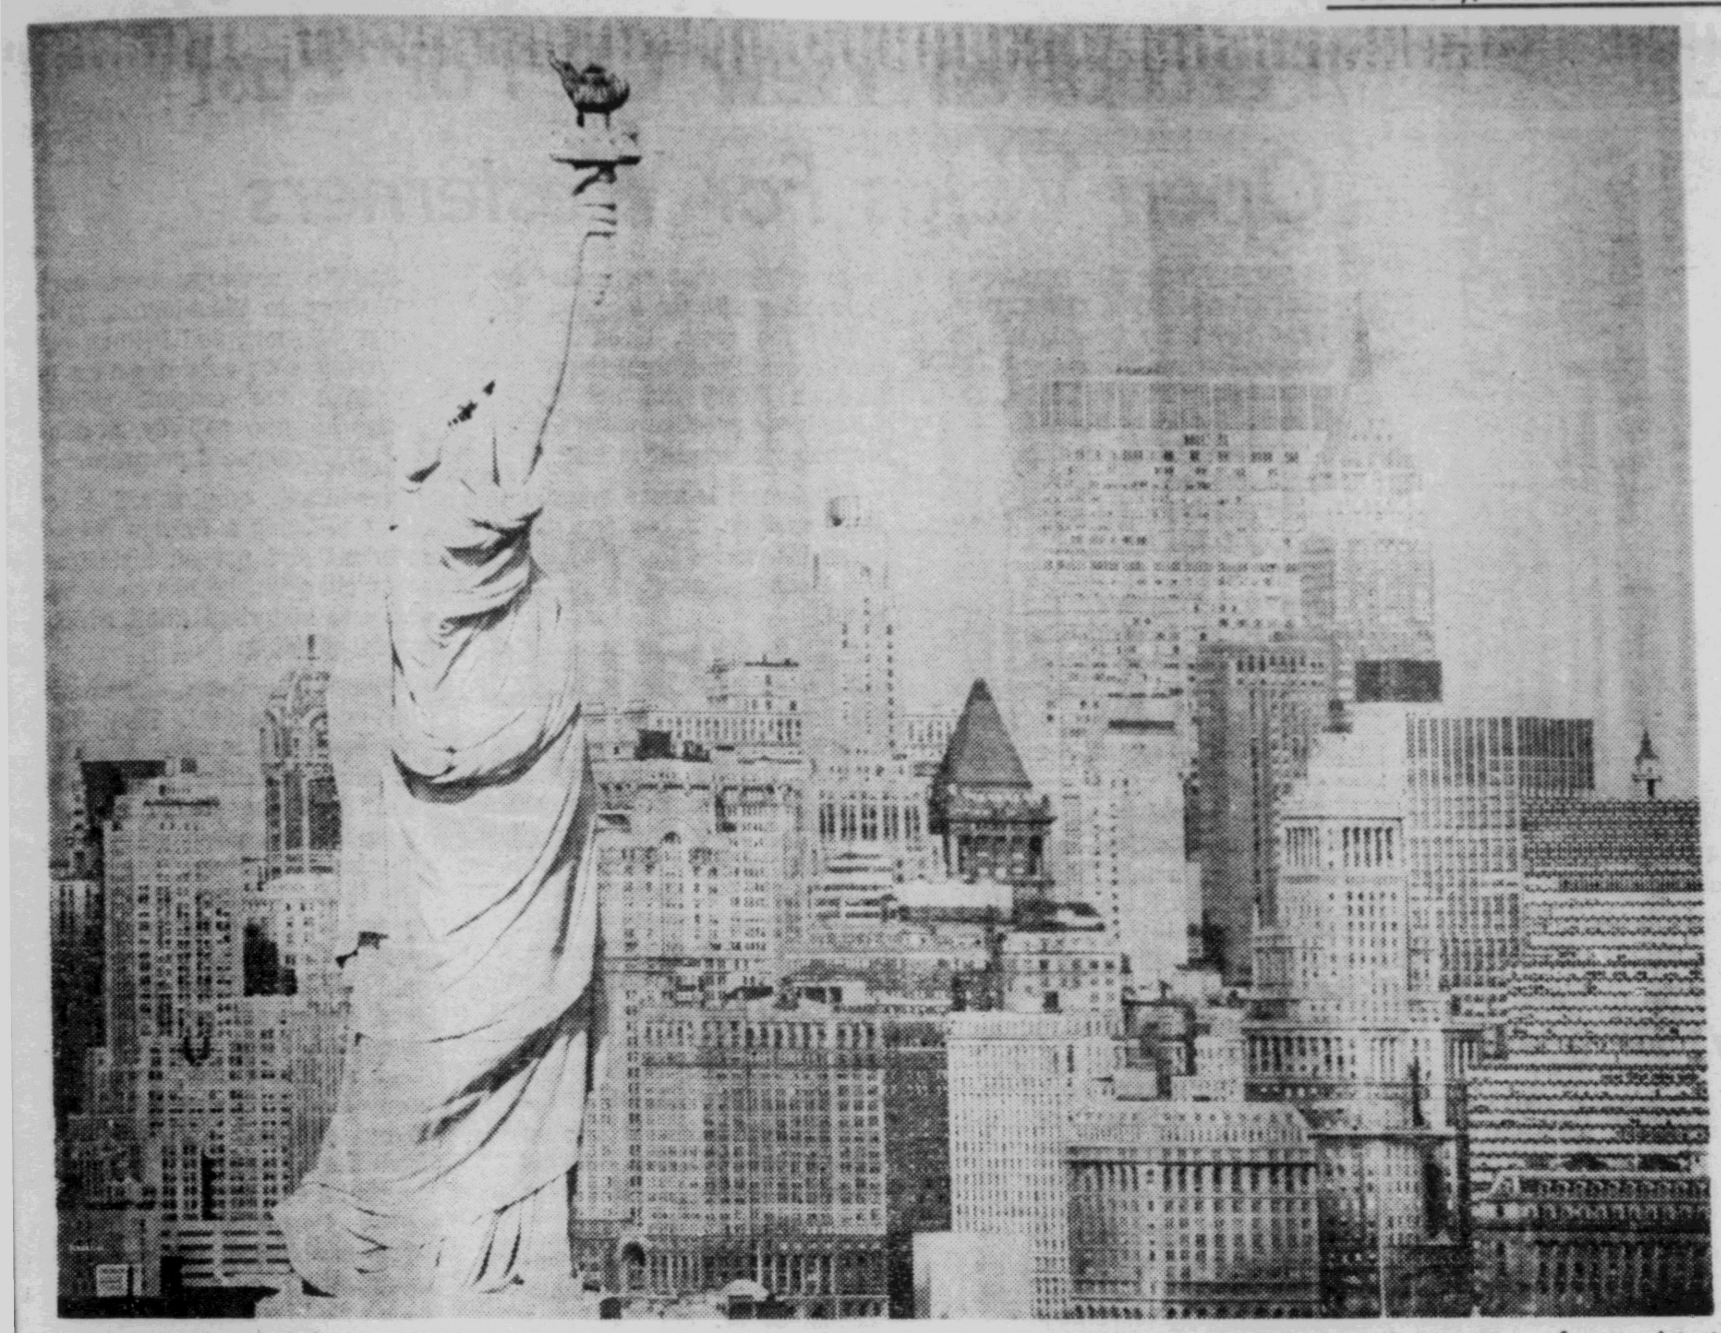
And one after another, august halls and low-ceilinged adobe rooms lure the visitor to displays of artifacts from the old days: mementos of Spanish ranchero life; relics of the pioneer surge, with its raucous and dangerous frontier and gold rush days; the long-lived creative output of the native Chumash Indians, who greeted the Spanish settlers and helped them build one of the largest and most prosperous of all the California missions.

It cared for 900 neophytes, at its height, and grazed 6500 head of cattle and 6150 head of sheep on its lands.

THE MISSION'S museum is open during the day, and the church during the day and early evening. Tours through the museum are free of charge, unless the visitor cares to leave a donation for the missions' upkeep.

The mission sits above a stream running through the city's central business district, where the visitor can find dozens of intriguing shops, many set in the original adobe or pioneer structures of long ago.

Two hundred miles north of Los Angeles on Highway 101, the City of San Luis Obispo is just twelve miles inland from the sea. Its numerous beaches and bays supply a variety of recreation to San Luis Obispo vacationers.



THE STATUE OF LIBERTY standing with the impressive Manhattan skyline still ranks high in list of attractions for tourists to New York.

New York Still Top Attraction

A recent Gallup Poll revealed that the typical American citizen regards New York as the nation's "top city." It is also the "most interesting," and it has the "best food."

What are the sights and attractions that have kept Gotham in the winner's circle? The following list has been compiled by the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, which each year lends a helping hand to over 16,500,000 annual visitors. Among the favorite attractions are:

Empire State Building. Each year millions of visitors enjoy the breathtaking views from observation decks on the 86th and 102nd floors.

Statue of Liberty. Since 1886, Miss Liberty has lifted her lamp "beside the golden door." From her crown, 22 stories above Liberty Island, visitors have a superb view of New York's bustling harbor.

UNITED NATIONS. The Great Peaceworker is now 25 years old, and each year the U.S. has added new sights, services and activities for visitors. The official meetings are open to the public, there is a one-hour guided tour, and no one should miss the post office, gift shops, restaurants and gardens.

Rockefeller Center. A city within a city, this midtown Manhattan landmark offers countless delights — learn about all of them on the guided tour. You can ice-skate in winter and dine outdoors in summer. In any season, you can sink into the plush splendor of Radio City Music Hall.

Lincoln Center. This beautiful center of the performing arts offers opera, symphony, dance, theatre, films — and a guided tour of the bright new buildings that house them.

THE MUSEUMS. Everyone has heard of the Met and the Modern, and visitors should not overlook the fabulous Brooklyn Museum, the Frick Collection, the Natural History, and the Museum of the City of New York. For striking architecture as well as art, catch the Guggenheim, the Whitney and the New York Cultural Center.

Sport. From all over, the sports fans come to Yankee and Shea Stadiums, and to try their luck at Aqueduct, Roosevelt and Yonkers racetracks. Latest stars in the sporting crown are the new Belmont Park and the new Madison Square Garden Center.

Times Square. Now undergoing a renaissance, "The Great White Way" is looking toward even brighter days. Coming attractions: new theatres, movies, skyscrapers and shops.

Entertainment. New York is still its capital, and its districts are Broadway, Off-Broadway, Off-Off-Broadway, the first-run film houses, TV shows, discotheques, the folk-rock-jazz scenes and night clubs.

Houses of Worship. Food for the soul and impressive works of art and architecture are offered by such landmarks as St. Patrick's Cathedral, the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Temple Emanu-El, the Abyssinian Baptist Church in Harlem, Trinity Church and St. Paul's Chapel in lower Manhattan, and more than 2,500 other religious edifices. You can even visit a Buddhist shrine in Chinatown.

Sightseeing Cruises. Perhaps the most relaxing way to learn all about New York's five boroughs is to take the Circle Line's three-hour sightseeing cruise around the island of Manhattan.

New York and American Stock Exchanges. The nation's marketplaces — the money capitals of the world — are two of the city's best sightseeing bargains. Free tours during trading hours.

Shopping. High and low fashions, antiques, posters, skis, coins, books, toys, pets — you name it, New York stores will produce it.

Stark Fort In Florida

When first seen dominating the horizon in the tropical waters of the Dry Tortugas, Fort Jefferson is an impressive, even starkly beautiful sight. Close-up, though, there is an oppressiveness in its grim vastness and isolation.

Now a national monument administered by the National Park Service, Fort Jefferson is located 68 miles west of Key West, Florida at the end of a string of coral keys.

LARGEST of the nation's 19th century coastal fortifications, Fort Jefferson was started in 1846 but never completed. Construction continued for 30 years, and the cost was over $3.5 million. During the Civil War it was occupied by Federal troops and used as a prison. During the Civil War it was occupied by Federal troops and used as a prison. During the Spanish-American War it was a coaling and refueling stop for U.S. Navy ships. In World War I it was a Navy seaplane base. Then the military moved out and the fort was left to be a ruin.

Covering 16 acres, with a half-mile perimeter, Fort Jefferson's massive 50-foot-high walls are eight feet thick. A 70-foot-wide moat surrounds it. A regular boat makes runs to the fort from Key West. After the tour, and before the boat leaves again, visitors can hunt shells, swim, fish, engage in skin diving on nearby reefs, or watch the many types of birds which congregate there.

NOTES TO TRAVEL BY

Holland America Line has announced the itinerary for the twelfth consecutive world cruise of the S.S. Rotterdam , which will depart from New York on Jan. 19, and feature calls at 20 ports on an 87-day eastward course around the world that will cover about 32,000 miles.

Air France has announced that Americans beginning or ending their European trips in Paris will get a free day in France beginning Nov. 1. On the "no charge" list for tourists are hotels, car rentals, museum admissions and even some night club shows. Information about the one-day bonus can be obtained from Air France or travel agents.

Foreign Tours Inc. is offering tours of the South Pacific, including visits to Australia, New Zealand, Fiji, the Samoas and Tahiti starting with an Air New Zealand flight from Los Angeles to Sydney Nov. 1. Other departures in 1970 will be on Nov. 20 and Dec. 20.

FOR LAKES, IT'S AFRICA

Tremendous new artificial lakes rival those of nature in size and beauty, and they are getting bigger. East Africa's Lake Victoria, which is now the world's largest artificial lake, was formed after the creation of the Owen Falls Dam in Uganda.

Lake Victoria, say the travel experts of Trans World Airlines, is large enough to swallow all of West Virginia, but Lake Nasser, now backing up behind Egypt's Aswan Dam, will be bigger when it's completely filled.

SHERWIN MARKHAM
It Could Happen Here

Election Story Tells How Fascist Could Win

THE ELECTION by Sherwin Markham, Random House: 308 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

Can a Fascist become president of the United States? Yes, he can, and in fairly plausible fashion. This first novel by a former Johnson administration aide tells how.

The ingredients are a presidential election year no more inflammatory than 1968. Two moderate campaigners fail to win a majority of the popular vote. The Electorial College comes up short, also. The vote is thrown into the House of Representatives.

During this time a young black incendiary in Oakland (read Huey Newton) takes over ghetto sections with several thousand members of his Black Guards (Black Panthers). The consequences of this act inflame the ghettoes and enrage white suburbs.

A moderate lame-duck president (Lyndon Johnson) seemingly appeases Mamba, the black revolutionary. Freed on bail after surrendering, Mamba leads a giant demonstration onto Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C. A dim-witted Congressman attempts to get through the mob to vote for a new president. His gun-flashing bluster ends in a fatal pummeling. National media coverage of the murder outrages white America. Their representatives cave in to public pressure and vote Jack Parker (George Wallace) President of the United States.

The story is told with an insider's perspective. Markham is authoritative in staging his episodes. The interplay of Republicans and Democrats attempting to stall the radical right-winger Parker is often ironic. Their loyalty to country wars with political self-interest. The power plays, the selflessness, the uncontrolled forces of racism and fear, all mingle believably.

The author falls short of the drama his story should have generated, however. The climactic episode, the killing of a congressman, has been upstaged and diluted by better-presented prior episodes. Only two characters emerge living and breathing, Stu Brady, a young White House aide, who narrates the events; and Charley Jefferson, a black government attorney who is murdered by Mamba's men.

On balance, Markham has written a credible first novel with a dramatic theme.

Observer Of Nature Tells Of A Boy And His Dog

THE WILD RUNNERS by Mel Ellis, Holt Rinehart and Winston; 183 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Richard B. Lyttle.

Take that tried and true juvenile theme — a boy and his dog — add a spread of sociological concern and bill it as an adult book and what have you got?

With Mel Ellis doing the writing, you've got a good book. Mainly it is because Ellis is an expert observer of nature, including human nature.

With a half-breed dog befriended by a half-breed teenager, the jacket blurb tells us that neither can find a place for himself. Both are rejected by the wild and the civilized worlds.

the main thrust of the book. The Indian boy, North Main by Fortunately, this does not seem name, seems little more disturbed than any normal teenager in the battle with authority.

The charm of the book comes from Ellis' knowledge of wildlife and his characterizations. We know his animals very well before we meet the humans in the story. Most memorable character in the book certainly is the Old Man, an Indian who adopts the half-breed boy. And the Old Man plays the key role in the final surge to recapture ancient Indian pride.

Perhaps Ellis himself was unhappy with his creation of an impatient half-breed youth.

Perceptive View Of Far East Open Vistas For Westerners

AN EYE FOR THE DRAGON; SOUTHEAST ASIA OBSERVED: 1954-1970; by Dennis Bloodworth; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, Inc.; 414 pp; $8.95. Reivewed by Larry Kramer

"Certain Chinese artists, it is said, put the eyes in last when they painted a dragon, for this brought the formidable creature to life. Others have drawn the region for the western world; I would like to try to give it an eye in which the reader may glimpse something of its awakened spirit (leaving him to put in the other himself)."

And in providing an eye for the dragon, Bloodworth for the second time in this, his second book, has given the interested but non-specialist reader some real feeling for the dynamics of the Far East.

His first book, The Chinese Looking Glass, which appeared in 1967, concentrated on China. An Eye for the Dragon concentrates on Southeast Asia, with which Bloodworth is even more familiar. He has lived in Singapore with his Chinese wife for the last fifteen years and served as Far Eastern correspondent for The Observer of London. His style is breezy, in much the same way that John Gunther's was in his "Inside . . . " books, but his intense involvement with the Far East as a foreign correspondent has given his perceptions a good deal of substance.

Bloodworth points out that Westerners are constantly trying to measure Far Eastern behavior in terms of Western standards. They are constantly using large abstractions, like freedom and democracy, to justify their policies on the other side of the world. They never seem to understand that to the peasant — who in the long run will determine what happens in Indonesia, Indochina, the Philippines — freedom means the freedom to own a small patch of ricelands and perhaps freedom from overwhelming taxation, freedom from brutality from whatever government is in power, even freedom to work long back-breaking hours on his marginal holding, and democracy has no meaning whatsoever. Bloodworth catches this in a few lines, speaking about the Vietnamese peasant:

"The peasant himself — seventeen men out of every twenty in the country — is not worried or excited or elated or downcast when he is presented with a Khanh instead of a Diem. He is indifferent. Too often his district offcier is a cheat and a bully, and that is all the government he knows. He owes it neither his trust nor his meager treasure. It does not protect him from the Vietcong, and it does not provide his simplest needs. It collects taxes and it takes the young men of the village away to fight. As for the riches of all these white men (Frenchmen, Americans, or whatever they are by now), they never filter down to him."

So much for the theory of foreign affairs that says that by tampering with the top, you can affect the roots. Even in our well-ordered universe, the trickle-down theory did not prove effective in practice when President Hoover tried it in 1930.

Bloodworth is more anecdotal than analytic in his approach, using his stories to set some of the leading characters in bold relief.

One of his most delightful tales concerns Prince Sihanouk, who saw himself as a God/King for whom all things were possible and no criticism was acceptable. Sihanouk wanted very much to have a railroad from the capital to the new port of Sihanoukville. He waited for a foreign power to offer to build it for him and it didn't happen. But then he began to have a new kind of diplomatic function which prescribed not evening dress, but working clothes, and he would invite the heads of the diplomatic missions in Phnom Penh to join with him and his workers in laying the track for the proposed railroad.

"Every so often, therefore, an impressive convoy of shining limousines set out from the capital, carrying these polished gentlemen from their embassies to their unusual place of work. Shortly afterward sweat-stained ambassadors, wearing anything from khaki shorts and bushwhacker hats to Saville Row slacks and Charvet scarves, could be seen shoveling earth into baskets which were then passed down a human conveyor belt of senior Khmer officials. Loudspeakers filled the air with jazz, while Sihanouk himself, a round figure in shorts and white singlet, dug away briskly. At lunchtime, all retired to a marquee for a superb French meal washed down with champagne. Cynics alleged that urgent coded diplomatic messages were soon flashing to Washington, London, Moscow, and Peking, exhorting governments to present the exigent prince with his new railway as part of the foreign-aid program."

Bloodworth emphasized his claim to being a foreign correspondent and not an historical researcher, but he has come up with one historical tidbit which bears repeating:

"The Viets were extremely difficult to defeat. They did not come out to fight, but hid in their familiar mountains and used the jungle like a weapon. In consequence, neither side could win. The security forces became increasingly fatigued, and the transport problem involved in supporting half a million men with food and arms progressively worsened. The Viets would raid suddenly, rob, and get away fast, so that just as our army obtained its supplies from the home base, the Viets obtained theirs from our army. Permanent garrisons were established, but the administration only effectively controlled the towns, the plains and the roads."

A philosopher has suggested that if we will not study history we may be doomed to repeat it. The above is not from the New York Times of last week but from the official account of the invasion of Vietnam by Imperial China in the third century B.C.

An Eye for the Dragon is an excellent introduction to Southeast Asia. It is serious without being pompous, critical without being shrewish, and most important of all, it provides an opportunity for the person to whom the Far East is extremely far, to see it through the eyes of a person who is at home with the assumptions and aspirations of the West and of Southeast Asia.

Was RFK Killed By Conspiracy?

"R.F.K. MUST DIE!" by Robert Blair Kaiser; Dutton, 634 pages, $9.95.

By DON KEOWN

After our experiences with the John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. assassinations, we must have known it was inevitable that there would be a book or books casting doubt upon the conclusions of the investigation of the murder of Robert F. Kennedy and the verdict in the trial of Sirhan Sirhan.

Robert Blair Kaiser has written such a book in his "R.F.K. Must Die!"

It is, however, probably more valuable for the wealth of detail — sometimes to the point of irrelevancy — that it provides about the case and trial than it is for any sensational charges that the full truth has not yet emerged.

Kaiser, a journalist with an impressive background with the Phoenix Arizona Republic and Time magazine and with one prior book to his credit, wrote "R.F.K. Must Die!" from a most unusual vantage point. He began as a personal friend of Robert Kennedy, and attached himself to Sirhan Sirhan's defense staff as an investigator so that he was present in person for interviews and psychiatric examinations of the defendant.

He found Sirhan totally unlikable — cunning and deceptive. But he also reached less than favorable opinions about many of the others involved in the case.

There was never any doubt but that Sirhan pulled the trigger of the gun that killed Robert Kennedy. The defense's task, then, was to provide mitigation that might save the assassin from the gas chamber.

The lawyers wavered between two courses — presenting Sirhan as a young Arab patriot who struck down Kennedy out of despair and resentment for the injustices being done his people and motivated partially by the violence and hardships he had known himself as a boy in Palestine (this was the role favored by the defendant himself, and a false one according to Kaiser); or the presentation of a psychiatric defense picturing Sirhan as a person of diminished mental capacity incapable of the premeditation required in first degree murder.

Saddled with an often uncooperative and eccentric client, the defense lawyers never made a clear choice between the two approaches, although they opted for the psychiatric defense as their main line.

Their key witness was Dr. Bernard L. Diamond, the eminent and brilliant University of California psychiatrist, criminologist and attorney and the originator of the diminished capacity principle as a legal defense in homicide trials.

Dr. Diamond, however, went further in this case, and theorized that Sirhan on June 4, 1968, had acted in a hypnotic trance, self-programmed for the act. It was, he admitted, a preposterous sounding theory. And yet, he felt, it was what had occurred. The notebooks of Sirhan from which the quote for the title of Kaiser's book is taken, used by the prosecution to prove premeditation, were actually a part of Sirhan's self-programming, probably written automatically while in a trance-like state, in the opinion of Dr. Diamond.

Kaiser rejects out-of-hand the picture of Sirhan acting as an Arab patriot. It was, the author alleges, a posture that Sirhan adopted only after the killing, greedy for the attention that it brought him.

Instead, Kaiser accepts at least in part Dr. Diamond's thesis. But he doubts that the robot-like Sirhan as pictured by some witnesses was entirely self-programmed. He suggests, instead, that some one else might have used Sirhan, susceptible and interested in the occult and mysticism, as a sort of Manchurian Candidate. In other words — a conspiracy.

Kaiser claims that investigators disregarded witnesses and evidence that pointed in that direction. But the clues he cites are not impressive.

Indeed, the best support for the Diamond-Kaiser theories come from the reader's own reading of Sirhan's garbled notebooks. These are reprinted in their entirety in the book. There are references there — to money, to people, to actions, to complaints — that might well lend themselves to the "programming" interpretation.

And so along side doubts already cast as to the purity of the justice administered in the cases of the John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King assassinations, we now have conspiracy allegations to ponder in yet another national tragedy.

But as noted earlier, Kaiser's book, despite his controversial conclusions, has a greater value for the light it focusses upon a case that was confused and twisted by the intense emotion that accompanied the event.

In the glare of Kaiser's reporting, for instance, we discover that most people involved, including, alas, a major segment of the press, behaved dismally or disgracefully in time of crisis. Mayor Sam Yorty's embarrassing grab for publicity was more typical than otherwise.

We are given startling evidence of the distrust the public holds for psychiatry in the jurors' reasoning and verdict. Those in the profession would do well to read the book and reflect as to the causes.

Said one prosecutor: "I have heard that Charles Dickens once wrote a book in which one of his characters said something about, 'The law is an ass.' And I think that's true and I'm a lawyer. And I think the law became an ass the day it let the psychiatrists get their hands on law." (In fairness, he might have noted that lawyers had already pretty well bent the law in that direction, and that they, not psychiatrists, were Dickens' targets.)

Attorneys, judge and investigators in Los Angeles generally conducted themselves a good many notches above the bizarre behavior at Dallas. But their actions were not unflawed.

Finally, society itself left much to be desired. Almost a century earlier, a verdict had been returned against another assassin, Charles Guiteau, the killer of President James A. Garfield, and Charles Rosenberg then wrote of it:

"Society ... must protect itself, the merciless prosecution of the vicious must not be impeded — no matter how lamentable the circumstances conspiring to form their vicious character."

Apparently, the jurors who not only returned a first degree murder conviction against Sirhan, but specified the death penalty, and the public that overwhelmingly approved those determinations, signified that society has not advanced greatly in compassion since 1881.

Murder is a grim and gruesome affair that generally diminishes all concerned. In this case, the victim was the exception. Although there has been a general decline in the prestige of the Kennedys in recent years it is indisputable fact that esteem for Robert F. Kennedy has grown since his death. More and more have grasped the remarkable truth of his growth from a somewhat cynical, pragmatic politician to idealistic visionary and statesman.

One can accept the truth of the statement in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's letter to the presiding judge at the time of Sirhan's sentencing:" . . . if the kind of man my brother was is pertinent, we believe it should be weighed in the balance on the side of compassion, mercy and God's gift of life itself."

Or Kaiser's characterization of R.F.K. as "the man we now realized we needed more than we had known."

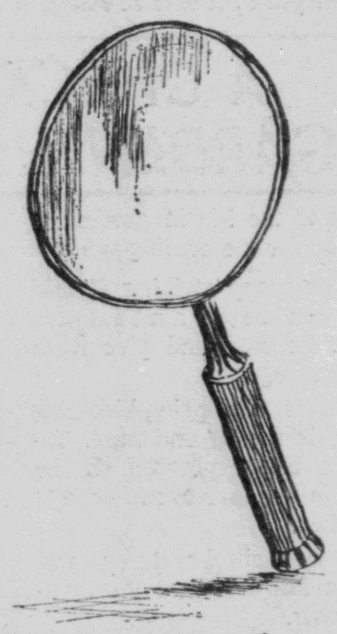
THE GREAT HIJACK by Alfred Tack; Doubleday, 187 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Described as one of Britain's leading industrialists, Alfred Tack evidently prefers the less remunerative profession of writing, turning out a steady stream of both crime novels and books on business management.

"The Great Hijack" is not one of his better mysteries.

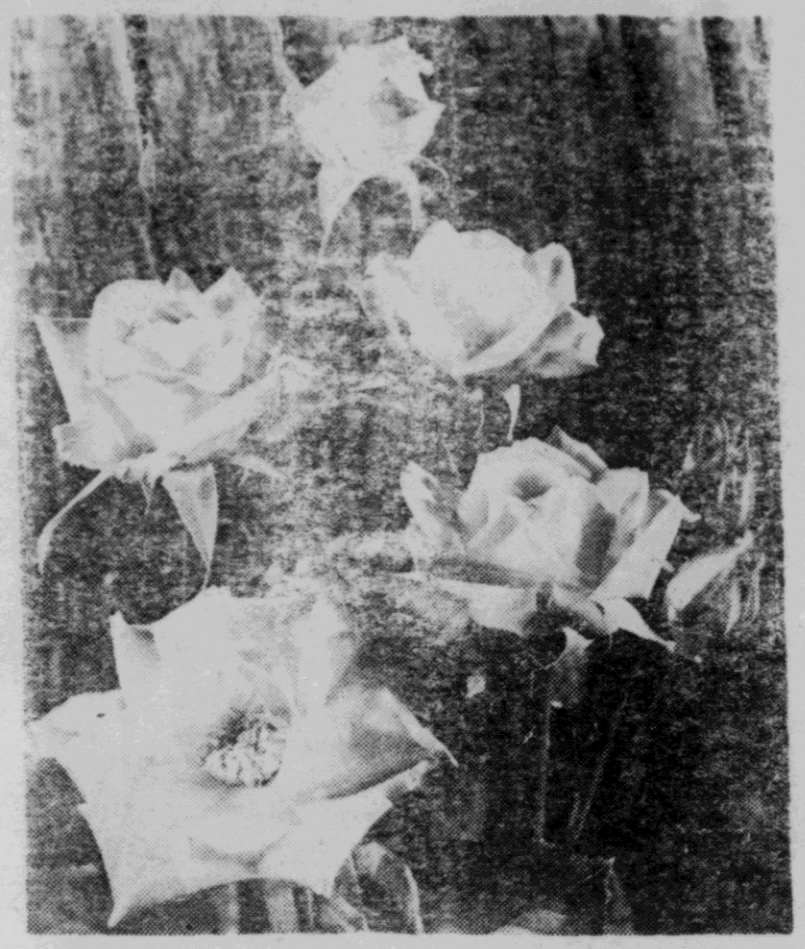
Jack Barclay, a junior executive, finds himself being urged by an old colleague from Military Intelligence to work with him against his boss. The latter, it is alleged, is something more than just the head of a business empire.

Barclay soon finds himself involved in some sinister manipulations including murder and with the inevitable pretty but mysterious girl.



It is, however, a rather routine yarn, and Tack does not use his personal knowledge of big business as effectively as he has utilized it in the past.

Three Roses Win All-America Awards



THE REDGOLD, a showy floribunda of fiery chrome-yellow and red, was the first British rose to win an All-America award in nearly a quarter of a century.

The All-America Rose Selections judges recently named three of the finest new roses as awards winners for 1971.

Redgold, a showy floribunda, Command Performance, a brilliant orange hybrid tea, and Aquarius, a pink and white grandiflora were selected from a large field of candidates tested during a two-year period.

The Redgold was originated by Patrick Dickson of Belfast, Ireland, a fifth generation member of his family in the nursery business.

The Redgold originated when Dickson noted red and gold blooms on a seedling in 1962, the father a Piccadilly, but the mother unknown.

After some experiments the Dicksons managed to find the right combination, and the Redgold came into being.

Command Performance is known as an upright, vigorous plant bearing large quantities of the fragrant blooms on long, strong stems, which should do well in flower show competition.

Aquarius produces fragrant blooms in great quantities with each flower having up to 30-35 petals.

Before Selecting Right Tree Ask Yourself Some Questions

Selecting the right tree for the right use and location is as important as selecting the right workman for your home repairs.

The fact that a tree is pretty or that the same kind is thriving in a neighbor's yard is no indication that it will fulfill your needs.

BEFORE selecting any tree, you must have definite answers to two questions:

1. What will be the primary use of the tree?
2. What are the soil and climate conditions of the planting site?

In many cases, you will have multiple answers to the first question, but you must rank them in order of priority. Which is more important to you, shade or privacy, a windbreak or enhancing the beauty of your home?

IF THE primary purpose of the tree is to enhance the appearance of your house, you need to study the outside dimensions of the house. Tall trees will dwarf a single story house, but you need some landscaping height around a house with two or more full stories.

You should also consider the size of the house in relation to the size of the lot.

If it seems to crowd the boundary lines, keep your landscaping low and simple. If there is a considerable amount of lawn, larger trees will give unity to the entire lot.

Many trees can serve dual purposes well. A pin oak grown to maturity, for instance, can shade a patio, provide privacy from the eyes of a neighboring apartment building, and add to the beauty of the neighborhood, as well.

ALSO CONSIDER the shapes that would be most suitable to your site. Would you prefer the informality of a weeping willow or a sour gum, the roundness of a sugar maple, the slenderness of a Lombardy poplar, or the airy, vase shape of an American elm?

The type and texture of leaves is another factor that will have a bearing on the appearance of your yard. Evergreens tend to look heavy and strongly weighted to the ground. Elms and locusts have small leaves and are light in appearance. Horse chestnuts and sycamores have large leaves and appear massive.

You may have special needs, which will require trees with special characteristics. For instance, a corkscrew willow or an Amur maple is good for a small area where you need shade. White pines and Norway spruce are good screening trees. A redbud, dogwood, or Japanese maple is ideal for adding color and beauty to an area limited in space.

ON THE question of soil and climate, consider how much sun and rain the tree is likely to get. What is the nature of the soil — is it predominately sand or clay, or are there lots of rocks in the ground?

Evergreens, in general, are not good in heavily shaded areas. Weeping willows and sugar maples will thrive in a moist location.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- The many striking Hybrid Lilies can be planted this month. Be sure and give them good drainage.
- Plant all spring-blooming bulbs this month and next. Tulips are better planted on the late side — in November and December.
- Choose shrubs, trees, and vines in fall colors at the nursery — now.
- Select and plant flowering Sasanqua Camellias now while they are coming into heavy bloom.
- Plant Cyclamen now for winter and spring bloom.

Here Is How To Uproot Post

How can you pull up a fence post?

Buy a length of welded chain about three or four feet long in a hardware store. Wrap the chain around the post and loop it over the lifting part of your automobile jack. You then pump the post out of the ground.

On The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

One of the top-selling LP's today is "Band of Gypsys," from the late Jimi Hendrix (Capitol STAO-472). Recorded live at New York's Fillmore East, it has an excitement that cannot be surpassed by any of the many "live" LP's suddenly hitting the record shops.

The sounds created by Hendrix on his guitar, assisted only be Buddy Miles and Billy Cox, are wide-ranging and sensual in the extreme. Hendrix should have been considered one of our greatest composers of electric music today, right next to Stockhausen and Subotnick and the rest.

THE MODERN Jazz Quartet retains its long-time title of greatest small group in jazz with "Space" on Apple STAO-3360. Meat-and-potatoes of the album is a gorgeous arrangement of the adagio from Rodrigo's Guitar Concierto de Aranjuez. There are two originals just penned by pianist-leader John Lewis, "Visitor from Venus," and "Visitor from Mars." What can one say about something as perfect as the MJQ?

"Country Preacher" is the new one from The Cannonball Adderley Quintet (Capitol SKAO-404). It was taped live at "Operation Breadbasket," a project led by The Rev. Jesse Jackson of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. The huge audience joins in with clapping, halellujahs, etc. adding to the spirit and soul of the event.

SIDE TWO of the album creates a new sound out of the blend of jazz with African and Spanish music. The Fender electric piano is a vital part of the Quintet's sound, as is its performer-composer, Joe Zawinul.

In addition, it's great to hear Cannonball on the soprano sax once in a while. If jazz can be this exciting, it won't have to lie down and die because of rock by any means.

KEVIN AYERS is a British composer-singer who looks like a cleaned-up version of one of the Rolling Stones. His LP (Harvest SKAO-421) is distributed in the U.S. by Capitol. A surrealistic quality not uncommon in the work of the Beatles lately is found in generous supply inAyers unusual songs. I for one am not worrying myself with figuring out all the meanings; just digging the sound, especially that of the very sparkling instrumental arrangements, is enough for me. A definite jazz flavor adds piquancy to the backing. Ayer's delivery is fairly straightforward without Jagger-ish posturing.

Hard on the heels of Traffic's "Best of ... " album (United Artists UAS 5500) comes the brand new one by the reconstituted Traffic, "John Barleycorn Must Die" (UAS 5504).

The first contains such favorites of the rock trio as "Paper Sun," "Medicated Goo," and "Dear Mr. Fantasy." It's a great buy if you don't have any Traffic in your collection. The title tune "John Barleycorn" is a bit of acoustic Olde English folk song and does nothing for me.

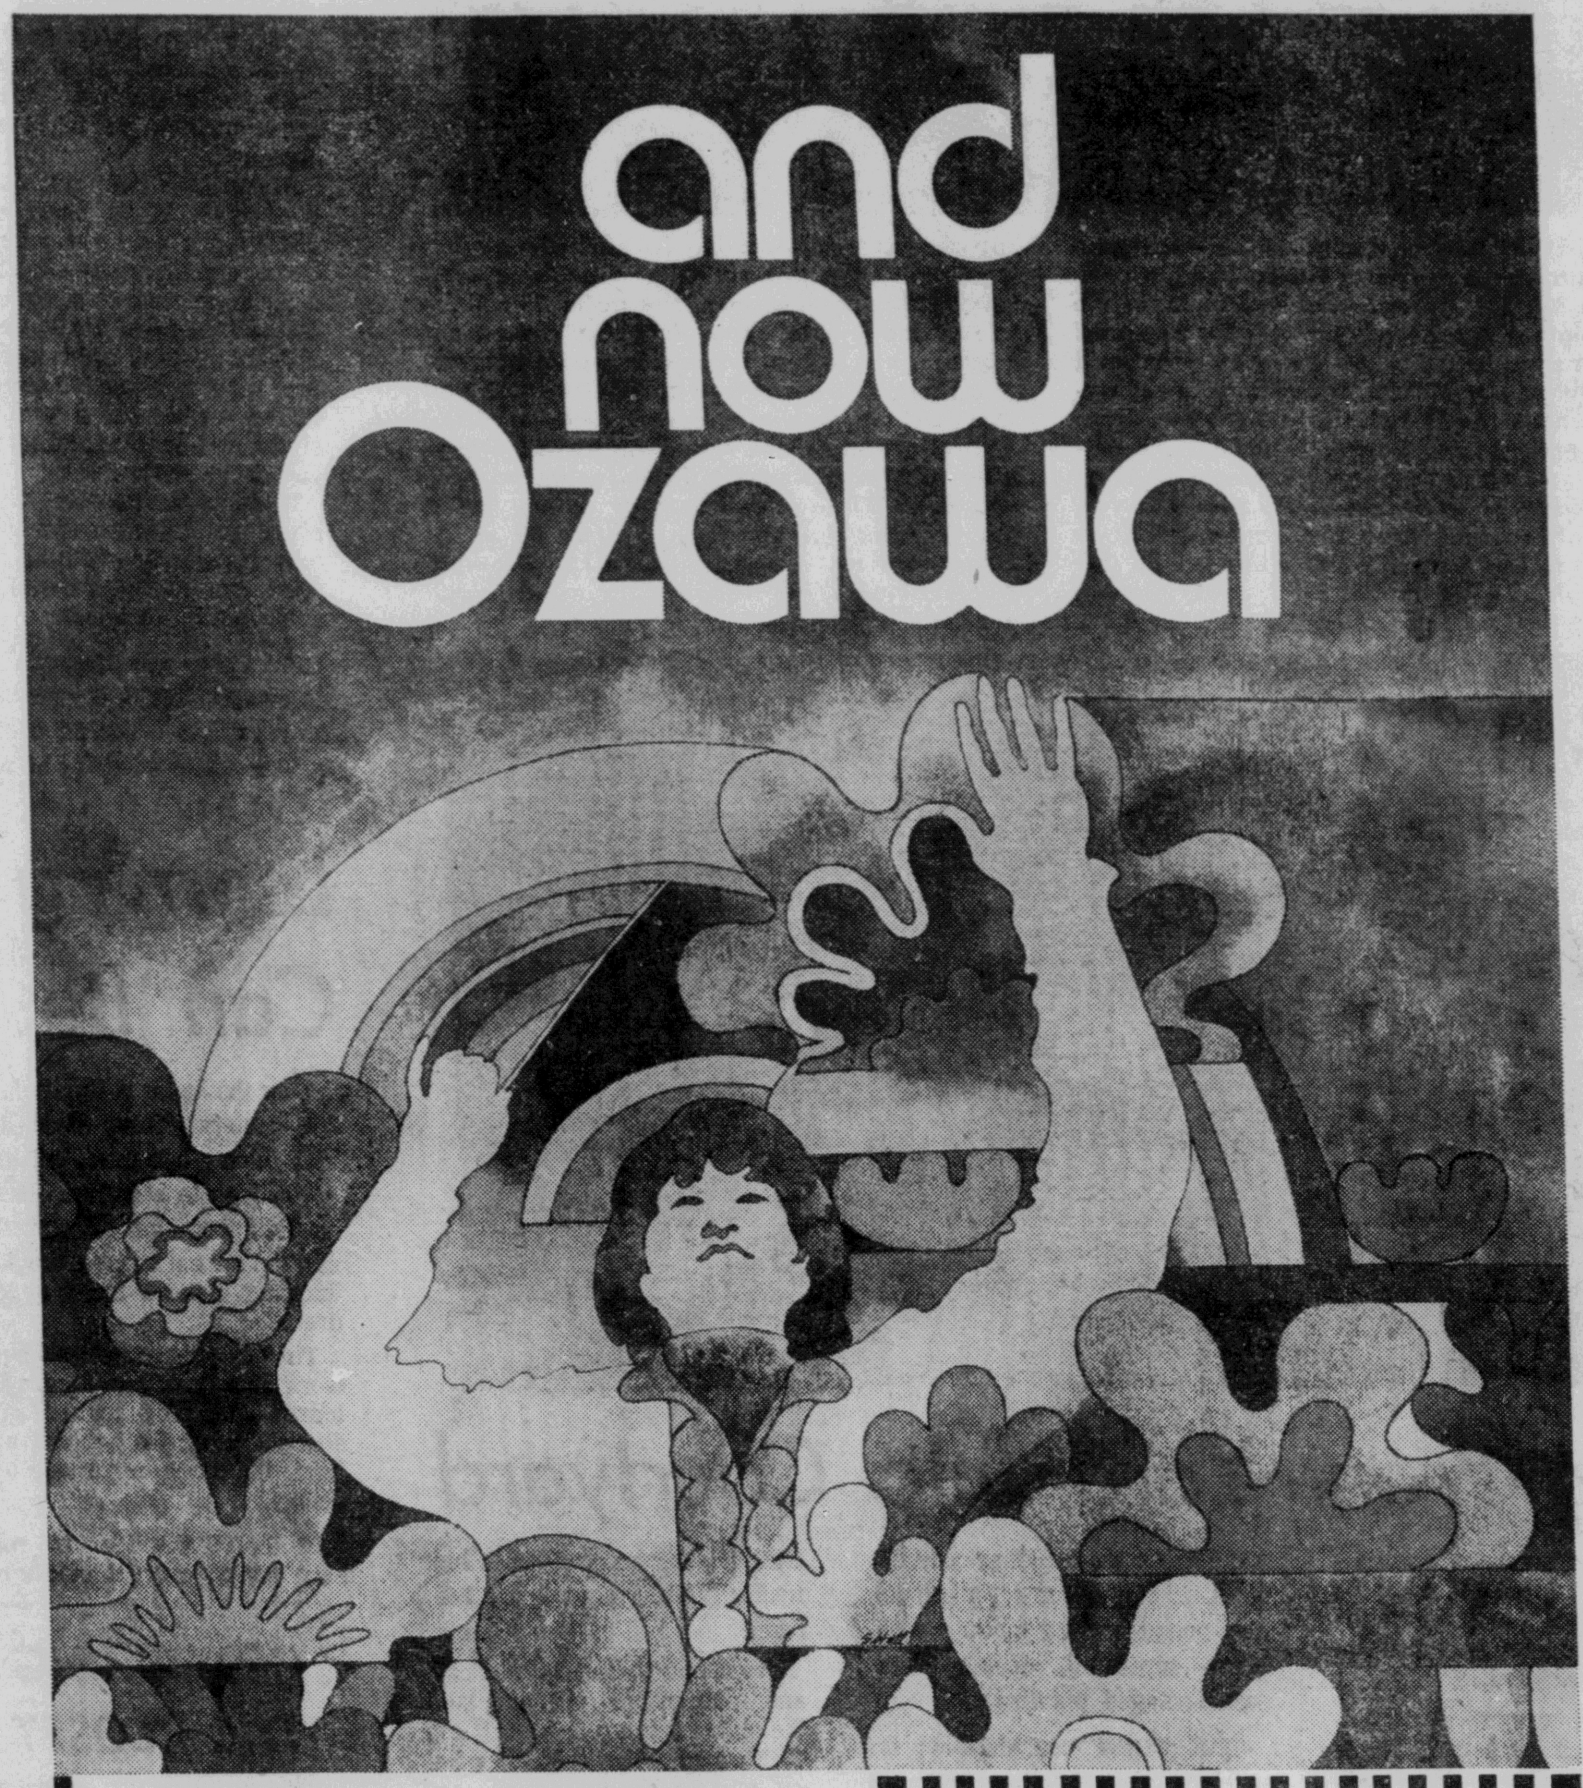
THE REST of the six tracks are superb though, with a much-needed soft-pedaling of the electric guitars and an accent on keyboard, especially Steve Winwood's electric organ — which adds so much to the individual sound of the group. "Glad" is a jazzy instrumental first track, and "Every Mother's Son" a smash conclusion to the new LP.

United Artists Records International Series has released three very attractive albums of sounds from South America. "The Flute Where It Lives" (UNS 15561) is a haunting journey to the sound of the wooden flute.

Two groups, Los Calchakis and Los Guacharacos, are heard. Music from Ecuador, Peru, Columbia, Bolivia, Argentina and Mexico is heard, with other folk instruments such as the tiple, charango, sonajas and cascabeles adding to the exotic flavor. This is not rough-hewn field recording of folk material, but tasteful arranged selections preserved in glorious stereo sound.

BADEN POWELL, though hardly known in this country, is one of the most popular guitarists in both Europe and South America. Segovia, Django, Bach and bosa nova have all had an influence on his music. His program, "Fresh Winds" (UNS 15559) finds Paul Mauriat and his Orchestra providing delicate and tasteful backing for a program reflecting all of the above influences on Baden Powell's style. I particularly liked "Choro Para Metronome" and "Samba en Preludio," with its wordless female voice and cello.

The album employs greatest restraint in avoiding any selections from "Black Orpheus," though there happens to be a beautiful little original tune titled "Eurydice."



He's exciting and magical...a rare combination of grace, dynamic strength and youthful brilliance. A born crowd pleaser with amazing vitality and orchestral maturity, he brings to music a new flair with a fresh new spirit.

Become involved...let Seiji Ozawa and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra entrance you with a new experience in fine classical music.

The excitement of this musical season is happening not only at the San Francisco Opera House, but right near you in Marin County. This year's Second Annual Marin Series will include four Saturday evening concerts at Terra Linda High School. Outstanding guest artists will join Maestro Ozawa to bring you four evenings of superb entertainment.

THIS DELIGHTFUL replica of an old-fashioned doll carriage is easy and fun to build, thanks to the full size pattern offered above. While the original was decorated with the flowered design shown, many are now being finished in natural wood stain. Both have great appeal and become popular sellers for those seeking to start a part-time business. Building this carriage requires no special skill or knowledge of tools. Plywood, plus the full size pattern and hand tools are all that is required. The cost is small since all of the materials can be bought for far less than a fifth of the price paid for a similar carriage purchased ready-made. To simplify buying materials, the pattern tells what is needed and where each is used. The pattern includes a full size template that simplifies cutting out rockers. In place of wheels and axle holders, the rockers are screwed to bottom and you have an old-fashioned covered cradle. Many of the originals are now being used alongside the fireplace to hold logs, magazines, etc. Send $1 in cash, check or money order for Colonial Doll Carriage, Pattern 59 to Independent-Journal, P.O. What's Up Front Counts In Home

What's up front counts in a home.

Some homeowners get so involved with extensive remodeling plans that they overlook one of the most obvious, and easiest, areas for home improvement — the front entrance.

IF YOUR home front has been neglected, or if it's dull and undistinguished, here are some ways to put its best face forward:

Make sure the front door is distinctive. Wood panel doors, rich-looking entries for any home, are especially effective in a style appropriate to the architectural theme of the house.

Panel doors of ponderosa pine are readily available at local lumber dealers in a variety of styles and in stock sizes to fit any door opening.

If feasible, consider a complete new entrance (panel door plus sidelights, overhead pediment, ornamental facade) also available as stock units.

PAINT the door an eye-catching color. A cinnamon red or royal blue door on a black-roofed, white-sided Colonial home perks up the entire exterior. An advantage of wood panel doors is that they can be easily painted — and repainted when you tire of the color.

You might flank the entrance with door-length wood louver shutters. They are an attention-getting accessory, also easily painted for color accents.

DON'T HIDE the front door behind clumsy storm sash. Combination storm and screen doors are now available in styles to match wood panel entry doors. The doors are permanently installed; you simply switch glass and screen panels to suit the season.

Use name and number plates, bells, knobs and knockers that match the door style. Attractive hardware is one of the least expensive and most effective ways to introduce style.

MAKE SURE the door is visible from the street. Don't obscure it with badly-placed shrubbery. Light fixtures should be attractive — but should also give sufficient light.

For safety as well as good looks, keep doorsteps and railing in good repair.

Learning Center Can Be Compact

Why the boom in family learning centers? Sure, since Sputnik, Johnny can read, but that's not enough to keep him clued in on the space age. So, more and more parents are providing learning centers for their children.

This is where school homework gets done, and maybe Dad learns something, too. It's great stimulus to curiosity about mankind, the earth and space technology.

ESSENTIALS include reference books, current magazines, perhaps a moon map and color TV, and other items dictated by the family's interests. And, of course, a place to keep them all together. An extra room to use for this purpose is a big asset, but if you don't have one, a built-in will serve well.

One advantage of an installation of this type in a family room is that it's right at hand and more readily put to use.

If the counter is to be used for typing or other desk work, a pull-out seat, faced with matching cabinets doors, will be most useful.

Other under-counter space may hold records and writing equipment. A tall compartment is useful for atlases and art books.

CONSIDER storing folding tables and chairs in one cabinet. A surprisingly small space will hold a set. Be sure to measure the table top, since sizes vary and the counter will have to be high enough so the table can be placed on edge beneath it.

Higher shelving on adjustable standards and brackets takes care of books, magazines and other items. Most bookshelves should be cut from 12-inch boards. A box treatment for various sizes of books, speakers and other equipment makes convenient, adjustable storage space.

Random-width board paneling of western pine, fir or cedar will make the cabinet distinctive.

Turn Front Yard Into Courtyard

"Don't just sit there, do something!" An old demand, but a good expression of the attitude many a homeowner takes toward his front yard.

The front yard's worth increases when there's a scant room at the sides of the house and the back isn't suitable for alfresco meals or sunning.

Even if the front setback is as shallow as the building code allows, it can become an attractive private courtyard with some screening, decking and well-arranged plantings.

THE FIRST consideration is privacy and that demands a fence. In some situations, a screen of open design bordered with lacy shrubs will do the trick Houses on roads with high traffic flow require a solid fence.

Board-and-batten is an easy and inexpensive type and suits the style of many houses. It can be framed with 4x4-inch posts set four to six feet apart, and capped with a 2x4 laid flat. Beveling the top of the 2x4 will give the fence a lighter, less squared-off look.

Part of the fence may be recessed and the gate set sideways in a recess planted with evergreens such as nandina and dwarf pine. The jogging will relieve the severity of the long, straight, solid fence.

In flooring the courtyard, it is often possible to make use of existing paving and proches.

Benches along other sections of the fence or along the house wall provide instant seating.

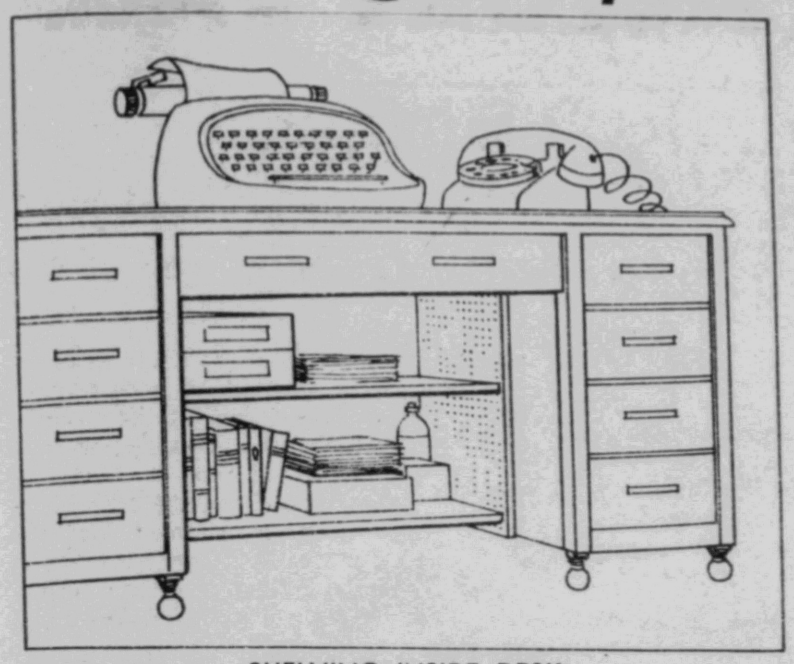
CEDARIZING THE CLOSET

Closed space is all that's needed to have a moth-repelling cedar closet. Many families simply convert an existing closet by nailing aromatic red cedar closet lining to the walls.

Available at leading lumber dealers everywhere, each package contains installaton instructions. The cedar boards are tongue and grooved for fast, easy construction.

Cedar covering all space and door that can be closed tight to keep in the aroma are the only prerequisites to creating a fine cedar closet in an existing space.

Storage Space Is Where You Find It



SHELVING INSIDE DESK

Even the smallest home or apartment has storage space, but finding it takes a bit of imagination. Having spotted elusive corners and nooks, the home owner can readily enclose and make them functional.

First task is to find storage "where it doesn't exist." Here are some suggestions from Norma Brown, homemaking consultant to Masonite Corporation:

— UNDER STAIRS closet. Usually in basement, this space can be organized and kept clean by stringing some 2x4-inch lumber and covering it with a decorative paneling. There'll be ample space for shelf items, vacuum cleaner and other bulky items.

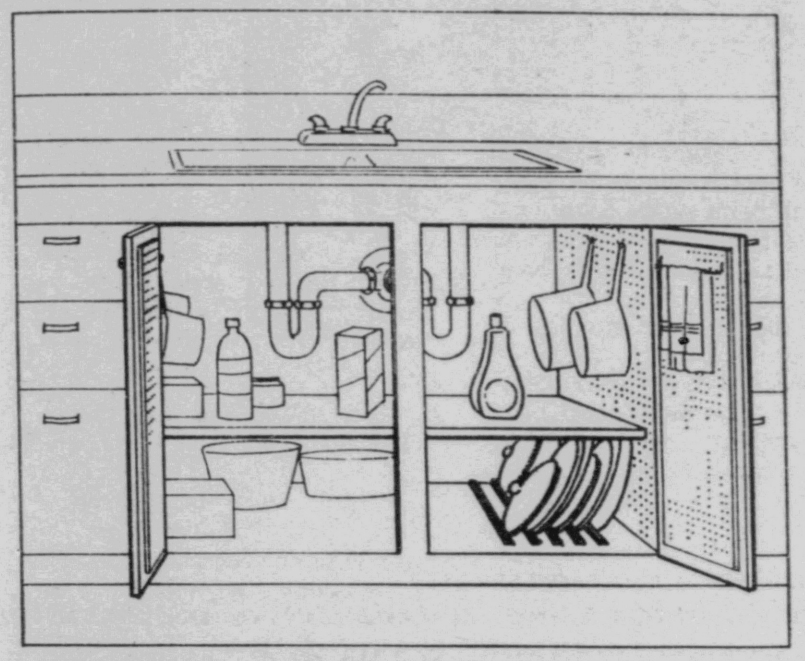
— Under kitchen sink. An easy-to-build cabinet here will provide out-of-view storage for kitchen chemicals and cleaners. Sides of the space can be lined with peg-board panels, on which can be hung odd-sized kitchen utensils or tools. Either swing-out or sliding doors can be made, using peg-board or a decorative hardboard.

— KNEEHOLE area of desk. After leaving room for knees, install shelves to accommodate stationery supplies and books. By using Peg-Board panels and wooden pegs, the spacing can be made flexible for changing requirements.

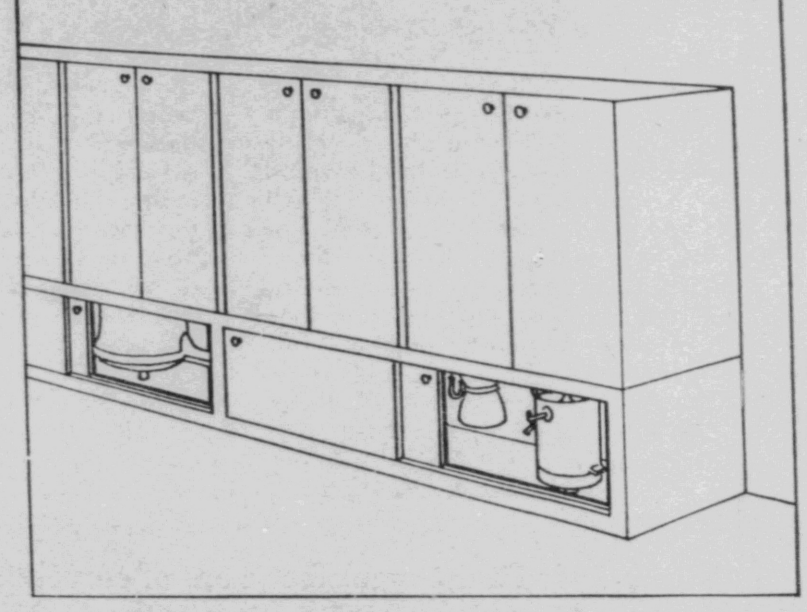
— Over-wall cabinets in kitchen. Here is an ideal space to store little-used, outsize platters, coffee pot and other items that don't fit easily into existing cabinets.

— End of hallway. If this place is unneeded for traffic, the handyman home owner can easily convert it into a narrow closet which can be used for storing canned food, for example. If the space is deep enough, it could serve as a closet for street clothes.

CLOSET UNDER STAIRS



STORAGE UNDER SINK



TOPPER CABINET

FOR CANNED food storage, handymen often line three sides with quarter-inch Peg-Board panels and support thin wood shelves on pegs. A roll-up curtain can be used to keep out dust.

— Wardrobe closet. This is a possibility in a large bedroom with inadequate storage space; also a basement, utility room or attic for overflow storage of clothing. Write Home Service Bureau, Box B, Chicago, Ill., 60690, for free plan AE-403, which has information on how to build closets and other bedroom facilities.

Do You Know Much About Your Windows?

Even people who live in glass houses may not know much about windows.

Because windows are such a familiar house structure, many homeowners think they know more about them than they actually do. The Anderson Corporation, a leading window manufacturer, points out however, that the more window information you have, the easier it is to select those best suited to your building or remodeling needs.

FOR A quick test of your window knowledge, see how many of the following questions you can answer correctly:

1. The window style recommended for use in awkward locations, such as above kitchen sinks and countertops, is: (a) double-hung (b) hopper (c) casement.

(Answer is casement, which opens outward with an easy-to-reach handle or lever. You don't have to stretch to operate the window.)

2. SEPARATE storm sash is not required in cold climates if a window has: (a) welded insulating glass (b) sufficient weatherstripping (c) a southern exposure.

(Answer is welded insulating glass — two sheets of glass fused together at the edges to form a dry "insulating" layer of air between. Cuts heat loss by transmission. Doesn't require the maintenance chores associated with storm sash.)

3. In an average home, the proportion of the outside wall taken up by windows is as much as (a) ¼ (b) ⅓ (c) ½.

(Answer: as much as 50 per cent in average homes, even higher in some new construction. This shows the importance of quality windows in house design and comfort.)

4. A STRONGLY recommended safety feature for large glass areas, such as patio doors, is: (a) tinted glass (b) decals (c) tempered glass.

(Answer is tempered glass, which is highly resistant to impacts. If it does break, the glass crumbles into harmless, pellet-sized pieces. Tempered glass is standard in Andersen patio doors.)

Whether you scored high or low on this quiz, you can improve your window quotient with two informative booklets: "How to Get Good Windows When You Buy, Build, Remodel" and "The Low-Upkeep Window". They are available free from the Andersen Corporation, Dept. C-1, Bayport, Minn. 55003, and can help you select the proper windows for your home.

Water-Based Paint Outdoors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Something new has been added for the homeowner who wants to paint the outside of his house this Fall — an entire water-based system of paints.

Water-based or latex paints long have been popular for exterior use. But it was not until recently that a quality latex gloss exterior trim was put on the market.

NEW acrylic emulsions developed specifically for outside use have induced a growing number of house paint manufacturers to include water-thinned trim paints in their lines.

In addition to the familiar advantages of latex paints — quick drying, easy cleanup with soap and water, low in odor and no fire hazard — the new acrylic emulsions compare favorably with alkyd and oil-based enamels in performance.

THE PAINTS resist mildew, chipping and discoloration better than solvent-based trims, and for these reasons are recommended for use on outdoor furniture, shutters, panels, doors, railings, fences, bird and dog house and other surfaces out of doors where a gloss finish is desired.

The new trims are applicable to both damp or dry surfaces. Actually, the lap time of the paint, approximately 10 or 15 minutes, can be extended by wetting the surface before painting.

THE ACRYLIC latex trim paints dry in just a few hours, making it possible to apply more than one coat in a day, if necessary. Four or five hours should elapse before recoating.

The paints adhere well over aged, glossy surfaces, as well as primed bare wood, and can also be used on brick, stucco and other masonry surfaces. The gloss levels hold well, providing good color and color retention.

Sparks Fly Among Reagan, Dutton, Simon

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan lost his temper after a University of California Board of Regents meeting and cursed the former campaign manager of the man he defeated for governor. (See another Regants story, page 2.)

The Republican governor walked quickly around a table moments after the regents adjourned their session yesterday and shook his finger at regent Frederick G. Dutton of Sausalito, a longtime Democrat and critic of the governor.

"You are trying to use this board for politics," Reagan shouted at Dutton, who managed Gov. Edmund G. Brown's unsuccessful campaign against Reagan in 1966.

"But you've been doing it, governor," said Dutton and fellow regent Norton Simon, almost in unison.

"You are a lying son of a bitch," Reagan said, looking toward Dutton as dozens of spectators and regents gathered around.

Reagan refused to apologize for his remark and repeated his charges that Dutton and Simon were "outright liars" in a televised news conference a few minutes later.

The governor also accused the two men of "cheap politics" and "total dishonesty."

Simon, a multi-millionaire industrialist from Southern California and recent unsuccessful candidate for the GOP nomination for the U.S. Senate, said of Reagan: "He lost his temper."

Simon also apparently called for the defeat of Reagan, George Murphy, who beat Simon in the primay, and State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Rafferty.

"I have supported many Republicans and, in this present election, I am supporting many Republicans. But I think it is really about time to see the colors of Reagan, Rafferty and Murphy.

William French Smith, chairman of the regents and Reagan's personal attorney, later told reporters: "You are bound to have flareups like this. In the long term, I don't think it's a bad thing."

What triggered the shouting match between the governor and the two regents was decision of the board to postpone until next month a discussion of a controversy in which regents are being asked to approve enlargement of a planned city near the Irvine campus of the state university system.

Simon claimed the regents irresponsibly planned to take action that would enrich the Irvine Company, owner of the land, by tens of millions of dollars.

After the regents vote on the matter, Dutton said the delay would smother discussion "until after the (Nov. 3) election so nobody is embarrassed." Reagan is up for reelection this year against State Assemblyman Jess Unruh.

Simon noted that a past president of the Irvine Company, Charles Thomas, is a finance chairman for Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., who is seeking re-election this year.

Immediately after the meeting adjourned, Reagan walked quickly to Dutton's side and the heated argument erupted.

Ingredients of the Irvine controversy have been before the regents for a decade. In recent months, Simon began making public charges by stating some regents were being caught "with their hands in the cookie jar."

Diplomats' Fate Unknown; Quebec Is Under Dragnet

Trudeau Says Terrorists Are Directly Responsible

MONTREAL (UPI) — Police dragnet squads swept through Quebec today in the federal government's intensified effort to crush the terrorist FLQ and locate the kidnappers holding two high-ranking officials.

There was no word on the fate of British diplomat James R. Cross, kidnapped 13 days ago, or Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, abducted at gunpoint one week ago. The shaken government of Pierre Trudeau clung to hopes both still were alive.

Trudeau, who invoked emergency war powers yesterday and outlawed the separatist FLQ, placed the responsibility squarely on the terrorists for the safety of Cross and LaPorte.

"The guns pointed at their heads," he dramatically told the nation on television Friday night, "have FLQ fingers on the triggers."

A Quebec government official said yesterday "there is every reason to believe Mr. LaPorte is still alive." No one speculated about Cross.

The kidnappings have plunged the government deep into crisis. Trudeau mobilized 4,000 federal troops to aid Quebec's 9,000 police officials in the crackdown on FLQ leaders and sympathizers. Dragnets yesterday netted 270 persons in 158 raids.

His suspension of certain civil liberties, especially in arrest situations, drew fire from opposition leaders in Ottawa. One likened it to "trying to crush a peanut with a sledgehammer."

In the raids, said Inspector J.R. Melancon of the Quebec Provincial police, "large quantities of firearms — guns, pistols, bayonets and knives" — were seized.

Trudeau, his face drawn and grim, declined again Friday night to beet the kidnapper's demands for release of 23 political prisoners, safe passage out of the country and $500,000 gold bullion ransom.

"Should the government give in to this crude blackmail," he said, shifting uncomfortably in his chair, "we could be facing the breakdown of the legal system and its replacement by the law of the jungle."

He said to agree to the demands — the government has offered to seek parole for five of the political prisoners and guarantee all safe passage from Canada — would be "an invitation to terrorism and kidnaping across the country."

Trudeau said he based his invoking the extraordinary powers on communiques from various governmental officials in the province. One letter, from Montreal Police Director M. St. Aubin, had a paragraph that said:

"The slowness of procedures and the constraints which result from legal mechanisms and methods to which we are currently subjected, do not permit us to deal with the situation."

This is what Trudeau's detractors hinted at in lengthy House of Commons debate yesterday — that it was precisely

Two More Women On Top 10 List

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI today added two more women to its list of 10 most wanted fugitives. Both have been charged with the murder of a Boston police officer following a bank robbery.

The women, Susan Edith Saxe and Katherine Ann Power, are former students at Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., and "reputed members of a radical, revolutionary group dedicated to attacking the United States Military system and undermining police powers," the FBI said.

Earlier this week, the FBI placed Bernardine Dohrn, alleged leader of the militant Weatherman faction of Students for a Democratic Society, on the most wanted list after capturing Angela Davis in New York.

Sixteen persons are now are on the fugitive list, although the FBI continues to call the operation its "Ten Most Wanted" program.

Miss Saxe and Miss Power allegedly joined three Massachusetts parolees in the $26,000 robbery last Sept. 23 of the State Street Bank and Trust Co. of Boston. A police officer was shot and killed outside the bank shortly after the robbers fled, the FBI said.

Miss Saxe graduated magna cum laude from Brandeis last

Romanian President Grants Visa To Marinite's Mother

A Romanian refugee — unsuccessful for three years in attempts to obtain his mother, still in that Communist country, a visitor's visa — made an impassioned appeal to the Romanian president today while the leader toured Muir Woods National Monument.

The plea apparently worked. President Nicolae Ceausescu told 44-year-old Michael Marville of Corte Madera, who escaped from Romania in 1958, that he would see that his mother obtained a visa.

"All right, you don't have to worry," Marville quoted Ceausescu as saying.

Ceausescu granted Marville's request as the head of state, accompanied by a large staff, members of the press and Secret Service agents, as he toured Muir Woods.

The entourage arrived at the park at about 10 a.m. The group proceeded to a grove of huge redwoods, where Marville made his plea.

Marville's appeal was enabled as a result of a telephone call he made yesterday to Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, after learning Ceausescu was in the Bay Area. Bagley telephoned the Independent-Journal, which arranged for Marville to accompany a reporter and photographer to Muir Woods.

"Sir, can I ask for a humanitarian favor?" Marville asked in Romanian as he handed the president a park souvenier.

"Would you let my mother come out of Romania to any country in Europe or the United States for a short visit. It has been 14 years since I have seen her."

As Secret Service agents stood aghast, the president referred Marville's request to one of his many aides.

"Will you help this man?" the president was asked by the Independent-Journal. The president who does not speak English didn't answer after an intrepreter posed the question.

Instead, he and the others began their trek back to waiting cars.

Presidential aides rushed to Marville's side, asking him

Egypt Installs Sadat; Pledges To Protect 'Territorial' Rights

CAIRO (UPI)—Anwar Sadat, the man picked by Gamal Abdel Nasser to be his successor, was sworn in as president of Egypt today with a pledge to protect the "territorial integrity of the fatherland."

Sadat said earlier he would press on with Nasser's efforts to recover territory lost by Egypt in the 1967 war with Israel.

Sadat, 51, was nominated for the presidency four days after Nasser died on Sept. 27. A national referendum Friday ratified that nomination and Sadat took the oath of office today at a special session of the National Assembly.

"I swear by almighty God to uphold the Republican system loyally, to respect the constitution and law, to look after the interests of the people fully and to preserve the independence and territorial integrity of the fatherland," Sadat said.

At the United Nations, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad Friday accused the United States and Israel of undercutting the American peace initiative in the Middle East. U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost replied, "over the past several weeks my government has been making every effort to create a situation wherein these talks could resume and the danger of a breakdown in the cease-fire would be avoided."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah said Riad's U.N. speech was "a message of hostility and abuse, a message arguing continued conflict and unhappiness."

The only optimistic note came from Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban. Returning to Tel Aviv from the United States, he said Israel would not resume shooting after the cease-fire ends Nov. 5 and "those who have some knowledge of what is happening on the other side do not at all assume that the cease-fire will expire" on that date.

Tribunal Ends Road Dispute In Marincello

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Supreme Court has thrown up a roadblock ending a three-year battle to force a public referendum over a road into the controversial Marincello planned community in Southern Marin.

Monday, the court dismissed an appeal by Marin rancher George W. Wheelwright and others against lower courts' refusal to order the referendum. The order simply stated, "The appeal is dismissed for want of jurisdiction."

The whole controversy may be moot. In 1965, developer Thomas Frouge and landowner Gulf Oil Co. won county approval of a planned community development for Marincello Since then, the only work done was the erection of two stucco gates and the grading — but not paving — of the embattled road rising over the hill from Tennessee Valley.

Frouge died in January 1969. Gulf has since said that it may develop other plans for the 2,138-acre site, which Frouge had envisioned as a new community of 20,000 persons.

Early in 1967, Wheelwright and other Marincello opponents submitted a petition bearing nearly 7,000 signatures to force a referendum on the county ordinance enabling the Marincello access road. County Clerk George H. Gonss ruled the petition lacked enough vaid signatures.

Superior Court Judge Joseph H. Wilson upheld Gnoss; the state District Court of Appeal

Nixon Hits Campaign Trail; Optimistic Vietnam Picture

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI)—President Nixon declared today the Vietnam War is drawing to an end in a way which he hoped would asure a full generation of peace.

"As I stand before you today I can say confidently that the war in iVetnam is coming to an end and we are going to win a just peace in Vietnam," the President told an airport political rally over the angry "stop the war" shouts of opponents of the war. It was the President's first stop of a 3,000 mile, one-day political swing in four battleground states—Vermont, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Nixon said that if the enemy does not agree to his cease-fire proposal the war will be brought to an end by continued withdrawing of U.S. troops and allowing Vietnam to choose a new government. But however it ends, he said, "what we want to do is end the war so that the young people shouting inside 'stop the war' will have a generation of peace."

"I know there are people who say, why not end the war now. I could have ended the war the day I took office," he said.

Nixon said he was looking "not just for peace in the next election but peace for the next generaton so that the sons and brothers of the men who are fighting now won't have to fight in some other Vietnam in the future."

Nixon urged the voters to answer those who are committing violence in the United States with their votes in the Nov. 3 election.

"Don't answer them with violence but answer them in the powerful way Americans have always answered. Speak up with your votes on Nov. 3," he said.

Speaking in an airplane hangar in bone-chilling, 30-degree temperature, Nixon reasured Vermonters that he was taking all steps necessary to avert a fuel crisis this winter in New England.

"I want to say that despite all discusions and despite all the alarm, there is now no fuel crisis," Nixon said in remarks prepared for delivery at the airport rally. "And we are taking all necessary steps to insure that Vermont and New England have adequate supplies of fuel this winter."

A crowd of about 2,000 people, bundled in overcoats and carrying banners supporting state Republican candidates, waited for Nixon in the hangar and were entertained by a hard rock combo "The Canadian Goose." Outside, about 200 college students—closely watched by police armed with riot batons—otod on the wind-swept arpon of the runway chanting "power to the people."

Nixon, in his statement, firmly endorsed Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., and Gov. Deane C. Davis, a Republican seeking a second term. He described Prouty as "a man of thoughtful good sense and a real voice of Vermont" who "understands what it takes to achieve our goal in the world of a full generation of peace."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Greatest Threat

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) —The greatest threat to America is not terrorists but "vigilante tactics" to which citizens may resort to protect themselves, U.S. Attorney General John N. Mitchell said Friday.

Mitchell, here for dedication of a new Indiana University law school building, told a news conference that he does not regard radical bombings and violence as a major threat to society.

25 Cholera Deaths

ISTANBUL (UPI)—A cholera epidemic is sweeping parts of Turkey, Health Minister Vedat Ali Ozkam announced today. He said the United tSates has been asked for five million doses of anticholera vaccine.

Dr. Ozkam said 25 persons have died of the disease and that 560 more are being treated in hospitals for symptoms of cholera. Unofficial reports said there had been 50 deaths and that more than 2,000 persons had been affected.

Jury Clears Audie

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Actor-war hero Audie Murphy had claimed that if he had fired a shot at a Burbank, Calif., dog trainer during an altercation last May 18, he wouldn't have missed.

A superior court jury believed him and acquitted the Medal of Honor winner Friday, after four hours of deliberation.

Into Tropical Storm

HONG KONG (UPI)—Typhoon Joan waned to a tropical storm today after killing more than 300 persons and causing an estimated $50 million damage in the Philippines, the Hong Kong Observatory said.

The Observatory said Joan was centered over the northeastern tip of Communist China's Hainan island, about 270 miles west-southwest of Hong Kong.

14 Die In Train

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI)—An excursion train carrying about 600 high school pupils collided head-on with a freight train in a tunnel 55 miles south of Seoul today, and casualties were heavy.

Police said 14 persons were killed and 59 others injured. The dead included 10 children, two teachers and two other passengers aboard the excursion train. Fifty-nine boys were hurt, 41 of them seriously.

To Begin Rehearsals

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The Cleveland Orchestra's 104 musicians will resume rehearsals Monday following a 41-day strike.

The players voted 59-34 Friday to accept a new three-year contract offering a $30-a-week increase, paid hospitalization and a weekly bonus of $10 for playing at the orchestra's summer home, Blossom Music Center.

Election Scheduled

ATHENS (UPI)—The Greek government has announced the first elections since it seized power in 1967, but it appeared only about 10,000 of the country's nine million population would be voting.

Details of the election, which the government called a step toward democracy, were spelled out in a decree published Friday.

Reagan Hit With Order

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) —A superior court judge has ordered Gov. Ronald Reagan to refrain from making alleged false statements about a Democratic state senator running for re-election.

Judge P. R. Borton Friday issued a temporary restraining order prohibiting Reagan and others from circulating campaign statements concerning Sen. Walter Stiern of Bakersfield.

The complaint listed the defendants as Reagan, the public relations firm of Spencer Roberts and Associates, Stiern's GOP opponent Bill Parks, and 16 San Joaquin valley broadcasting stations.

The complaint quotes Reagan as saying during an Oct. 2 speech that in 1968 Stiern "voted to kill a bill censoring University of California officials following the appointment of Eldridge Cleaver as a lecturer at Berkeley and then changed his vote when he heard 'the angry voice of the people'."

Isla Vista Report Calls For Channeling Funds Into Area

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Officials generally agree with the report of a commission which investigated the causes of unrest in the student community of Isla Vista adjacent to the University of California at Santa Barbara. (See another story, page 1.)

But some of them wonder whether the university, the Legislature and the County of Santa Barbara will come up with the money needed to solve Isla Vista's problems and prevent renewed violence.

The 102-page report by the seven-man blue-ribbon commission was presented to the Board of Regents Friday. Is said Isla Vista had been allowed to develop into an isolated no-man's land.

Radicals students, greedy landlords, poor university administration and poor governing by the county all were blamed for the troubles, aggravated by the fact that Isla Vista experienced an explosive population growth of 1,800 to 13,000 residents in a decade.

Isla Vista needs a more diversified population and a variety of better municipal services, including street lights, transportation, recreational facilities, health clinics and weed control, the report said.

Gov. Ronald Reagan agreed that more adults should live in Isla Vista, saying it was "unnatural to have a Peter Pan existence" with only students of the same age living together.

The governor also agreed with a recommendation that the university should involve itself in student housing problems. He said it was "necessary" that the university "put itself between the students and the landlords, taking complaints both ways."

George Clyde, chairman of the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors, said enrollment on the campus should not be allowed to grow because there are insufficient service to handle even those already enrolled.

Clyde admitted that "mistakes were made in instigating a widespread curfew" after one of the riots. He said police would issue citations in the future and that a foot patrol suggested in the report would go into effect next month.

Regent Norton Simon said that the regents have known of the problems for a long time, but chose to ignore them. He said the board must take part of the blame for poor conditions because "unless we sincerely mean and feel that, our problems are not going to be solved."

But Tom Tosdall, UC Santa Barbara student body president, expressed the fear that the report would follow many of its predecessors into the waste basket.

Tosdall and some of the regents questioned whether government and university officials would be willing to meet the "price tag" of the recommendations in the report.

UC President Charles J. Hitch praised the report as "an excellent piece of work accomplished under extremely difficult conditions.

"The basic thrust of the report clearly seeks to involve the university much more heavily in the life of Isla Vista and, by extention, in student communities of other campuses as well . . ."

The report said hostility between students and police was "remarkably intense" and recommended formation of a "community force, volunteer or paid, charged with providing policing services that do not involve apprehension of individuals for serious crimes and other activities normally carried out by trained armed officers."

The report also recommended that the university draw up a standard lease form in an attempt to reduce conflicts between students and landlords and also urged the university to develop its own housing.

The commission was headed by Martin A. Trow, a sociologist from the Berkeley campus, and included other professors, attorneys and government officials.

Report Says U.S. Economy Should Be On Upturn Soon

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (UPI) — The U.S. economy has "passed its low point" and should show steady improvement next year, but unemployment will continue relatively high, a report to the Business Council said today.

The report by the Council's economic consultants predicted unemployment would average about 5 per cent next year, down only a little from the current level of 5.5 per cent, the highest mark in almost seven years.

The two-page summary of the report handed to newsmen is about as close to an official council position as the organization of highly independent corporate executives ever gets.

The Nixon administration has been working hard during the Council's weekend meetings to head off a gloomy report that might have heightened fears about the state of the economy.

One administration official conceded the businessmen were less optimistic than were governent officials.

President Nixon invited leaders of the Council to the White House for a Sunday chat about the economy following conclusion of the organization's semiannual meeting.

"The economy has passed its low point, and the outlook is for continued improvement through 1971 despite the impact of the current strike against General Motors," the report said.

The consultants predicted a Gross National Product—the total value of the nation's output of goods and services—would exceed $1 trillion next year.

Capitol Security Is Tightened

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The recent bombings and bomb threats throughout the nation have prompted the state police to tighten security at the capitol.

State General Services Director Charles A. Dixon Friday disclosed that increased security measures have been taken but declined to outline specific action.

"We are doing what we can," he said.

Episcopalians Hear Worst: Budget Crisis

HOUSTON (UPI)—Episcopalians agreed Friday to expand a controversial funding program for black militants and others, but the church's national budget is in its worst crisis since the depression.

At a lengthy program and budget hearing Friday night, speaker after speaker complained of lack of money for ongoing and proposed programs of the 3.5 million-member church.

The church's general convention in 1967 projected the 1970 national budget should be $15.7 million. But the actual quota for 1970 was $14.7 million.

The church's 90 dioceses pledged $11.2 million for this year, missing the mark by $3.5 million, or almost one fourth. The gap in New York City and Long Island alone totaled $800,000.

Forty-six dioceses refused to pledge their quota, and one, the Diocese of New Mexico and Southwest Texas, pledged only a dollar.

The General Convention Special Program (GCSP)—the funding project the church voted to expand Friday — provoked the diocese's cutback by granting $40,000 in 1969 to Alianza, the military Mexican-American group based in New Mexico.

"This church right now is tired, frightened and with very little money and leadership," Bill Coats of La Jolla, Calif., student chaplain at the University of San Diego, told the budget hearing.

$2.8 Million Value Put On Ike's Estate

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—The late President Dwight D. Eisenhower left an estate valued by his executors at $2,870,004.

The executors disclosed the accounting Friday when they filed Eisenhower's Pennsylvania inheritance tax returns with a county register of wills.

Eisenhower, who died March 8, 1969, owned a farm home on the outskirts of this historic borough and maintained an office at Gettysburg College.

The late President's tangible personal property included cattle, farm machinery and equipment, household and office furniture and historical memorabilia valued at $211,894. Intangible personal property, bank accounts, securities and notes, were valued at $261,793.

Royalties earned on books and publications under an agreement with Doubleday & Co., were valued at $519,434. assets worth $1,547,809, are held in trust by the Mercantile Safe Deposit and Trust Co., of Baltimore, Md., and Eisenhower's son, John Eisenhower, ambassador to Belgium.

The accounting listed the interest in the Gettysburg farm property which President and Mrs. Eisenhower gave to the federal government in 1967 to be used as a national historic site. His share of the gift was valued at $329,074 at the time of his death. Mrs. Eisenhower still lives at the farmhouse.

Under the terms of his will, executed May 25, 1965, Eisenhower made certain monetary bequests to persons who served with him for years. He bequeathed his papers and documentary material to the federal government for deposit in the Eisenhower Presidential Library at Abilene, Kan., his boyhood home.

He bequeathed his office furniture, medals, flags and military equipment to the Eisenhower Foundation, also at Abilene. The foundation subsequently transferred the items in that bequest for deposit in the presidential library.

Arrests In Kent Probe Due Monday

RAVENNA, Ohio (UPI)—Twenty-five persons identified only as students and "agitators" were to be arrested Monday on indictments from a sepcial grand jury, which exonerated National Guardsmen and blamed Kent State University administrators for violence on the campus last May.

The grand jury, releasing the indictments Friday, contradicted the president's Commission on Campus Unrest which said it was "unnecessary, unwarranted and inexcusable" for National Guardsmen to fire into a crowd of demonstrators last May 4, killing four students and wounding nine others.

The names on the indictments and the charges were to be kept secret until the arrests were made. First reports said the suspects would be arrested during the weekend.

The weeping is OVER...

You probably heard about the fire that destroyed our beautiful, luxurious, new offices and the Blue Yonder Sandwich Bar at Marin County Airport, Novato. Naturally, it made us a little sad. But . . . we thought of it this way. Now we'd have a chance to re-do those things we wish we'd done a little different the first time. So, we rolled up our sleeves and got to work. We were back in business in a matter of a few minutes. In fact, the first plane took off right on schedule — 7:40 a.m. the same day. We have temporary offices, a hangar and our Cessna fleet. Soon we'll start rebuilding. We're still the best outfit around.

After all . . . you can't keep a good company down!

Bomb Threat Clears School

A telephoned bomb threat that came from within the school cleared San Rafael High School for about 10 minutes yesterday.

Police said a boy called the principal's office from the east wing of the main building at about 10:25 a.m. and claimed there was a bomb in a locker.

For most students the time off from classes while police searched for threatened explosive was "quite a lark", according to a teacher.

The call was traced by the telephone company after an operator held the line open, police said.

Safety Building At Fairfax Pavilion Out

A proposal that a Fairfax public safety building be located in the city park on the site of the Fairfax Pavilion has been rejected by the city planning commission.

The commission reaffirmed its site recommendations for the building at a meeting Thursday, commission secretary Ernestine Healy reported.

Along with the park proposal, the commision rejected for the second time a suggestion that the building be constructed on the site of the old Buon Gusto restaurant on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

Mrs. Healy said the Buon Gusto property was rejected because commissioners felt the price of the land would be too high.

The commission voted to notify the city council again that it feels the proposed building should be located either on Bolinas Road across from the city park, on Park Road at the present site of the police and fire stations or on property adjacent to Central School on Broadway.

The commission also approved a minor revision of a proposed sign ordinance and continued its discussion of the proposed zoning ordinance.

The meeting was adjourned to a zoning ordinance study session next Thursday.

20-Day Cal-Expo, Fair Shows Net Of $312,000

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A profit of $312,012 was netted this year during the 20-day California Exposition and Fair, Gen. Mgr. Thomas E. Bair reported yesterday.

The general manager said racing license fees to the state rose by $30,000 to $419,676.

Bair said the fair attracted 942,691 persons for a record total. The number was 95,265 higher than last year's show.

"The increase in attendance reflects the fair's steady growth at the Cal Expo site," Bair said. "It was certainly the most successful one we have had.

The general manager said he was particularly pleased with the horseracing figures because the wagering was overlapped by the Tanforan meet at Bay Meadows.

More Funds Needed For Decorations

The Christmas Decoration Committee of the Novato Chamber of Commerce needs more funds to install holiday ornaments this year, committee chairman Richard Gronberg has reported to the chamber board.

The committee has collected only $1,800 out of a goal of $5,600. Gronberg told the board Thursday. He urged merchants other than those on Grant Avenue to help with the decorations, secretary Billie Garl reported.

The board accepted the resignation of Paul Terry as director because of business commitments. George Barnwell resigned as chairman of the economic development committee and Iver Sues was named to succeed him.

The board went on record as favoring use of Hamilton Air Force Base by Golden Pacific Airlines, which has applied for use of the base runway.

The board voted to support on the Nov. 3 ballot Measures B, the College of Marin override tax; C, the college's $17 million bond issue, and D, the $3.25 million street bond issue for Novato.

$168,000 Tag On Additional Land To Beach

Marin County can add 31 acres to the county park at McNears Beach at a cost of $168,000, Pierce W. Joske, parks and recreation director, reported yesterday.

Joske said owners of waterfront property to the north of the present 24-acre McNears Beach have offered to sell to the county.

The 31 additional acres, which would extend the county beach to China Camp property, is owned jointly by Donald C. Titus of Sausalito and Linda Graham of Peacock Gap.

Titus's half interest was purchased by the county for $80,000. Miss Graham, through her attorney, is now willing to sell her half interest for $88,000, said Joske.

He will recommend to the board of supervisors Tuesday that the county purchase the additional land. Of the 31 acres, 26 are offshore.

LARKSPUR'S PITCH

Ferry Terminal Plan On Monday

The City of Larkspur's bid to get the Golden Gate Bridge District's main ferry terminal will be unveiled on Monday before district directors at 9:30 a.m. in toll plaza offices.

The fight over the rich plum has been brewing between the city and the Town of Corte Madera since August, when the town disclosed plans for putting the terminal on its shoreline south of the mouth of the Corte Madera Creek.

Larkspur City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst promised then that a plan would be drafted to show the advantages of putting the terminal on the city's shoreline north of the creek mouth.

But nothing more was heard about a Larkspur terminal until yesterday, when Mill Valley architect and planner Norman T. Gilroy announced that agreements had been signed by private property owners to develop the 82-acrea quarry property on Larkspur's waterfront.

Gilroy said the agreements had been signed between the owner of the quarry, the Hutchinson Co., and TI Properties Corp. of Los Angeles, owner of adjacent lands. Gilroy said his firm had been hired at midweek to prepare the plan, and that at least a "concept" would be ready in time for Monday's meeting of the district's joint transportation and finance-auditing committee.

He said his work still was too incomplete to provide details of the plan, but that it would include a "central bus terminal and other related public and commercial facilities to serve Central and Northern Marin County."

He said the dollar value of the development still was unknown, but that it would be a "staged" development over seven to 14 years, eventually replacing the existing quarry operation that has been there since 1924.

Gilroy said TI Properties had set up a Northern California negotiating agent for such projects, Centrum West of San Francisco.

The acreage includes the quarry and 25 acres already diked and filled between East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and the barge landing on the creek.

Bathurst said the city's position would be presented Monday by Mayor Benton A. Sifford. He said that he and the mayor would draft the position over the weekend.

The city staff, Bathurst said, "has reviewed the potential financing and general site locations, and the city will be prepared to make comments on the plan at Monday's meeting." He said that he learned of the agreements on Wednesday.

Bathurst said the project also included "a parking complex in the general area, together with possibilities of shops adjacent and further development in the upper area north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard." He said there was "considerable open space contemplated," including a "marina concept."

He said the advantage of the city's site was that it was accessible from population centers in Ross Valley without using "an already crowded freeway." The Corte Madera site would depend on freeway access.

The bridge district's consulting naval architect, Philip F. Spaulding of Seattle, has said that the Larkspur site "appears to have some advantage over the Corte Madera site," but added that "the final decision might ultimately be based on the merits of the development plans for each site."

Spaulding said in August that the Larkspur site was on existing filled land, while the Corte Madera site would require extensive filling — and therefore approval from the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Spaulding's water transit plan called for a $14 million system. It would include five 636-passenger vessels for peak-hour service each 12 minutes between Central Marin and San Francisco.

He estimated that the system would attract 5,500 passengers a day, and cut by about 3,500 the number of vehicles crossing the congested bridge eacn day.

There are an estimated 45,585,435 students in the nation's public elementary and secondary schools.

Credo Of Kenneth Clark— 'Order Better Than Chaos'

Kenneth Clark, who presides over the prestigious "Western Civilization" series being shown on educational television, offers this as his credo in the concluding program:

"At this point I reveal myself in my true colors, as a stick-in-the-mud. I hold a number of beliefs that have been repudiated by the liveliest intellects of our time.

"I believe that order is better than chaos, creation better than destruction.

"I prefer gentleness to violence, forgiveness to vendetta.

"On the whole I think that knowledge is preferable to ignorance, and I am sure that human sympathy is more valuable than ideology.

"I believe that in spite of the recent triumphs of science, men haven't changed much in the last 2,000 years; and in consequence we must still try to learn from history. History is ourselves.

"I also hold one or two beliefs that are more difficult to put shortly.

"For example, I believe in courtesy, the ritual by which we avoid hurting other people's feelings by satisfying our own egos.

"And I think we should remember that we are part of a great whole, which for convenience we call nature. All living things are our brothers and sisters.

"Above all, I believe in the God-given genius of certain individuals, and I value a soicety that makes their existence possible."

THE ART OF SELF-DEFENSE

I should stand up and fight I'm told.
Be brave and daring and exceedingly bold.
The time to begin this task is now,
While young enough to still learn how.

He glares at me and I hear him say,
"Never ever run away,"
To walk away and let him win,
Would surely be an awful sin.

It sounds like fun, I think I will,
Fight until I've had my fill.
Fighting together is no crime,
We seem to do it all the time.

Fight-one-two-It's really great,
Fighting with love instead of hate.
Hey, I'm beginning to get the beat,
It's not such a remarkable feat.

Fight - three - four - It feels so good,
To fight the way I never could.
Finding such sweet delight,
Arguing each and every night.

Fight - five - six - still going strong,
Didn't believe I could last this long.
Never going to break or bend,
Fight it out to the bitter end.

Bloomfield Land Sale Is Delayed

The Shoreline Unified School District board has delayed indefinitely the sale of 2.3 acres in Bloomfield because of uncertainty on the status of the property.

The board had decided to sell the property, adjacent to the old Bloomfield School, at its Oct. 1 meeting and the Bloomfield Community Club had asked to purchase the land for a park, but trustees tabled the plans Thursday night, according to Supt. Charles A. McCully.

Board member Roy A. Parks explained the board wanted more information on the property because it was unaware whether the previous trustees had made any commitments.

In other business, the board heard the district will be reimbursed 57 per cent of the $27,678 cost of a new bus by the state, and N. Louise Passalacqua was named trustee representative to the County Committee on School District Organization, with Robert Gallagher as alternate.

The board also voted for David Ring of the Tamalpais High School District board as representative to the California School Boards Association.

San Pablo Bay Refuge Is Approved

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 12,000-acre San Pablo Bay National Wildlife Refuge has received formal approval from the National Migratory Bird Conservation Commission.

The land runs from Mare Island Naval Shipyard in Solano County westward to Tubbs Island in Sonoma County.

The refuge, which contains some of the best waterfowl habitat in the North Bay, had been in the planning and development stages for the past year. Its formal approval had been delayed for several months until land title claims were checked and cleared.

Key to the refuge was the purchase of Tubbs Island last year by the Nature Conservancy, which effectively cut off much of the remaining area from feasible development. Since then, negotiations with neighboring land owners made commission approval possible.

Total cost of the site was not available.

Government Readies Contempt Citations

Bay Area truckers played hide-and-seek with pickets in San Rafael yesterday as government attorneys in San Francisco prepared contempt citations gainst two, and possibly three, labor unions.

Walter Kintz, supervising attorney for the National Labor Relations Board in San Francisco, said the NLRB was preparing to seek citations against San Francisco Typographical Union 21, Teamsters Union Local 85 of San Francisco and possibly Teamsters Local 70 of Oakland for violations of two court orders.

U. S. marshals, for the second day in a row yesterday, roamed Marin, serving pickets with papers ordering them to cease picketing.

Kintz said the contempt citations would be sought against the unions for violation of a restraining order issued in February against attempted union stoppage of newsprint bound for the Independent-Journal and a temporary injunction issued in April against illegal picketing of I-J advertisers. Both orders were issued in U.S. District Court in San Francisco.

Pickets at several stores — carrying signs saying they represented the Seafarers' and International Longshoremen's and Teamster's unions — and carloads of men identifying themselves as Teamsters were said by truck companies to have threatened drivers in Central Marin again yesterday.

Most companies were again trying to make Marin deliveries and many drivers — taking back roads and side streets — were getting their deliveries through.

Delta Lines of San Francisco, which had tires on trucks slashed Monday and Tuesday in San Rafael and Corte Madera, said its three trucks made most of their deliveries yesterday.

"At a couple of stores the goons showed up," a spokesman said, and store owners told the drivers not to endanger themselves and to try to make the deliveries some other time.

Three trucks of California Motor Express of San Francisco also made most of their deliveries. A Willig Freight Line truck from Berkeley came into Marin about 10 a.m. and made some deliveries before it "got run out" about 1 p.m., a spokesman said.

Michael McMahon, terminal manager for Alltrans Express of California, said one of his company's trucks out of San Francisco made five of 20 Central Marin deliveries before being "intimidated" by pickets at the Singer Sewing Center, 1235 Fourth Street, San Rafael. McMahon said pickets threatened to slash the tires of the truck if the driver didn't get out of San Rafael.

Most supermarkets received all their deliveries yesterday, in some cases in spite of pickets.

The Safeway store on B Street in San Rafael had its deliveries before pickets showed up in the afternoon. The Lucky store in Fairfax received its goods when pickets left after being served injunction notices by U.S. marshals.

The manager of the Cala Foods store at the Corte Madera Shopping Center said all deliveries to his store had been thwarted during the day, but that produce and one brand of bread finally got into the store in the late afternoon.

Extradition Of Morais Turned Down

Minnesota Gov. Harold LeVander has refused to extradite Forrest Jerrold Morais, 34, former captain of Nor-Cal Security guards employed at the Independent-Journal and wanted in Marin for grand theft.

Marin Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas said yesterday that LeVander had written to California officials that there "seemed to be a dispute of a civil nature" between Morais and his former boss.

LeVander said an extradition hearing had been held and the matter "thoroughly investigated." The governor concluded that until the civil dispute between Morais and Robert Borissof, owner of Nor-Cal Guards, was resolved, he would not send Morais to California.

Morais was arrested in Minneapolis in August on a warrant issued by Marin officials when Morias and money belonging to Nor-Cal disappeared in March.

He was charged with embezzling $1,431 by allegedly keeping a check which had been given him to pay a bill for uniforms.

LeVander's decision against granting extradition also left in doubt Morais's pending trial in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of battery against an I-J picket.

Terra Linda defeated Novato, 7-0. (See Sports for game details.

The Original Galaxie Ruined By Explosions

A rapid-fire series of explosions rocked this Atlanta suburb about 1:20 a. m., split the fusilage on the giant plane and sent "Lockheed No. 1" crumpling to the concrete runway apron like a great wounded silver whale.

The plane was valued by Lockheed at about $23 million, although it was brought out during congressional hearings on the controversial plane that each of the C5's was costing about $50 million. A company spokesman said the $50 million figure included crew training and engineering development costs, spare parts, repair manuals and other such items. Were the company to build a commercial version of the plane, the spokesman said, it would sell for about $23 million.

questions in Romanian. During the 10-minute walk back to the park entrance, there was a constant stream of chatter between the men. The president and his wife walked ahead, admiring the redwood trees.

However, in an unexpected move as the presidential party was about to leave the park, Ceausescu got out of his black limousine and approached Marville, then speaking with newsmen.

The two men exchanged what appeared to be warm comments for about five minutes and then the president re-entered his waiting car and left the park for a tour of Tiburon.

Marville said later the president had told him the request would be granted.

"For three years my mother has been trying to get a travel visa from Romania," Marville told the Independent-Journal. "But they will not grant it to her."

Marville, who said he escaped Romania in 1958 to live in America, said Ceausescu "asked me why I don't come to Romania and visit her. I told him I would be happy to if I received an official invitation and after my mother is allowed to visit me.

"The president told me I could come to Romania and nothing would happen to me," said Marville, a civil engineer. "I told him it was very difficult for me to get time off from work for such a vacation."

Marville said the president told a man (later identified as the president of Romania's passport commission) to give his mother a visa for as long as she wants — "two weeks or two years."

After that, Ceausescu entered his car and the entourage drove off.

WOMEN

June, the FBI said, and later studied at the graduate level. Miss Power was a senior at the institution this year.

Federal warrants issued in Boston on Sept. 24 charged both women with unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for murder.

The FBI said they also were charged in federal warrants issued the next day with theft of government property from a National Guard armory at Newburyport, Mass., on Sept. 20.

Still other warrants issued in Philadelphia charge them with the Sept. 1 robbery of the Bell Federal Savings and Loan Association there. A total of $6,000 was taken at gunpoint.

Miss Saxe and Miss Power, both 20 and white, should be considered armed and dangerous, the FBI said, adding:

"They reportedly belonged, along with the three male bank robbery suspects, all of whom have been apprehended, to a small, revolutionary-type organization which, in addition to attacking military and police forces, reportedly advocated violent attacks against established society and robbery to further their aims and provide financial contributions to such organizations as the Black Panther party."

Mill Valley Middle School Pact Signed

The Mill Valley School District board, at a special meeting last night, signed a $2,592,000 contract for construction of a middle school at Camino Alto and Sycamore Avenue.

Carroll Killingsworth, director of administrative services, said the Dickman Construction Co. of Mountain View would begin construction next week.

He said that if additional district funds are not appropriated within the next few months, installation of showers and lockers in the gymnasium would be postponed.

The board discussed the possibility of selling property purchased in 1958 as a possible school site to raise the funds.

Sale of the Alice Eastwood School site, which has never been developed, would bring approximately $50,000, Killiingsworth said.

No completion date for the middle school has been set, Killingsworth said, but the school is planned to open in the fall of 1971 and accomodate 1,200 sixth, seventh and eighth graders.

The board also agreed to cooperate with the Marin County Health Department's anti-Rubella campaign, but not during school hours; endorsed Tamalpais High School District's opposition to a state requirement that unification elections be held every four years, and met in closed session to instruct its negotiating team on contract discussions with employees.

said Wilson erred, and the county and Marincello interests took it to the state supreme court.

That court ruled for the county and Marincello, against Wheelwright. But, according to attorney Douglas P. Ferguson, precedent was set because the decision also said that the original issue of the road ordinance was a proper subject for a referendum.

The anti-Marincello faction then carried its battle to the U.S. Supreme Court directly — where it was dismissed this week.

Still wending its way through state appelllate courts is a City of Sausalito challenge against the procedure for adopting the planned community ordinance.

such legal mechanisms and methods that ensure democracy and that to abridge them to control a relatively small group of terrorists was overly repressive.

Trudeau promised to end the emergency measures as soon as there is "assurance of the cessation of violence," and by April 30, 1971 at the latest.

Designer Oscar De La Renta Colors Spring Bright, Bold

By CAROLYN A. BOWERS

NEW YORK (UPI)—Spring without color is like a day without sunshine. And the way designer Oscar de la Renta sees it, it will be a perfect spring, bright, bold and beautiful!

De la Renta's spring collection mixed and matched every color in the rainbow and the result was a breathtaking fashion collage shown the nation's store buyers and press Thursday afternoon.

Softy, clingy chiffons in lively oranges, yellows, green and lilacs were shown for evening. Solids and small geometric prints showed throughout the group, most of them mid-calf to ankle length and sweeping the floor. One ankle-length number mingled red, turquoise, and green. Floral Chinese floss embroideries were added on many of the printed chiffon and crepe de chine dresses.

OTHER EVENING wear included a large group of black chiffons, most with sheer long sleeves.

(It's a big season coming up for black in most New York collections). De la Renta showed flowing black chiffon skirts worn with very feminine white lace blouses for after-five combinations.

For daytime there was a group of suede separates. Most in navy or red, they included coats over dresses or skirts and blouses. There were some vests. One of the more striking coat was in red tie-dyed suede. Soft wool jersey capes were on the daytime scene too, paired with matching dresses. One eye-catcher was a lilac cape trimmed in navy, worn over a lilac dress.

Dress and skirts were soft and refined. Although many were pleated, the look was unstructured. Pleats were big for evening too. Daytime lengths were mid-calf to slightly longer.

PANTSUITS FOR daytime were minimal, but culottes and jumpsuits were big for evening. The jumpsuits, in black chiffon, had soft, long sleeves and slightly puffed legs. A second glance was required to catch some of the culottes since many had a long flowing front and back matching shiffon panel giving the illusion of a dress.

The collection closed with two painted leather flower-garden coats. Both were trimmed in feathers down front and around the hemline. De la Renta's retail prices are about $350 and up.

ANOTHER EXCITING spring show happened Thursday at the Jacques Tiffeau collection. The lively offering included barefoot girls, models with faces painted in a measles motif and a white lace short-legged jumpsuit bridal outfit.

The bridal outfit was a stove-pipe pants costume topped by a little lace cage that had a floor-sweeping train attached. The barefoot girls wore jumpsuits or midis, slit up four sides on the skirt. One wore a blue and white blurred print pants outfit and carried a fishing pole with a red heart on the end of the line.

Via dots at odd places over the eyebrows, down the cheek or across the forehead the measles look arrived. But these were black, blue and only sometimes red splashes.

The message coming across

FOR EVENING wear designer Oscar de la Renta showed this black chiffon with long sheer sleeves as he introduced his spring collection in New York this week. It's a big season coming up for black in most of the New York collections.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Should Sanctity Of Wedding Vows Come Before Personal Happiness?

DEAR READERS:

Many of you write, "I read the question, cover up your answer, then see how close I come to your solution — or reaction."

Well, here's your chance to play Helen Help Us!

Below is a problem which has no easy way out, so I'm asking my readers to send me their answers. I'll publish the best, and I'll also keep count of how many modern young people still put wedding vows before personal happiness. It may be an intriguing experiment.

(How do I vote? When in doubt, an advice columnist says, "Wait a while and see." Sometimes true love isn't where one thinks she has found it.)

Forthwith:

DEAR HELEN:

Fifteen months ago my boyfriend of three years, Jimmy, and I had a stupid fight and broke up. To spite him I accepted a date the next night with Ted, and we saw each other all that week. Then he gave me his ring. I took it only to show Jimmy I wasn't hurtin', which I was.

The next day, however, Jim called. After we made up I told him about Ted, expecting him to understand. Instead he got furious, and said if I ever wanted to come back, I'd come crawling. So that was the end of that.

I realize it was a case of pride that kept us apart. Also, Ted was good for my ego. He adored me. Nothing was too good. He'd turn the world upside down for me.

After three months, we progressed to an affair, and I got pregnant. Actually we had intercourse only once, and I regretted it terribly, but the damage was done. We had to get married. Ted wouldn't have it any other way.

Just before the wedding, Jimmy begged me to come back to him, but I couldn't hurt Ted. I thought we'd both get over this. Ted was so happy about the marriage and the coming baby, and I was at the point where I couldn't think.

We moved away from town so I couldn't bump into Jimmy. I destroyed everything that had anything to do with him. I really tried to be a good wife. When the baby came, we seemed very happy and contented. Ted said that now he had everything he'd ever wanted.

Then the inevitable happened — I ran into Jimmy, and the past months of resolutions were all gone. Instead of resenting my baby, he said he wanted her for his own —and me for his wife.

I decided to ask Ted for a divorce but, Helen, I couldn't. I know now I've never loved him, and I may always love Jimmy. But I care so much for Ted (another kind of love, I guess) that I can't hurt him.

Do I stay with him out of loyalty, or crush him by turning to my first and only real love? — JOAN

. . . .Okay, readers, send me your answers. Which will win —romance or reality? Stay tuned for the next episode in this real-life drama —sometime in November. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

In our city they let high school and college students come to classes in any kind of clothes — girls in pants, guys in jeans. You can even go barefoot in college. But in junior hi, we still have to wear dresses and tucked-in shirts. Is this fair? — DISCRIMINATED AGAINST

DEAR DIS:

No. And I'm sure the rules will be changed soon. Relaxed dress codes filter down through the school system fast, once they've gotten a start. You'll see. — H.

PRESS GUIDE IS AVAILABLE

The booklets at the San Rafael office may be obtained from the switchboard on the main floor.

FASHIONS ARE COMIC

Designer Geoffrey Beene closed his spring press show Thursday in New York with these three long, crepe dresses featuring comic strip characters, from left, John Held Jr.'s flapper male with wide-legged pants and patent leather looking hair, Krazy Kat and the Little King. It is speculation whether the comics have made it to fashion's front ranks or fashions have reached comic strip level. (UPI Telephoto)

Krista Martin Becomes Bride Of Timothy Gomes In San Anselmo

He is also the brother of Mrs. Robert Ward of San Diego and April and Candy Smith of Jamestown.

Capes Are Easy To Make And Rank High In Fall Fashion

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I'm not much of a seamstress since I haven't been sewing too long. After looking at ready-made clothes, I find I not only can't afford what is being offered, but the selection is never just what I want. I am wondering if it wouldn't be much easier to make a cape than a coat? Also, some capes are lined, some are underlined and lined, and some aren't lined at all. Why is there such variation in construction?

MARY V.

DEAR MARY V., Yes, a cape is definitely easier to make than a tailored coat, and it is certainly at the top of the pashion picture this fall. A top designer that I interviewed told me that a well-dressed woman always keeps a cape in her wardrobe, even though they seem to come and go in the fashion magazines.

The weight of the fabric and the style of the cape is the determining factor in the construction. When our clothes had a very structured and firm look, it was possible that a cape would need to be underlined to maintain the lines of the design. Naturally, if it is underlined, it would have to have a finish lining to cover the inner construction. If the fabric had a great deal of body, many times the capes were not underlined, but a finish lining was desired.

Today, there is a completely new look in capes. They are softer, more flowing, and have taken on the appearance of a cloak from Medieval times. These capes can be made of lovely wools that look beautiful on both sides and simply finished with flat-felled seams and no interfacing for the fronts, just a turned back facing that is an extension of the front of the garment. These are especially practical in moderate climates.

If you don't use any inner construction to maintain the shape, it is very important that you stay stitch the outer cut edges of your cape before you proceed with the construction. This should be done just inside the seam line, not close to the cut edge of the fabric.

I would like to advise everyone who has a flair for fashion, to make a cape of some type this fall. Corduroy, velveteen, wool, fake furs, vinyls and water-repellant fabrics are all good choices.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have found that often the patterns are cut too high at the neckline for me since I have a short neck. When I cut the neckline down further, the facings won't fit. How can I get the facing to fit the neckline?

MRS. M.C.F.

DEAR MRS. M.C.F.,

The simplest way to adjust the neckline is to pretend it will be just right. Baste your interfacing, cut the same size as the facing on the wrong side of your garment. Next pin the facing in place and machine stitch the neckline.

Try it on and decide if you need to bring your seamline closer to the cut edge for a closer fit or deeper than the seamline if the neckline is too high. If you are sure it is too high, clip the seam clear to the stitching line to release pulling when the facing is turned. If it is still too high, machine stitch slightly lower, usually tapering to the normal seam allowance at the shoulder mark.

Clip down to your new seam allowance and try it on again. This is the most accurate way to keep the neckline from stretching. You can be certain the facing will fit since you are changing the facing and the bodice at the same time.

After the neckline has been properly adjusted, clip the entire seam allowance on the curve of the neckline, grade your seams and understitch. You will have a lovely, flat neckline that will feel comfortable.

DEAR EUNICE,

I love the polyester knits for my clothes I work in and the clothes I have been making for my children to wear to school. The fabric is great, but I really fall down when it comes to the trims. I am mystified that the stores don't carry polyester trims similar to the ones that are used on ready-made garments which are so necessary to avoid the homemade look.

I just want you to know that I love your column because I love to sew. It is especially interesting to me because sewing is essentially a lonely hobby and keeping in touch with others who sew helps one not feel so all alone.

MRS. M.W.J.

DEAR MRS. M.W.J.

Perhaps the town where you live was a little slow to realize that these trimmings are certainly available and in many, many varieties. You should be able to find fringes, braids, edgings, yarn type braids that are used on Chanel suits, laces and almost anything that you will see on ready-mades. Often a manufacturer will weave special collars, cuffs or other trim which is usually not available at fabric shops. However, with a little imagination and searching for the right trims, you should obtain a look even more original than the ones you buy.

De La Renta's Designs Are Colorful

from another show—designer Geoffrey Beene's collection—urned comic. In a tribute to "the great cartoonists of the thirties," Beene closed his showing with three long crepe dresses featuring nearly-life sized comic strip characters. They included the Little King, Krazy Kat, and John Held's flapper male.

THE FLAPPER male—a very dapper type—had patent leather looking hair and wide pants. All of the characters were embroidered on with sequins.

Inspiration from the boys was a feature of much of the Beene collection. He showed a football hero suit with a jacket that looked like a school athlete's sweater complete with two rings of contrasting color on one sleeve.

The American cowboy was another boy look, complete with the authentic cowboy cut shirt and hip slung belt on pants. There were even nautical and hardhat looks.

But a touch of femininity was in the collection too—gay 90s demur print dresses.

Bad Taste Or A Good Joke Gone Wrong?

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — The Italian ready-to-wear collections for spring and summer 1971 closed Thursday with the serious fashion news overshadowed by the high incidence of what looked like deliberate bad taste or a joke gone wrong.

One boutique flatly stated its whole collection was based on what it called the bad taste of another era.

In such circumstances, it would be easy to overlook the important trends. Chief among them are a multiplicity of skirt lengths, but with the midcalf length far and away the favorite, a soft and drifting look in fabrics and the return of the bare midriff and platform soled shoes.

Floral prints abounded on silk and voile and colors got away from the muddy tones of the past ready-to-wear show that were so unflattering to the complexion.

Several houses liked a military look for men and women with jackets and hats dating from the two world wars.

One house pushing the military look was Guarnera, which came up with a skirt no woman soldier wore in any battle. A mini, it had a rectangular opening several inches wide which ended well above the crotch.

Walter Albini, designer for Montedoro, had a World War I line of midi skirts and jackets with elbow length sleeves worn over striped blouses, some of them unfastened from throat to waist.

Fur Collection

IN TAMALPAIS VALLEY

A 'Liberated' Fire Department

By PAT ANGLE

A few months ago a Tamalpais Valley housewife's suggestion that women serve as volunteer firemen was greeted by hoots of laughter from directors of the valley's fire district and male members of the audience.

But Jeanne Creemer, who came up with the proposal at a budget meeting where firemen expressed concern about the dearth of volunteers — particularly during the week — may have the last laugh.

This week, after a good deal of official skepticism and head scratching, her application to become a volunteer fireman was accepted by the fire district board.

And the board members, now that they have decided to take the plunge, appear quite pleased with the innovation. "She is very capable and I am certain she will perform to our advantage and her credit," said Director Bernard Lenhart.

Still a bit surprised to find herself the only lady fireman in Marin County and perhaps the only one in the Bay Area, Mrs. Creemer is nevertheless enthusiastic about her new status.

"The more you learn, the more fascinating it is," she said, adding: "A month ago, I knew absolutely nothing about fire fighting; I thought firemen just plugged their hoses into hydrants to get the water they needed."

Now, she is taking a fire science course at the College of Marin, has completed advanced first aid training and began attending drills this week. Her instructor, Eric Watson, who teaches volunteers for the Tamalpais Valley department, finds her to be "very quick, very responsive to training and a person with a fine attitude."

Perhaps the person most responsible for Mrs. Creemer's being accepted as a volunteer is Tamalpais Valley Fire Chief Richard K. Oswald who recommended her to the board.

The chief admits he was "very skeptical" at first. "I had never been involved with a woman volunteer before," he explained, "but she seemed very sincere, interested and capable and I'm interested in anyone who is civic-minded enough to take time out to help us."

With a grin, he added, "Besides, I like women."

Oswald admitted the department will be very careful with Mrs. Creemer — at least in the beginning — "to not subject her to anything in which she could be seriously injured."

If she proves she can keep up with the other volunteers, then the chief said his only concern "will be that she does what she's told to do."

Mrs. Creemer's latest excursion into a male-dominated field is nothing new for her. Her first job (in Maryland when she was 17 years old) was working in a service station, pumping gas and changing tires. Later, she drove a truck for a ship maintenance firm in Baltimore and worked as a dispatcher for a moving company, a position usually reserved for males, since it entails overseeing the work of many men.

Mrs. Creemer admits she had no idea she would end up as a volunteer when she attended the budget meeting as an interested citizen and taxpayer. "But when I heard the department was short of volunteers, especially during the week when most men are working, it seemed logical to me to use women to fill the gap," she explained.

When she went to the firehouse — also a voter registration center — to apply for the position, she said the fireman at the desk told her brightly: "Well, I'll bet you want to register to vote."

"His mouth dropped when I told him I had come to register as a volunteer fireman," she recalls with a smile, "but he gave me the application anyway."

Mrs. Creemer has found enthusiastic support from her husband, Lloyd, manager of the Mill Valley Lumber Company, her two married daughters ("they're used to me by now") and most of her friends. "Every woman I've told thinks it's great," she said.

How does it feel to be married to Marin's only lady fireman? Great, according to Lloyd Creemer, interviewed at the lumber yard. "I think she had a good idea and I'm glad she's going through with it," he said.

Creemer said he won't mind if his wife has to rush out in the middle of the night to fight a fire, "as long as she doesn't wake me up." The tall, broad-shouldered man admits he has received a lot of teasing and razzing from his coworkers.

"But he's big enough not to have to take too much of it," said a fellow worker, a head shorter than Creemer.

The unusual position does have its amusing moments — because of her sex, like the time the Plectron alarm system rang in her home to announce a fire while a well-groomed house-guest was around.

Mrs. Creemer said she rushed into her boots and gear and started to run out the door when the woman stopped her. "My God, Jeanne, you're not going out of here without combing your hair, are you?" she asked in a shocked tone.

Mrs. Creemer said she hopes she can do a good enough job as a volunteer to open the firehouse door to other women, perhaps eventually as full-time, paid firemen.

She feels strongly that women should have equal opportunities in every kind of job. "I've been fortunate in never running across a job I wanted that wasn't open to me," she said. "It can be done and I'm really happy to hear about women breaking into all-male fields."

However, she knows — but doesn't mind — that her ambition to fight fires is a laughing matter to a great many people, including some of her fellow volunteers.

"It's kind of a joke at this stage of the game, as far as a lot of the guys are concerned," said James A. Oberg, president of the Tamalpais Valley Volunteer Fireman's Association.

Oberg expressed doubts that a woman was physically capable of getting into the fray during a fire. "It can become quite rough," he said and admitted the volunteers will be watching Mrs. Creemer closely to judge her performance.

Mrs. Creemer herself is aware that many eyes will be on her and doesn't relish the idea ("I prefer anonymity"), but knows it can't be helped.

"I just hope I will be good enough so, when people from other departments call up to ask 'How is she doing?', they'll have to say 'She's doing okay,'" she said.

Typographical Error Cleared

A typographical error in yesterday's Independent-Journal report of the jury acquittal of a Sacramento ranch hand on charges of beating a former Novato horseman rendered the story's fourth paragraph unintelligible.

The sentence should have read:

The district attorney's office has maintained that Novato horsetrader Danny Leroy Sedgwick, 30, had hired (Pierre Jon) Hall and (James) Marquis (the acquitted defendant) to beat up Wyatt because he had reported Sedgwick's allegedly crooked horse dealings.

Hall earlier pleaded guilty and was sentenced on an assualt charge. He did not testify in Marquis's Superior Court trial before Judge Samuel W. Gardiner and a jury.

Maria Leone To Sing For Dixie Students

Soprano Maria Leone, former member of the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York, will perform Tuesday for the 120 Dixie School District students who will attend a student matinee of "Carmen" Wednesday at the San Francisco Opera House.

This will be the first of a series of appearances in Marin planned by the singer, in private life Mrs. Joe Alessi of Terra Linda.

The soprano will sing Micaela's Act 3 aria from "Carmen" in the program to be presented at 10:15 a.m. at the Vallecito Junior High School in Terra Linda. It is sponsored by the Council of Music and Arts of the Dixie School District. Douglas Perrin, a teacher at the school, will tell the story of the opera.

Sentencing Date In Burglary Case

Sentencing has been set for Nov. 23 in Marin Superior Court for William James Hayes, 18, of San Rafael, who has pleaded guilty to a charge of concealing stolen property on June 30.

At the time of the guilty plea to the felony, a charge of carrying a concealed weapon was dismissed.

Hayes was arrested in the Country Club area near San Rafael with articles reportedly taken in a burglary there.

Radiation Ovens

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Regulations to limit radiation emissions from new microwave cooking ovens have been issued by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Tiffany Park Bid Is Backed

The Sausalito Recreation Commission has recommended that the city council accept a bid for development of Tiffany Park from Albert Bidegain Landscaping Co. of San Rafael.

Norman Wohschlaeger, director of public works, said Bidigan's bid of $12,599 was the lowest received by the commission.

He said the project will include planting of trees and shrubs, construction of flagstone walkways, benches and a drinking fountain.

THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

San Rafael School Outlay

Salaries of public employees have been the subject of strong debate this year in budget sessions throughout Marin, at meetings of the board of supervisors, at meetings of city councils and of school district and special district boards.

Employees and their representatives, pleading for large pay increases, cited the rising cost of living and often argued that more money was paid in other counties, cities or districts for similar work.

Few employees got as much as they requested. Most local agencies granted more than they were willing at the outset.

The 1970-71 payrolls of all local agencies in Marin as of the start of the new fiscal year, July 1, are being published by the Independent-Journal during the next few weeks as a complete accounting of what is now paid public employees and as a basis of comparison from agency to agency.

Whale Is Well On Its Way To Pet Food Cans

Inverness's woebegone whale that died Wednesday night is well on its way to being turned into pet food today — or whatever it is they do with whales now that whale oil lamps have vanished along with buggy whips.

The 30-foot creature stranded itself Tuesday on the Inverness beach. Concerned neighbors towed it to sea — and it came back. It gasped its last Wednesday night, despite first aid attempts by neighborhood youngsters who poured water over its hide.

The county health department reported yesterday that it had recruited help from the Marshall Boat Works, which sent a boat to pull the whale off the beach at high tide Thursday and tow it back to the Marshall docks.

There, at low tide yesterday, it was hoisted onto a county truck and taken across the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge to the Del Monte fish works at Point San Pablo.

County officials heaved a sigh of relief that the problem had been solved before nose pollution set in.

Market Cautious On Many Fronts

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market backed off in slow trading this week as Wall Street wrestled with a number of discomforting items, including prospects of a large budget deficit, generally sloppy third quarter corporate earnings, the strike at General Motors Corp., and the apparent firm rejection of President Nixon's Vietnam peace plan by the Communists.

Of 1,765 issues crossing the tape, declines outscored advances 1,124 to 491. The NYSE common stock index fell 0.53 to 45.98; Standard & Poors' 500 stock index was off 0.80 to 84.28; and the Dow Jones industrial average, a blue chip barometer, lost 5.34 to 763.35.

Turnover for the five days receded to 50,561,710 shares from 84,132,080 shares a week earlier, and also was well below the 82,561,125 shares traded in the comparable week a year ago.

Congressman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., predicted a fiscal 1971 budget deficit of between $12 billion and $20 billion. He also said he saw no signs of an upturn in the economy or an end to inflation.

Saul Smerling, analyst for Standard & Poor's, said the General Motors strike has cast a pall over things temporarily, but most people are looking for better progress in the economy, probably in early 1971.

He said theoretically the Federal Reserve Board's easier monetary policy is "laying the groundwork" for economic recovery.

Monte Gordon of Bache & Co. attributed the market's setback to the absence of visible evidence that the economy is on the recovery track despite an optimistic statement by a high government officials.

Paul W. McCracken, the President's top economic adviser, said the lagging U.S. economy is "on the threshold" of a vigorous upswing.

"The next major move in the economy almost certainly is going to be upward," he said. McCracken addressed the 1970 UPI Editors and Publishers Conference in Williamsburg, Va.

Lucien Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co. noted that some worry stemmed from belief that economic statistics are not as good as the administration has been advertising. Late in the week, the Federal Reserve reported a sharp drop in industrial output last month.

At Thusday's 88th session of the Paris peace talks Hanoi and Viet Cong delegates turned thumbs down on Nixon's five-point peace plan, announced on Oct. 7.

"Our rejection is firm, radical and categoric", North Vietnamese spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le told newsmen after the session.

One analyst observed that some of the market's recent strength had been attributed to hopes the Communists would at least consider the new peace overture despite their initial denunciation of the plan.

But, he added, these hopes would appear to have been crushed for the time being.

HARVEST FESTIVAL BEGINS

Children of the United Jewish Community Center in Santa Venetia decorate a hut with fruits and vegetables to mark the beginning of the Sukkoth, a festival of harvest and thanksgiving. The festival, which began Wednesday occurs eight days after Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, and continues for five days. It is a reminder of celebrations in ancient Palestine when crops had been gathered and the rainy season was approaching. The hut, called a Succah, has a roof through which the sky must be seen in order to serve as a reminder of 40 years of wandering by Israelites through the wilderness. The last day of Sukkoth is Simchat Torah, celebrating the conclusion of the reading of the Pentateuch and the beginning of the reading of the First Book once again. A speecial Simchat Torah service has been set for 7:45 p.m. next Friday at Congregation Rodef Sholon. (I-J photo)

'Fellowship Of Spirit' Is Key To Rekindling Church

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The church has a curious way of putting forth vigorous shoots of new life at the very moment it seems most in danger of dying.

It has happened time and again during the 2,000 year history of the Church. And it's happening right now.

By all external appearances, the Church today is a badly ailing institution. In many big denominations, membership is declining, attendance is off, and giving is down. There is demoralization among the clergy. Conflict over the church's stand on social issues is causing grave internal dissension.

But in the midst of all these discouraging developments, something new and infinitely hopeful is taking place.

It is a rediscovery of the dynamic reality which the early Christian community called "the power of the Spirit."

When Jesus took leave of his disciples, he promised they would not be left alone and unguided, and would not have to rely on their own dubious strength to carry on in the self-sacrificing way of love he had taught them.

SPIRIT OF GOD

He said the Spirit of God would come into their hearts and take possession of their lives, giving them courage, hope, a capacity for life and a power for goodness vastly exceeding anything they could will or achieve by themselves.

The fulfillment of this promise is vividly described in the New Testament Book of Acts. Indeed, it shines through the entire history of the Church during its first 150 years, when the good news of the gospel spread like wildfire across the Roman world.

When filled with "the power of the Spirit," frightened men became brave, weak men became strong, selfish men became generous, and insensitive men became understanding and compassionate.

The power of the Spirit, which was so central to the life of the early Church, grew less conspicuous over the years, as the Church grew into a rich and successful institution with a good deal of power of its own.

From time to time, the power of the Spirit would flare out, like a sun spot, in a dramatic movement of renewal. But over long periods, the Church acted as though it had all but forgotten its dependency on a power beyond itself. Worse, it sometimes acted as though the power of the Spirit could be tamed, confined to institutional channels, and summoned forth at will by appropriate rites.

WEAKENED STATE

Today, the Church again is in a weakened state, and is compelled to look beyond itself for strength and renewal. So emphasis on the power of the Spirit is undergoing a remarkable resurgence across the whole spectrum of Christian denominations.

Wherever this revival of Spirit-centeredness occurs, the Church quickly learns that it is the answer the modern world has been looking for, and has not found in the dry doctrines, the customs and ceremonies, and the moral preachments offered by the Church when it is in the mood to pass out stones instead of bread.

People who've never been much interested in theological speculations about God are intensely interested in the possibility of actually encountering God as a Reality that can be known and experienced here and now.

And that, of course, is what the "power of the Spirit" is — God in action, God at work in the world, God dwelling in the hearts and minds of men, God here-and-now.

There is nothing for which the modern world has a greater hunger than the experience of direct personal communion with God. To come out of its present doldrums, the Church has only to reclaim its birthright as the "fellowship of the Spirit."

Canadian Lutherans Face Restructuring

WINNIPEG, Manitoba ((LC) — Serious budget restrictions will apparently cause a restructuring of the Lutheran Council in Canada even though proposed constitutional and by-law amendments may not be effected immediately.

The exeuctive committee of the co-operative church agency, meeting on Sept. 30, heard the report of a study committee recommending a restructuring of the Council.

Noting that grants from the partner churches would be $18,000 less in 1971 than in 1970, the study committee recommended that the governing board of LCIC be reduced to 12 members from the present 22 and that thedivisions of Canadian Missions, Service to Military Personnel and the Committee on Youth Activities be discontinued.

The report also recommended discontinuing the standing committees for the remaining divisions: Theological Studies, Information Services ,Campus Ministry, Educational Services and Social Services.

Present executive secretaries for the divisions would be maintained, but would report directly to the councillors (governing board) of LCIC. Their work would be aided by regional committees.

The executive committee accepted the study committee report and agreed to recommend it and necessary constitution and by-law changes to the annual meeting in February,1971.

After hearing that funds available for 1971 would amount to only $140,000, it seemed evident that the study committee recommendations would have to be implemented in order to effect cost savings. The 1970 budget is $167,900.

The study committee had been established at the annual meeting in February this year partly because of the financial squeeze, and partly to evaluate Council programming with a view to recommending changes to effect greater efficeincy and control.

The executive committee, to tailor hte 1971 budget to balance with expected income, found it necessary to also recommend that grants to campus ministry foundations be discontinued entirely.

There are eight local foundations at Canada's universities that have been receiving an annual grant of $3,000.00 ech towards costs of each campus chaplain.

The LCIC is the co-operative agency of the Evangelical Lutheran Chuchrch of Canada; Lutheran Churc h in America - Canada Section; and Lutheran Church-Canada. It was organized in 1967 to "further a Lutheran witness by co-operating in matters of common interest.

TWO SURVEYS

Clue To Empty Pews On Sunday

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Ministers who wonder why they face so many empty pews on Sunday may find a clue in two surveys conducted recently among Episcopalians.

Both were concerned with the qualities that are desirable in a pastor.

One survey, conducted by the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Ohio, asked both laymen and clergymen for their views. The results demonstrate how wide a gulf has grown up between laity and clergy on the proper role of the latter. Respondents were asked to rank various traits in order of their relative importance to the success of a clergyman's ministry.

The laymen agreed overwhelmingly that the most important trait to be sought in a pastor is "a strong personal faith." The second most important, they said, is a capacity for "responsible interpretation and communication of the faith."

The clergy did not attach comparable importance to these things. They ranked personal faith third among the desirable attributes of a minister. Communication of the gospel was seventh on their list of priorities.

Clergymen feel their most important function is to display "concern for the problems of the community and the world." The next most important trait, they said, is "an attitude of openness to change." The laity ranked both of these things very low in importance.

The other survey was conducted by the Episcopal Church Foundation, and involved questionnaires sent to 2600 laymen across the nation. They also were asked to rank, in order of importance, attributes desirable in a clergyman.

A strong personal faith was not even mentioned in the foundation's questionnaire, so the laity had no chance to vote for that. But they did give first priority to a quality which closely corresponds to it: that a minister be "well grounded in theology."

The second most important trait, they felt, was that a pastor be "an interesting and relevent preacher" — which corresponds to the capacity for "responsible communication" which Ohio laymen placed second on their list of desirable ministerial qualities.

What stands out from both polls is that laymen want ministers who are — in the old-time phrase — "men of God," imbued with a deep and contagious personal faith.

The clergy, on the other hand, tend to see their role primarily in terms of social activism.

A minister certainly has a right to define his role in the light of his own conscience.

But if his exercise of this right causes him to ignore or disappoint the expectations of laymen, he should not be surprised to find them drifting away from his church.

Two Groups Will Sponsor Interfaith News Program

NEW YORK (LC) — A new "Church World News" interfaith news program, sponsored jointly by the Lutheran Church in America and the American Lutheran Church, will be offered radio stations in the United States and Canada starting Oct. 24.

Church World News, now distributed to 330 stations by the LCA, will be combined with the ALC's "Church at Work." Initially, the newscast will be sent to 490 stations.

Dr. Robert E. Bornemann of the Lutheran Seminary at Philadelphia, chairman of the LAC's Commission on Press, Radio and Television, said:

"This new cooperative effort by the American Lutheran Church in America replaces Church inAmerica replaces what has been described as 'America's first interfaith religious newscast' with a new format that should better serve those stations which broadcast it. And it marks another milestone in the combining of Lutheran interests in areas of common interest or concern."

Church World News was introduced in 1951. It has won several national awards as an "outstanding public service." Included have been honors by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Ohio State University and the Catholic Broadcasters Association of America.

It will continue to be offered through the Broadcast and Film Commission of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. And a Spanish translation provided in cooperation with the Episcopal Church will be continued.

Bornemann said "tribute must be paid Dick Sutcliffe who has been commentator for the present LCA program for most of its 19 years."

Sutcliffe, former associate director of the PRT Commission, now is director of University Relations at Southern Methodist University.

The new program, Dr. Bornemann said, will include taped actualities — the voices of many of those making the top religious news these days — and news and commentary will be presented by two radio veterans.

Mount Harmon Leader To Be Guest Speaker

Rev. Bill Gwinn, executive director of Mount Hermon Conference Center near Santa Cruz, will be the guest speaker tomorrow at the 9:30 worship service of the Marin Covenant Church. He will be speaking on "Who's In Charge Here?"

Following the morning service there will be a discussion of the message with adults and teenagers during the church school hour.

Gwinn is widely-known as a speaker and an authority on Christian camping. He is on the board of directors of Bible Study Fellowship, Westmont College in Santa Barbara, and of African Enterprise. Most recently he was a representative to the Billy Graham-sponsored Congress on Evangelism in Minneapolis.

The two Sunday morning sessions with the congregation of the Covenant Church will conclude a three-day visit in this area. Beginning last night, Gwinn led an adult retreat for the congregation on the theme of the "Lordship of Christ."

The Marin Covenant Church now meets on Sundays at the Miller Creek Junior High School at 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue in Marinwood.

Cutbacks In Church Pledging Concern To All Denominations

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religious Writer

This is "every member canvass" season — the time when churches across the nation seek financial pledges to support their work during the coming year.

Unless the results are a lot better than they were last fall, many churches are going to be in serious trouble.

In most of the major denominations, giving has leveled off or declined during the past year. With inflation driving up costs at a rate of 5 to 6 per cent a year, even a leveling off means a reduction in church programs of ministry, education and service.

Foreign missions have been particularly hard hit. The United Presbyterian Church, whose 3.3 million members probably have the highest average income of any religious body in the world, had to slash its support of overseas work from $16 million in 1969 to $14.6 million in 1970. The cut would have been even steeper had not the church tapped its reserve funds for $2.5 million.

"We can't keep that up," warned Dr. Theophilus M. Taylor, secretary of the denomination's General Council.

"These reserves, which have been accumulated over long periods of time as a buffer against emergencies, never were very large and soon will be exhausted."

The same kind of pinch is being felt—all the way from the local congregation to the national level—in many other leading denominations, including the United Methodist Church, Episcopal Church, American Baptist Church, Lutheran Church in America, and Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Many factors seem to be involved in the decline in giving.

INFLATION SQUEEZE

Inflation has put a severe squeeze on millions of middle income family budgets—and giving to the church is a painless place to economize.

Some pledge-cutters justify their giving strike as a protest against social activism by the church. This is a classic example of burning down the barn to drive out a rat. Out of every dollar given to churches, less than one half of one cent goes into social programs designed to help victims of poverty and racial discrimination.

Still another factor is increasing competition for the giver's dollar. Some people who used to give generously to churches are now diverting a major portion of their annual giving to educational institutions, welfare agencies, or health programs.

The most important factor, perhaps, is a widespread public impression that churches are rolling in wealth and don't need any more money. This is pure nonsense. Churches do own a great deal of real estate—about $100 billion worth—but most of it consists of unsaleable buildings which are used for only a few hours a week.

A LIABILITY

Far from producing income, church property is a liability: it has to be heated, lighted, insured, swept, painted, and periodically re-roofed. The overhead costs of building repairs and maintenance consumes a very large share of the average church's income.

New congregations have the option of avoiding this heavy burden by meeting in rented or makeshift quarters. But an established congregation which already owns a costly building has little choice but to go on making the mortgage payments and trying to keep the place in repair.

Possibly it's time for Americans to ask themselves: Do we really want to dispense with the Church as a community institution? If not, we are going to have to start supporting our churches a little more adequately.

Film On Israel To Be Shown Monday

"His Land," a film on Israel, will be shown at 8 p.m. Monday at the San Rafael Improvement Club, Fifth and H streets.

It is being sponsored by the Marin Evangelical Free Church and open to the public, according to Rev. Sam Walberg, pastor.

Back And Forth

SAN GABRIEL (UPI) — The San Gabriel Mission was built here by the Franciscan Fathers in 1771, secularized in 1852, and signed back to the Roman Catholic Church in 1859 by President James Buchanan.

Graham Session To Be Held Thursday

SUCCESSOR SOUGHT

Gompertz Leaves Church In Ignacio For A New Field

Left without a vicar, the congregation of the Church in Ignacio is to meet tomorrow at 10 a.m. to discuss its future.

Rev. Charles Gompertz, who founded the Episcopal congregation in the Pacheco Shopping Center five years ago, resigned effective Oct. 1.

While a successor is sought, Rev. Don Sower, newly arrived in Novato from a Livermore parish, is filling in at the 8 and 10 a.m. Sunday services.

Gompertz, who resigned to take a job with Land Investment Research of Larkspur, said money was not his motive. The innovative vicar claimed most churchgoers resist departure from traditional religious practices.

He said that after five years with the church, it is "time to let it fly on its own ability."

Faced with waiting three to six months for a successor, the congregation is scheduled tomorrow to adopt a plan submitted by the bishop's committee — the church ruling group — which calls for use of a worker priest and seminary student until Gompertz' successor is chosen, according to Irwin Griffin, warden of the ruling group.

Any plan adopted must be submitted to the Department of Missions of the church for final approval. Approval by that body is required because the 60-family church — technically a mission — is not yet self-supporting, Griffin said.

CHARLES GOMPERTZ
Progressive vicar

Known as a progressive, Gompertz spoke out on such issues as birth control and germ warfare from the pulpit, but he felt his greatest contributions were working with the young and sponsoring dances.

In 1968 he produced in San Francisco an Interfaith Council television program for teenagers called "Help" and in 1965 produced a folk mass by jazz musician Vince Guaraldi.

He donated church facilities to the Terra Linda Little Theater in 1966, saying the play was "a more effective sermon than most preachers are able to deliver . . ."

Gompertz is still president of the Planned Parenthood Association of Marin, but has resigned from other organizations like the Volunteer Bureau of Marin, the Marin Institute on Alcoholism, the Family Service Agency of Marin, Marin Mental Health Association and the Marin Council of Churches.

Case Referred

The case of Paul Edward Le Clair, 19, of San Anselmo, who is charged with possessing marijuana Sept. 26 in San Anselmo, was referred yesterday to the probation department for a report on whether it is acceptable for disposition in juvenile court.

16.5 Per Cent Pay Boost Wins Regents' Favor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The University of California Board of Regents has voted to recommend a 16.5 per cent faculty pay boost next year, but reserved the right to change the figure later if a special committee decides it's too much.

The decision Friday was a compromise after some regents complained the figure was too high and others contended it was barely enough to cover rises in the cost of living over a two-year period.

The proposal would boost salaries 11.2 per cent to the median level of salary schedules at 19 public and private comparable universities with which California competes in hiring professors.

The proposal also recommends increased fringe benefits equivalent to 5.3 per cent of salaries.

Glossy Green House Upsets Homeowners

"Bright, glossy green" is simply not acceptable as the color for a house in Peacock Gap, according to a suit filed in Marin Superior Court by the homeowners association of the subdivision.

Not only did Robert G. and Naomi T. Bruce paint their house at 212 Riviera Drive the unacceptable color about two months ago, but they then moved to Southern California, leaving the house for sale, according to attorney Bryan McCarthy.

The Peacock Gap Homeowners Association, noting that the Bruces did not apply for approval by the subdivision's architectural review committee as required by deed restrictions, has asked that the court require abatement or a new paint job.

Large Emigration To West Germany

WIESBADEN, GERMANY — West Germany has rapidly become one of the world's choice countries among emigrants. Last year alone, one million people arrived in the country and took up residence.

At the same time, 440,000 West German residents emigrated from the country, leaving a net gain of 560,000. Foreign workers coming to West Germany for better pay and jobs are believed to have accounted for the lion's share of immigrants.

Hall Defends Angela For Hiding Out

NEW YORK (UPI)—Angela Davis might have surrendered after the November election, American Communist Party chairman Gus Hall indicated Friday.

Hall spoke at a rally of about 150 supporters of the black revolutionary outside Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's office. He said she had opportunities to flee the country in the two months she was hunted in connection with the shoot-out at the Marin County Hall of Justice that left four persons dead.

She choose to remain and face the murder charge at an "opportune time" and might have surrendered "when the hysteria has subsidied and Gov. (Ronald) Reagan can't use it in his election campaign," Hall said.

Miss Davis was arrested by FBI agents in a New York motel this week. David R. Poindexter Jr., who was arrested with her and charged with harboring a fugitive, was released Friday on $100,000 bail.

About 150 persons took part in the rally in support of Miss Davis who is accused of buying the guns used in the shootout.

Reagan was expected to ask Rockefeller to extradite her to California for trial. Rockefeller's office said it had not yet received the request from the California governor.

Time In Jail On Burglary

Judge Peter Allen Smith, sitting as a superior court judge, placed Robert Sterling Evans, 22, of San Rafael, on probation for three years yesterday and ordered him to spend six months in the county jail for two burglary convictions.

Evans was convicted by a jury of the attempted burglary of a San Anselmo residence on June 10 and the burglary of a San Rafael house on June 27.

He is to receive credit on his jail sentence for the time he has served since the second arrest.

A co-defendant in the San Anselmo arrest, Dennis Victor Chesley, 20, of San Rafael, is to be sentenced next Friday.

Terra Linda Wins Tough Battle, 7-0

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Linebacker Larry Mandin intercepted a pass deep in Novato territory late in the fourth quarter to set up the only touchdown of the game last night as Terra Linda High School edged past the Hornets, 7-0 in a Marin County Athletic League football game played before 3,500 fans at San Rafael High School.

For the prideful Trojans, the victory, in their 1970 homecoming game, was number three against no losses in league play. And as been the case in all of their wins, the defending MCAL champions produced a tremendous second half surge that did the job.

Once again it was defense that dominated as Terra Linda held the Hornets to a total of 98 yards, and dropped them for minus 19 yards rushing. In the second half Novato registered only a single first down as the Trojans time and again foiled the passing attack of quarterback Marty Moroski.

BULLET BACKFIRES

With the ball on the Hornet 17 yard line and less than four minutes left in the game, Moroski shot a bullet across the middle, which Mandin stepped into as though it has been meant for him. He brought the ball back to the 15, and from there the winning touchdown was practically inevitable.

Matt Bowman, who finished as the game's leading rusher with 41 yards, carried twice to the one yard line, and quarterback Larry Kerr muscled his way over for the score.

Moroski had a somewhat nightmarish game, completing only 8 of 21 passes. Considering Novato's pitiful ground game, however, the junior signal caller did a creditable job. The Trojans dumped him only four times; he scrambled around well.

SCREEN ATTACK

Kerr, on the other hand, completed 12 of 17 passes for 141 yards and did an outstanding job finding open receivers. More than half his passes were screens, which continually fooled the Hornet defense. Tiny Rick Trono caught five passes, four of them screens, for 55 yards, and Bowman caught three screens for 39.

Novato played the Trojans even up in the first half, when the Hornets had the game's only other scoring opportunity. Early in the second quarter, Moroski put the Hornets on the Terra Linda 17 yard line when he hit Dave Judnick with a 42 yard bomb.

The Trojans held, however, and blocked a field goal attempt by Bob Cooper, who had kicked three-pointers in each of Novatos' two previous league games.

LaHAYE STARS

Terra Linda's defensive effort was spearheaded by end Bill LaHaye, who recovered two fumbles, and by Trono, who as halfback had the unenviable task of covering wide receiver Judnick. He held the big end to only two catches, although they were worth 56 yards.

Novato now has one win and two losses in league play.

SHARON WALSH STUNS ENGLAND'S MISS WADE

"It was the best win of my career," gushed San Rafael teener Sharon Walsh yesterday after she stunned top-ranked Virginia Wade of England in the semi-finals of the Dewar Indoor Tennis Cup tournament at Edinburgh, Scotland.

Miss Walsh, the national junior champion who graduated from San Rafael High School last June, had her usual first set jitters, losing to Miss Wade by a 2-6 margin. But the 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Les Walsh of San Rafael came back strong to take the match 6-2, 11-9.

Miss Walsh, who is eligible to win prize money abroad although she can't collect cash in the United States until she turns 19, also advanced in doubles yesterday. Teaming with Betty Stoever of The Netherlands, Miss Walsh downed Miss Wade and Ann Hayden Jones, also of England, 17-15, 7-9, 6-2.

BANTAMWEIGHTS

Castillo Wins Title On A Cut

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Chucho Castillo capitalized on his willingness to trade punches and an eye cut suffered by champion Ruben Olivares to lift the bantamweight crown in a hard-fought bout Friday Night at the forum.

Olivares suffered the cut in the first round, possibly as the result of an accidental butt, but lasted until 2:27 of the 14th round when referee Dick Young halted the bout on the recommendation of ring physician Dr. Jack Useem.

Before the fight was halted, it had the crowd of 16,007 which paid a gross gate of $215,902.50 cheering wildly. Promoter George Parnassus said a rematch was in the making to be held either in Mexico City, Chicago or here.

The two judges, Lee Grossman and Rudy Jordan, and the UPI scorecard had the fight even while Young had Castillo ahead by a point at the finish.

"Considering the cut Olivares suffered in the first round and how even the fight was until it was stopped, there has to be a rematch," Parnassus said.

UPHILL CLIMB

The victory was the climax of a long, uphill climb for Castillo, who dropped an unpopular 15-round decision in a title fight with the then champion in 1968, Lionel Rose. The 26-year-old Mexican battler lost a 15-round decision to Olivares in a title bout last April.

Castillo denied he had butted Olivares in the first round and said if the cut over the left eye had been the result of a butt it would have been on the cheek or forehead.

"I hit him with an overhand right," the new champion said. "He's a tough guy and hit me solid but I was never in danger of going down. I was stronger than ever at the finish."

SOLID HOOKS

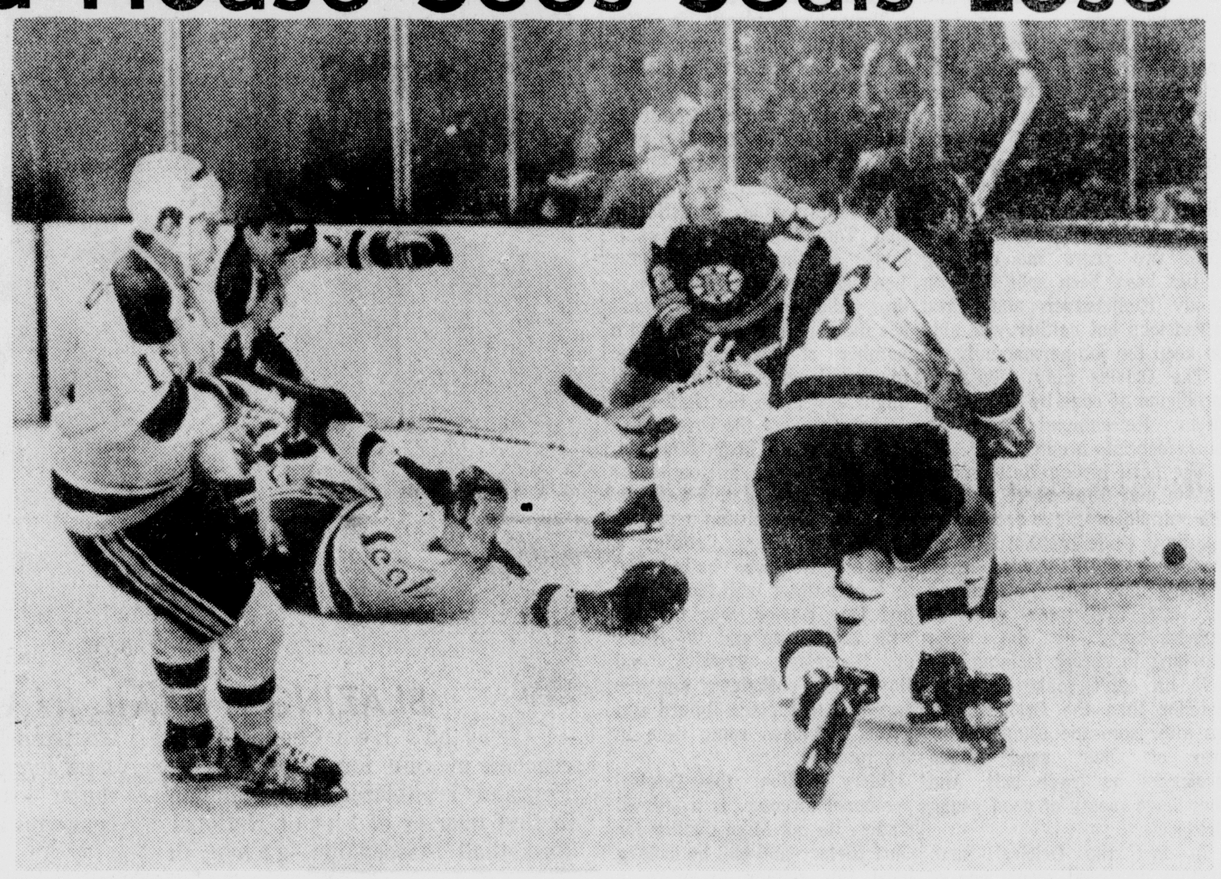
Olivares won the first round before he suffered the cut in the final seconds. The flow of blood was stemmed for several rounds during which he piled up a lead with his solid left hooks.

"When the bleeding started again in the middle of the fight," Olivares said, "I had to change my style of fighting. I had to keep my left up more and when I let it go I was wide open."

Under California boxing rules, the outcome goes into the record book as a knockout even though the fight was halted as the result of the cut.

Packed House Sees Seals Lose

By DAVID DIETZ



BRUIN SCORE — Bobby Orr (partially obscured by Oakland's Harry Howell - 3) scored goal in leading Boston to 5-1 victory over Seals last night. Other Seals are goalie Gary Smith on ground and Gary Croteau (18) and Wayne Muloin. (UPI telephoto)

OAKLAND — If the Kansas City Chiefs have the football offense of the 1970s, then the Boston Bruins defending Stanley Cup Champions, are the hockey symbol of the decade.

The marauding Bruins, led by Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito, spoiled the Seals' 1970-71 National Hockey League homecoming last night with a 5-1 victory before a capacity crowd of 12,089 at the Coliseum Arena.

It was a close game (2-1) after two periods, but Boston, which has now scored 20 goals in three games, broke it open in the third with three tallies.

Orr and Esposito, a pair of dynamos who make the Bruins' offense go, had a profitable night at the expense of Seals' goalie Gary Smith. The 22-year-old Orr, a defenseman who is called by many the greatest in hockey history, scored twice, once on a thunderous breakaway Esposito scored once and assisted on three other tallies.

BRUINS BOTTLED

The Seals played good hockey in the second period, keeping the tall, mobile Bruins bottled up in their own end, but couldn't generate much offense in the first and third sessions because of poor passing.

"We had problems in our own end and you don't play offense down there," said coach Fred Glover. "Unfortunately, these aren't problems which are going to cure themselves overnight."

Glover praised the Bruins. "They're a good hockey team. They have a great deal of confidence and they show it when they move that puck."

Boston took a 2-0 lead after the first when Wayne Cashman scored only 17 seconds into the game on a tip-in and Orr followed five minutes later with a shot into an open net after Smith had sprawled to make a save.

Seals' winger Gary Croteau set up Dennis Hextall with a pretty pass to make it 2-1, but scores by Esposito, Bucyk and Orr put the game away in the last period.

BUSY NIGHT

The Seal management said it turned away 3,000 fans for the opener. For those who did get a seat, it was a busy night. There were fights on the ice and even one in the stands, and Charley O. Finley showed off a host of frills that would curl the hair of purists. There were skating walruses, skating mules and a lady skater with a Seals' sandwich board attached to her.

When Charley O. the mule (two skaters under a sheet) skated out before the game, a wag in the stands roared: "C'mon, let's play hockey."

Vacuum Car Sweeps To Laguna Record

MONTEREY (UPI)—Vic Elford of England drove Jim Hall's new Chaparral sports car to a record qualifying lap in the opening day trials of the $76,000 Monterey-Castrol Grand Prix at Laguna Seca Raceway.

The British driving ace stormed around the 1.9 mile, nine turn Monterey road course in 59.4 seconds averaging 115.1 m.p.h. at the helm of Hall's revolutionary "vacuum cleaner" type sports car. The quick lap was one-tenth of a second faster than the previous mark set last October by Bruce McLaren.

Elford's run came as somewhat of a surprise. Hall's Chaparral was said to be ready for the Laguna race, but it took a record effort to prove how well development of the ground hugging sports car had come along.

Denny Hulme of New Zealand, point leader in the million dollar Can-Am series, posted the second fastest time of the day, a 1.00.2 clocking in the Team McLaren No. 1 car.

New York's Peter Revson temporarily holds on to the post spot in the second row by virtue of his 1:01.2 run.

Foreigners dominated the opening trial sessions. This year's Monterey field lists ten starters from overseas. Four qualified in the first five spots.

Hulme teammate Peter Gethin of England held fourth fastest time while Jackie Oliver took the new titanium car home fifth.

On Saturday, qualifying will be completed for Sunday's featured 200-mile event. Four national amateur championship sports car races will be held.

Long Beach Romps

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) —Randy Drake ran over from the six-yard line in the opening period and then fired a 59-yard strike to Chuck Davidian to open a four-touchdown barrage in the second period as Long Beach State belted winless UC Santa Barbara 33-7 Friday night.

76ers Trade Imhoff To Royals

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Royals have acquired veteran 6-foot-10 center Darral Imhoff from the Philadelphia 76ers in a four-man deal on the eve of the first meeting between the two clubs.

The Royals sent center Connie Dierking, forward Fred Foster and the team's second round 1971 draft choice to the 76ers for Imhoff.

Imhoff, who had been suspended by the 76ers for not signing a contract before the season began, will join the club Sunday after the two teams play in the Cincinnati Gardens tonight.

Tam Sailing Club

A sailing club for beginning as well as experienced sailors will be formed at an organizational meeting tomorrow from 9 a.m. to noon at the Mill Valley small craft harbor at the foot of Sycamore Avenue.

Stanley Pease, social studies teacher at Tamalpais High School, will head the club, which is open to all Tamalpais High students. He invited all interested youths, experienced or not, to attend Sunday's meeting.

20 Turnovers Ruin A Black-Tie Affair

The San Francisco Warriors don't have much time to reflect on Friday night's 120-106 National Basketball Association loss to the Detroit Pistons.

The Warriors swing right back into action tonight, traveling across the bay to the Oakland Arena where they'll entertain the first-year Cleveland Cavaliers.

Except for the fine all-around play of Jerry Lucas, San Francisco's season opener—a Black Tie affair at the Cow Palace—was a dismal one. The Warriors committed 20 turnovers.

Two quick field goals by Bob Lanier, the NBA's first draft pick, in the second quarter put the Pistons ahead for good, 32-28. During the period, Lanier hit for 10 of his 19 points to give Detroit a 56-46 halftime edge.

Behind Lucas and Jeff Mullins, the Warriors made a run, closing the difference to 62-57, but an 11-2 Detroit spree in the third period proved too big to overcome.

Dave Bing topped the Detroit scorers with 27 points. Lucas topped all point-makers with 31. In addition, he had 16 rebounds.

In other NBA action Friday night, Porland beat Cleveland 115-112, Los Angeles edged Chicago 106-102 and Philadelphia downed San Diego 127-119.

Jim Barnett and Geoff Petrie rallied Portland in the last 3½ minutes to give the Trail Blazers their triumph over Cleveland in a battle of expansion teams.

Barnett had 31 points and Petrie, the Blazers' No. 1 draft choice from Princeton, scored 13 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter as Portland, Oregon's first major league team, won its NBA debut.

Jerry West scored 29 points and Wilt Chamberlain had 26 as Los Angeles put down a second half Chicago rally to beat the Bulls. West and Chamberlain teamed for 24 points as the Lakers took a 60-44 halftime lead, but Chicago moved to within three points in the second half before West's free throws late in the game put it out of reach.

CHANGING OF THE TITLE

Ruben Olivares drops in close and blocks a flurry of blows by Chucho Castillo during opening round of their scheduled 15-round bantamweight title fight in Los Angeles last night. 49ers Favored Over New Orleans

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco's shuttle defensive line came of age against the Los Angeles Rams last Sunday but will have to be as good again this Sabbath when the 49ers host the New Orleans Saints.

The 49ers used eight linemen — ends Tommy Hart, Bill Belk, Cedric Hardman and Stan Hindman and tackles Charlie Krueger, Roland Lakes, Earl Edwards and Sam Silas— to stop Roman Gabriel and Los Angeles, 20-6, last Sunday.

All except Hindman will be in action this Sunday against the Saints, and coach Dick Nolan said "we will sink or swim with these fellows. They have done of late what we expected earlier, and naturally, now we'll expect them to be as good every week."

Nolan, while praising his defensive troops, said not to forget "the whole gang." That would be linebackers Dave Wilcox, Frank Nunley and Skip Vanderbundt and backs Jimmy Johnson, Bruce Taylor, Mel Phillips and Rosey Taylor.

IN THE CLOUDS

It's been difficult for Nolan and his coaching aides to bring the 49ers out of the clouds in practice this week.

Beating Los Angeles is a big thing for San Francisco, and isn't easily forgotten.

"We've had some problems," said Nolan, "but nothing we couldn't handle. New Orleans has won only one of three but that's a better club than the record shows. We can't look back, as good as the victory over Los Angeles was. The club that looks back may forget to look ahead."

The oddsmakers have installed the 49ers, tied for first in the NFL's Western Division race wtih the Rams at 3-1, 10 point favorites over the Saints, who are 1-3.

The Saints, who go into Sunday's tilt without defensive end Dave Long and tight end Ray Poage, came up with their best offensive show of the season last Sunday while bowing to St. Louis, 24-17.

Edd Hargett took over at quarterback for New Orleans in that one and completed 13 of 38 for 220 yards. The Saints also gained 222 yards on the ground for a total offense of 342 yards. Dave Parks, an ex-49er, snagged seven passes for 114 yards and a TD.

NO INTERCEPTIONS

John Brodie, the veteran San Francisco quarterback, leads National Conference passers with no interceptions in 99 attempts and a nearly 67 completion average.

As good as Brodie has been this year it's the defense, though, that has made the difference.

"We are doing things now we never did before," Nolan said of the defense.

The fact the 49ers are carrying four ends and four tackles indicates Nolan's emphasis on defense.

"With that many men (linemen) available we can always have fresh players in the game," Nolan said. "Late in the game it makes a difference."

In the Rams game Nolan shuttled his ends and tackles almost on every play. As a result, Gabriel never was able to concentrate on any one man to wear him down.

Hindman injured his leg in the Los Angeles game and will not be able to play against the Saints. Offensive guard Randy Biesler and Wilcox are questionable but more than likely will see some action. Biesler has a pinched nerve in his back and Wilcox a banged up knee.

Preston Riley, the swift rookie from Memphis State, once again will start at wide receiver in place of the recuperating Dick Witcher. Riley lost a couple of teeth in practice this week. Witcher's problem is a sore shoulder.

Brodie, after last week's game against Los Angeles, has completed 1,936 career passes, just 64 short of 2,000, a plateau reached previously only by Johnny Unitas, Y. A. Tittle and Sonny Jurgensen.

Kickoff for Sunday's game is 1:05 and a crowd of 50,000 is anticipated.

O's Won't Rest On Laurels, Eye Trade Mart

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The world champion Baltimore Orioles made it to the top through a strong farm system and some key trades and they intend to stay there the same way.

Although the Orioles were still basking in the glow of their World Series victory Friday, some were already looking toward next season and thinking about some changes that may be made.

The Orioles are not a standpat team and do intend some changes in the roster before next April.

"There are going to be some trades," a spokesman said.

First of all the Orioles want a first line catcher, a fellow who can play every day. For the past two years the catching duties have been split between Andy Etchebarren and Elrod Hendricks but neither was able to keep the job permanently.

The Orioles may solve two problems at once by converting Merv Rettenmund from an outfielder into a catcher.

The hard hitting Rettenmund has to play somewhere and all the outfield positions are locked up for a while by Don Buford, Paul Blair and Frank Robinson. Playing part time, Rettenmund hit .322 this year with 18 homers and he did some catching in spring training.

If he can't make it as a catcher then the Orioles may go after someone using one or two of their good young prospects as trade bait. And they have plenty of good young prospects.

In fact the Orioles' farm system produced every one of the players in the starting lineup and the starting pitching rotation except Frank Robinson, Don Buford and Mike Cuellar. For nine years in a row the combined record of the Oriole farm clubs has been over .500 a record no other system can match.

In addition to a catcher the Orioles are looking for another relief pitcher as insurance against some wear showing in their bullpen next year. Eddie Watt, Pete Richert and Dick Hall were the mainstays this year but Hall is 40 and the other two have seen a lot of work over the past two seasons.

The Orioles don't have any really strong immediate pitching prospects in their farm system so to get a relief pitcher they will have to trade.

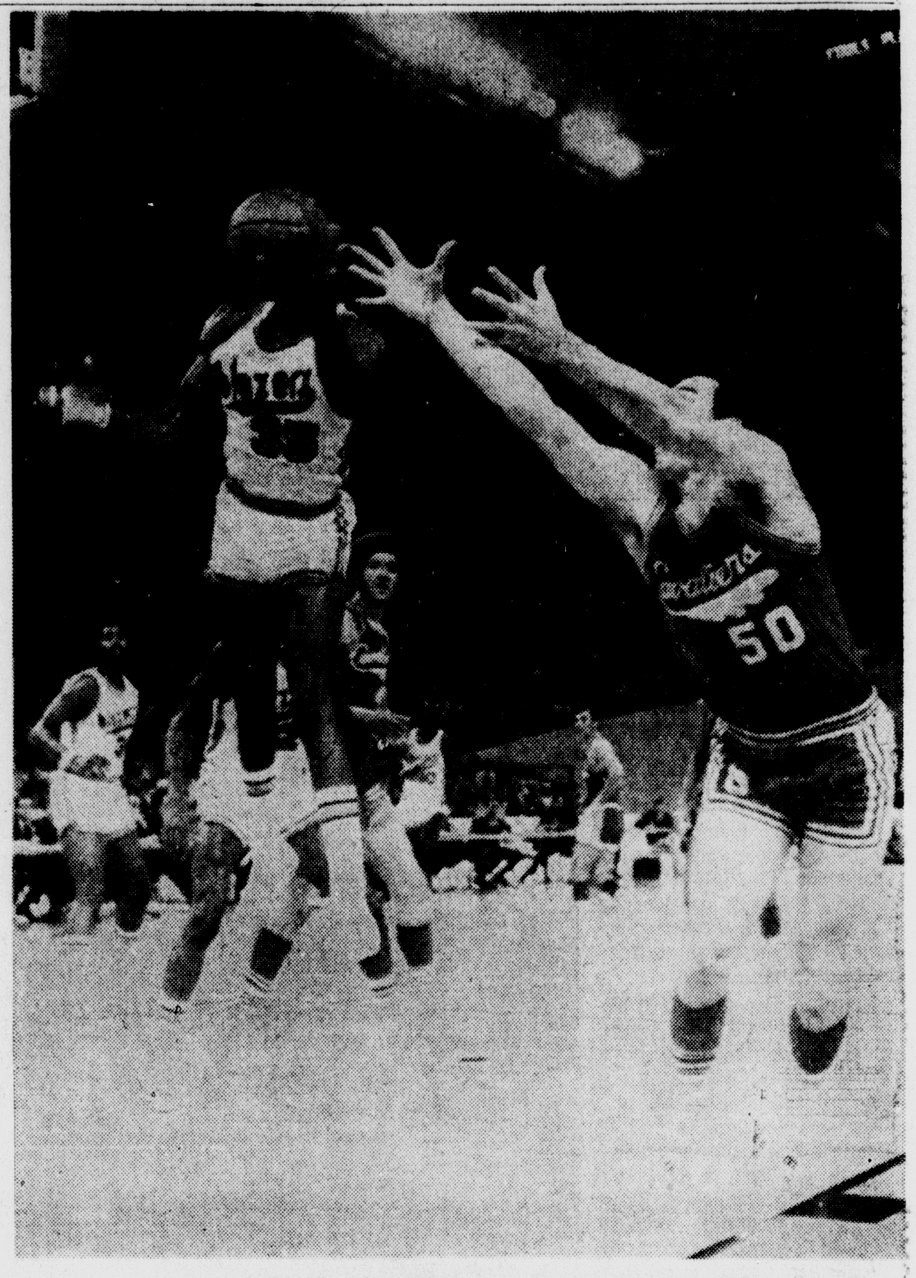
They have plenty to offer other teams. In a trade for a top catcher and a relief pitcher the Orioles might offer a combination drawn from the list of names of Curt Motton, a seldom used but hard hitting outfielder, Chico Salmon, a good utility man, Jim Hardin and Tom Phoebus, both adequate starting pitchers, Dave Leonhard and Marcelino Lopez, spot relief pitchers who didn't see much action this year and a number of players in their minor leagues. Rettenmund might also go in the right deal.

Three players the Orioles are almost sure to keep, however, are Bob Grich, an outfielder who spent half of this year on the bench after hitting over .300 at Rochester, Terry Crowley, a natural hitter who batted .260 as a part timer with the Orioles and Don Baylor, who hit .327 with 22 homers and 107 RBI's at Rochester. Crowley and Baylor are outfielders and are expected to replace Buford and Frank Robinson some time in the future.

Harry Dalton, the Orioles' personnel director, is a shrewd trader. He got Mike Cuellar for Curt Blefary and will be looking hard this winter to make a similar trade.

But he knows it won't be as easy. The Orioles got Frank Robinson from Cincinnati for Milt Pappas and two players no one can remember. They got Buford for Luis Aaparicio and they made that Cuellar trade.

"Nobody's going to trade us another starting pitcher now," a spokesman said, "but we may get a reliever."



BLAZING A TRAIL IN OREGON

Fast, Explosive San Rafael, Tam Gridders Vie Tonight

San Rafael and Tamalpais, the fastest and most explosive football teams in the Marin County Athletic League, both will be trying to get back on the winning tract when they collide tonight, 8 o'clock, at San Rafael High School.

In games last Saturday night, Tam lost to defending MCAL champion Terra Linda while San Rafael bowed to Napa in a non league game.

But the Bulldogs have won their only league game to date, and a win tonight would keep them a half game behind Terra Linda.

Both the Indians and San Rafael rank high in the league offensively. The Bulldogs are first with 265 total yards in their only game, and Tam rates third with a two game average of 181 yards.

The Indians, who defeated Redwood in their league opener and have a league record of a win and a loss, will be counting on the rushing of halfbacks Bill Washington and Clifford Hall, who rank second and fourth among league rushers. But while they have been exceptional on offense, Tam's dynamic duo have been unbelievable on defense. Hall has two interceptions in league action one in each game, and Washington has one, which he ran back for a touchdown against Redwood. In addition, Hall has run back a kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown against Terra Linda.

San Rafael doesn't do too badly on offense either. Mark Farrar, the Bulldogs' fullback, leads the MCAL in rushing even though he only has one game under his belt while everyone else in the top five has two. Farrar gained 163 yards in San Rafael's 12-3 win over Novato.

Farrar isn't the Bulldogs' best runner, however. That title belongs to Scott Duncan, who has gained 375 yards in four games this year, and has scored at least one touchdown in each game. Don't be surprised if his name appears among the top rushers soon.

San Rafael, according to coach Bob Muster, is a completely healthy team, while Tam is still without the services of fullback Mark Costello and tackle Van Westerbeke.

Chicago Ace Sayers Out For The Season

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Bears star running back Gale Sayers will undergo surgery on his injured left knee Wednesday and will be out of the lineup for the rest of the season.

The Bears announced the surgery Friday after Oklahoma City orthopedic specialist Dr. Donald O'Donoghue concurred with Dr. Theodore Fox, the Bears team physician, that Sayers' ligament injury would not respond to treatment.

Fox said Sayers' injury was due to a "stretching of a posterior cruxiafe ligament" and that he did not believe it would respond to treatment.

Packers Meet Rams In NFL Headliner

By FRED MCMANE
UPI Sports Writer

The Green Bay Packers are finally getting around to honoring quarterback Bart Starr Sunday, and all the Los Angeles Rams are hoping is that they don't become one of the gifts.

Starr, who has quarterbacked Green Bay for 15 seasons, is being feted with a testimonial dinner and a special day for his outstanding contribution to the cussess of the Parkers over the years. The Packers have won five National Football League championships and two Super Bowl titles under Starr's leadership.

President Nixon, pro football commisioner Pete Rozelle and members of the 1962 Packers' championship team are expected to attend Sunday's game to pay homage to Starr.

"The Packers are strong," says Rams' safety Ed Meador. "If we do what we did last Sunday (against San Francisco), we're going to get beat again. And in this league, you can't afford to lose more than one . . . or at the most, two games."

The Packers were clobbered by Detroit in their seaon opener but have rebounded to win three in a row and are in a three-way tie with Minnesota and Detroit for first place in the NFC's Central Division. The Rams won their first three but were beaten by the Forty-Niners last week and are tied with San Francisco for first in the Western Division.

Physically, the Rams shape up better for Sunday's game. The Packers have lost linebacker Dave Robinson for the season with a ruptured Achilles tendon and defensive tackle Kevin Hardy is still questionable because of an injured knee. The Rams, on the other hand, expect to have running back Larry Smith return to the lineup. Smith has been out with a pulled hamstring muscle. The game is rated a tossup.

In other Sunday games, Detroit is at Cleveland, Dallas at Minnesota, Baltimore at the New York Jets, New Orleans at San Francisco, Kansas City at Cincinnati, Atlanta at Denver, San Diego at Chicago, Miami at Buffalo, St. Louis at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at Houston and the New York Giants at Boston. Washington is at Oakland in a Monday night game.

Petaluma Loses To Napa, 12-8

The favored Napa High School Indians, stymied throughout the first half, punched across two second half touchdowns and then withstood a Petaluma rally to nip the Trojans 12-8 last night in a North Bay League Section I football battle at Napa.

Robin Malm scored both Napa touchdowns on runs of four and one yards while Petaluma rallied on the arm of quarterback Dan Hart who threw a 45-yard touchdown pass to end Don Billing in the fourth quarter. Hart also passed to Chuck Pippus for the two-point conversion.

Petaluma had another try for a score in the closing minutes but Hart was unable to find his receivers.

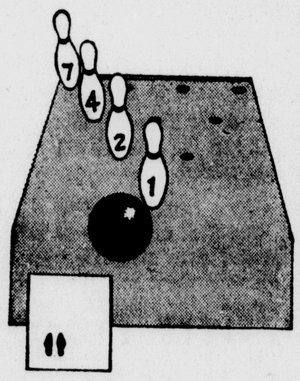
By DON CARTER



There is no surefire method of converting the 1-2-4-7 spare. But your best bet is to hit the headpin lightly and let the ball bounce off and touch all the other pins. The danger, obviously, is missing the headpin altogether. However, this is a better method than throwing a strike ball and hoping to get all four pins in falling-domino fashion.

Rancho Cotate Upset By Analy

Rancho Cotate High School's Cougars failed on all all-out bid for a two-point conversion in the fourth quarter and were upset by the Analy Tigers, 7-6, last night at Petaluma in a North Bay League football game.

Analy took a 7-0 lead in the third period on a seven-yard pass from Tony Schimetz to Don Clark and Clark's place kick for the extra point.

'300' Bowler Walker Still Has Hot Hand

Stan Walker, still fresh from rolling a 300 game two weeks ago, again found the conditions at Greenbrae Lanes to his liking and rolled a 722 three-game series to lead all bowling scores for the week.

That gives the 37-year-old bowler consecutive series of 745 and 722, a two-week average of 244 per game.

Two 702s were rolled during the last week's bowling action. Fred Lindskog rolling one at Greenbrae Lanes and Mike Weddell the other at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael.

Leading the women's scores again was Penny Tauscher, a blisteirng 684 series on games of 244, 236 and 204 in the Women's Classic at Country Club. Judy Griggs rolled a 640 series at Greenbrae.

Top junior score for the week was Wayne Ziegler's 647 at Greenbrae.

Today is the final day for entries in the Marin County Women's 600 Club sixth annual Queens Tournament, scheduled this year at Greenbrae Lanes, Oct. 24-25. Entries, at $10 each, can be given to Sylvia Knutson, Pat Weddell, Mitzie Brown or Bea Hoffmann. Deadline is midnight tonight.

MacKay Scores Another Upset In Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)— Unseeded Barry Mackay of Ross, Calif., scored his second upset victory in as many days, eliminating seventh-seeded Charles Pasarell Friday in the $25,000 Thunderbird Open tennis tournament.

Mackay, who advanced to the quarterfinals with a victory over Arthur Ashe Thursday, ousted Pasarell 6-4, 4-6, 6-3.

Mackay's victory assured him of a berth in today's semifinals against another unseeded player, Jim Osborne of Honolulu. Osborne defeated Czechoslovakia's Jan Kodes, the No. 4 seed, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 Thursday.

In other quarterfinal matches, Stan Smith, seeded second, beat Tom Edlefson of Los Angeles 6-2, 5-7, 7-6 and Bob Carmichael of France, the No. 3 seed, eliminated Frank Froehling, Coral Gables, Fla., 6-4, 6-2.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Good Bridge Player Must Be Top Mathematician, Too

People often express the opinion that a good bridge player must be a good mathematician. "That's perfectly true," I usually agree. "A good bridge player must be able to count up to 13. But sometimes it's enough if he can count up to nine or 10. But that's more mathematics than most people can master."

East won with the queen of diamonds and returned a heart to dummy's ace. Declarer cashed dummy's king of diamonds and discovered that the suit was not going to make him a rich man.

NO RE-ENTRIES

Since there were no re-entries to dummy, South had to abandon the diamonds. He tried a club finesse, losing to the queen. Back came another heart, and South found that he had only eight tricks: three hearts, two diamonds and three clubs. Down one.

FIRST STEP

The first step of a mathematically inclined bridge player is to count his tricks. South sees that the opening lead gives him three sure hearts and that he has two sure diamonds and two sure clubs for a total of seven easy tricks.

South needs two additional tricks for his contract and can get them from the spades. Instead of tackling the diamonds, South should lead a low spade at once. West takes the king of spades and leads a heart to the ace. Declarer knocks out the ace of spades and then runs his nine tricks in perfect safety.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 — no trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ A K
♥ Q 9 7 6 2
♣ Q 9 5 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three hearts. If partner has three or more hearts, he will raise. If he has only two hearts, he will bid 3 no trump. Since you have 11 points in high cards, you know that the combined count is 27 to 29 points, enough for game.

The Editor's Notebook

When Will 'In' People Learn Smoking Stinks?

Today's newspaper is tomorrow's garbage wrapper.

So goes the old saying.

If a newspaper writer's head ever tends to swell, he has only to be reminded of the old saying. His ego is quickly deflated.

On rare occasions a reader will do something to salve the chronically wounded ego of a newspaper writer.

Such a reader of the I-J is Howard B. Saunders of San Anselmo.

He reports that for five years he has been passing out copies of a piece that appeared in this space back in 1965. Now he has written to say that piece deserves reprinting.

It is a pleasure to comply with his request. Here is the "Editor's Notebook" column which appeared here Jan. 16, 1965:

THE MEMBERS OF MARIN'S Inter-agency Committee on Smoking and Health are facing a tough job.

As participants in the activities of such health agencies as the Heart Association, the Cancer Society and the T.B. Association, they are well aware of the long-range likelihood that continued smoking will ruin the good health of the smoker.

But smoking is "in" nowadays. It is equated with sophistication.

THE COMMITTEE MEMBERS must at times feel like loyal WCTU supporters in the late 1920s and early '30s. They must feel they are battling a relentless tide against them.

On every hand there is pressure for smoking. TV commercials extoll the benefits of it. So do the beautiful color ads in the slick magazines and in the Sunday rotogravure sections.

Offering a cigarette has come to be considered a warm, friendly gesture.

Clergymen smoke. Doctors smoke. Teachers smoke. Mothers smoke. Fathers smoke. Sisters and brothers smoke. And, according to TV commercials and magazine ads, romance is somehow encouraged as sweethearts smoke.

HOW, IN THIS atmosphere, can the Marin Interagency Committee on Smoking and Health hope to accomplish anything constructive?

More than 300 years ago John Milton wrote (in his "Areopagitica") "Let her and Falsehood grapple, who ever knew Truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter?"

Since the committee has Truth on its side — along with reason and the facts — the committee could fail to win the final decision only by quitting too soon.

WHAT IS THE TRUTH which the committee can depend upon as the weapon that assures ultimate success?

The truth is that scientific investigation, verified by the top health authorities of the national government, has found cigarette smoking in particular and tobacco use in general to be harmful to health.

The association between cigarettes and respiratory cancer has been dramatically shown for everyone to see in authoritative governmental health reports.

SMOKING IS A FILTHY habit. When non-smokers with normally sensitive olfactory nerves find themselves in close quarters with a smoker — male or female — the smoker's odor is strongly offensive. In short, the smoker stinks. His office stinks. His car stinks. His clothes stink. His home stinks. His ash trays stink.

This is sophistication?

ACTUALLY, DOCTORS WHO are most acutely aware of the health hazards of smoking show one of the largest ratios of individuals who have disciplined themselves to break the smoking habit.

Weaklings continue to smoke. Only the strong can kick the habit. How can smoking really be "in" under such circumstances?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Can't Be Unfair, So Stop Eating

Since we deal exclusively at Lucky's Fairfax market, my family have decided to stop eating entirely, because a sad, forlorn looking man, with a sign on his shoulder, is picketing this market and advising customers that Lucky's are unfair to this man's union because nobody in Lucky's will help him throw rocks through the windows of the Independent-Journal plant in San Rafael.

Now that we have decided to stop eating, we're not entirely sure who WE are unfair to, but anyhow.

One Who Cared; One Who Didn't

On Oct. 14, my white Puli sheepdog, Sean, was hit by a car on Center Boulevard in San Anselmo. The driver continued on his way, leaving Sean injured by the side of the road.

A young man driving by sometime later saw Sean and picked him up. He took him first to the nearest veterinarian, but he was operating on another animal so he took him on to the Fairfax Veterinary Clinic. They took him in immediately and did all they could for Sean, but he died on the operating table.

Fortunately, they took the young man's name and I have been able to thank him for his concern and efforts personally by phone. Thank you again, Fred Crockrell, for your concern for life.

Everyone who has lost their dog or cat in such a way has known the shock and grief an animal lover experiences.

May the person who hit Sean someday in some way realize that another life, be it human or animal, especially in time of need, is worth involvement.

Officials Know Problems— But Do Not Solve Them

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Have you ever seen something bad happening in your town and wished you could show it to the mayor and demand to know why something wasn't being do to fix it?

Joe Mack Jr., a veteran taxi driver and fledgling newsman recently did something very much like that. He took a group of highranking District of Columbia officials and some of his UPI colleagues on a tour of "the other Washington," the one most tourists never see. He showed them uncollected trash, abandoned and vandalized public housing units, pot-holed streets, air-polluting power plants — the whole picture of city blight.

THE CITY OFFICIALS did not seem to be men who didn't care. They spoke with bitterness about their inability to get money from Congress to make the national capital city into the "showcase" that presidents have been talking about for years.

And they gave explantaions for each fouled up example of urban decay that came into view: this bridge was patched and bumpy because the river crossing that will permit traffic to be diverted so it can be fixed right isn't completed yet; that housing project is choked with trash because its owners have neglected their legal obligations to arrange its removal; this body of water (the Washington Tidal Basin) is disgustingly polluted because someone in Maryland or Virginia is dumping sewage into the Potomac River upstream. Plus, the explanaton that this or that problem is "under study."

Obviously, the city officials were aware of the problems (and said they knew of even worse examples). And they had plausible reasons why each had not been solved.

EXCEPT THAT the problems have not been solved. Except that the people who live with them every day can't get a personal explanation from the housing director or the highway chief. Except that some people believe the explanations are excuses, to be described in one of those short, barnyard terms that isn't supposed to be uttered in polite company. Except that some people don't believe anything will ever be done.

Now this is a different kind of problem. It has to do with the fragile fabric of trust and belief that makes it possible for governments to operate without holding guns on the people. If the people believe the government will not or cannot solve their problems, the government is in a lot of trouble.

Yet, despite the demonstrable capacity of the subject to turn off people, reform may be the only alternative to violence on a scale not seen since 1860-65. Except for the unlikely possibility that dissent will wither or the unacceptable option of killing it, the solution is for government to start solving the people's problems faster and better. If government as set up now can't do that, the obvious first step is to fix government.

THE DEFENSE Department has worked out ways to respond to missile attack within seconds. Is it impossible for a city to figure out how to collect garbage twice a week? Is it really necessary to spend five years in Washington checking urban renewal proposals? Must a person charged with breaking the law always wait months or even years for trial?

Some governmental reform will cost money — for more garbage trucks and collectors, for more judges. Some will save money — for less paper shuffling, regulation writing and memo exchanging. You really can't count on reform to reduce your taxes, but it might make them better spent. And it certainly might do something toward making government a part of the solution instead of yet another problem.

Race For Arkansas Governor Shows Change In Southern Politics

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

LITTLE ROCK — Vivid evidence of changing southern politics is emerging here in Arkansas.

A nearly total transformation of political thinking is in the making.

For the first time since President Eisenhower sent troops to desegregate Little Rock Central High School, both Democratic and Republican parties are presenting Arkansas voters with new-breed candidates for governor. Both look to the future, not to the past. They are not wrangling over integration and are not trying to stimulate racial prejudice.

That's something. That's a very great deal. That is the shape of political things to come elsewhere in the South.

THE CONSEQUENCE is that GOP Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller is in some trouble in his bid for a third term. He no longer has the easy target of an Orval Faubus or another in his image.

The reasons for his trouble reveal the remarkable change in Arkansas which only two years ago gave its presidential vote to George Wallace.

Winthrop Rockefeller's reelection is not in doubt today because he has failed — but because he has succeeded. He has succeeded in winning such substantial and sustained approval from Arkansas voters for his kind of progressive, modern-minded government that the Democratic party finally decided it had no present — and no future — unless it did likewise.

IT DID LIKEWISE by the uprising of Arkansas Democratic voters. After 16 years of Faubus and Faubus-type candates, Democratic voters in this state demanded a complete break with the past — and got it.

They forced Faubus into a run-off in the Democratic primary, then turned decisevly against him and everything he stood for by giving the nomination to a 44-year-old small-town lawyer whose only elective offices had been on the local school board and city attorney of Charleston, Ark. (population 1,353).

Ever heard of Dale Bumpers? The fact is that few Arkansans ever had. He was one of the six candidates to challenge Faubus, and one of the higher estimates was that he might get one per cent of the vote.

He ran second to Faubus, who got only 36 per cent, but in the run-off the revolt of Arkansas Democrats produced nearly 60 per cent of the vote for Bumpers. He was, in effect, telling the Democratic voters that they could have a Democratic governor pretty much like Winthrop Rockefeller has been for the past four years.

IT REMAINS to be seen whether Bumpers can make it against Rockefeller as he did against Faubus. It will be harder. He was riding the tide of widespread revulsion against what the Democratic party had been offering Arkansas for nearly two decades.

He is radically different from anything the Democratic Party has offered for a long time.

But he is not radically different from Rockefeller, except that he hasn't the experience in public life or the record of achieving any of the reforms he advocates.

Where he has a record, it has been good. He player a part in encouraging the desegregation of the first southern school district (his home town) after the Supreme Court decision in 1954 and three years before Faubus put racial prejudice ahead of the Constitution in 1957.

ART BUCHWALD

The Great American Rat Race, Or Why Kids Have To Study

WASHINGTON — One of the complaints the kids voice today is that parents put too much pressure on them. I accidentally listened to such a discussion the other evening at Goldfarb's house.

Young Goldfarb, aged 16, told his father he saw no reason to study such irrelevant subjects as math, language, science, history and English.

"Who needs it?" young Goldfarb said.

"You need it," his father shouted.

"Why?" young Goldfarb demanded.

"BECAUSE OF Springfield. If I don't push you, Springfield's kid is going to get ahead of you in school. How would you like that?"

"Who cares if Springfield's son gets ahead of me?" young Goldfarb said.

"Springfield does, that's who," the older Goldfarb replied. "Oh, wouldn't he love it if he could say his kid was doing better than Goldfarb's."

"You mean to say you've been leaning on me all this time because you're in a contest with Springfield?" young Goldfarb said.

"I DIDN'T start it," the older Goldfarb said. "It was Springfield who began pushing his kid first. Years ago, I heard Springfield tell his kid, 'Never take second best. Go for all the marbles. Get out in front and show them what you can do.'

"When I heard this, I had no choice but to make you work your tail off. If you're mad at anyone, you should be mad at Springfield."

"But Springfield's kid doesn't want to compete with me any more than I want to compete with him. Why don't I call him up and tell him if he knocks off beating his brains out, I'll knock off beating my brains out?"

"THAT WOULD be just fine," old Goldfarb said. "But what about Ascarelli's kid?"

"What's Ascarelli's kid got to do with it?"

"You think Ascarelli is going to stop pushing his kid just because you two let up? And how about Bernheim's son? Bernheim has already announced his kid is going to Yale. You want Bernheim's kid to go to Yale and you wind up at some community college in Florida?"

"But don't you understand, Pop?" young Goldfarb said. "Ascarelli's son couldn't care less if he got ahead of us, and Bernheim's son doesn't give a damn whether he gets in Yale."

OLD MAN Goldfarb got up and took his son over to the window and pointed out to the flickering apartment lights across the Potomac.

"If it was just one springfield or one Ascarelli or one Bernheim, I would say, 'Enjoy yourself; don't break your back.' But out there where you see those lights are thousands and thousands of Springfields and Ascarellis and Bernheim, and do you know what they're saying to their kids tonight? They're saying 'The only thing I want you to do is to beat Goldfarb!'

"All over America, the Springfields, Ascarellis and Bernheims are vowing to beat you out of a job, a sale, a taxi, a contract, a home, a wife. And do you know why they're doing it?"

"No," said young Goldfarb. "I don't know why."

"BECAUSE at this very moment they know I'm telling you to get them before they get you."

"But if you stop, maybe they will," young Goldfarb said.

"It's too late," the older Goldfarb said. "Springfield, Ascarelli and Bernheim are too ambitious for their sons to quit now. So be a nice boy and go do your homework."

COUNTRY PARSON

"Don't expect a man dedicated to a cause to be reasonable about it."

Two Men Named Flournoy

Two men named Flournoy are candidates for state offices in the Nov. 3 election.

The name is unusual enough to make the coincidence surprising. It has also given rise to some confusion — which may even have contributed to the nomination of one of the Flournoys.

Both are Republicans. Both are from Los Angeles County.

HOUSTON FLOURNOY of Claremont, the incumbent state controller, is seeking re-election. His operation of the controller's office has been free from scandal and almost free from criticism. He has backed — though without success — Assemblyman William T. Bagley's bills to remove inheritance tax appraisers from political appointment, and claims he has ruled out politics in his own appointments of these appraisers.

Houston Flournoy is opposed by Democrat Ronald B. Cameron, a certified public accountant who appears qualified for the controller's job. But since Flournoy has performed well, he deserves re-election.

THE SECOND FLOURNOY is James Flournoy of Los Angeles, candidate for secretary of state. Confusion of him with Houston Flournoy in the minds of voters may have contributed to his victory in a seven-way Republican primary race.

Principal duties of the secretary of state in California deal with supervision and conduct of elections. The office is "up for grabs" this year because of death of the longtime incumbent, Frank M. Jordan.

JAMES FLOURNOY is a Negro attorney whose principal political activity heretofore has been in Republican party work. But he has among his endorsers Secretary Jordan's widow, who was active head of the office during her husband's long illness and an unsuccessful candidate for the nomination.

This indicates that Flournoy (James Flournoy, that is) can be expected to carry on the office in the manner of his predecessor. This would seem to entitle the second Flournoy to the nod over his Democratic opponent, Edmund G. Brown, Jr., attorney son of the former governor.

Two Flournoys in California state government might be a bit confusing. But it looks like a good idea.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to the contractors who are providing trucks, the service groups coordinating the job, and all others involved in the "Novato Trash Bash" today and Oct. 25. This is a civic effort that deserves emulation.

BRICKBATS to Teamsters Union members who are attempting a reign of terror in Marin County by trying to intimidate other members of their own union who are not involved in any strike.

BOUQUETS to the winning Baltimore Orioles, and to the losing Cincinnati Reds, too, for a baseball World Series that gave us a much more pleasant type of competition than most of the uptight arguments filling too many columns of news these days.

BRICKBATS to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for venturing into "joint venture" financing for the Corte Madera branch library to avoid going to the voters for approval of a bond issue.

BRICKBATS to all those candidates who resort to dirty campaign tactics. None of them is fit to be elected.

REMEMBER WHEN?

Fourteen television quiz show jackpot winners, including Charles Van Doren, former Columbia University professor, were arrested on perjury charges.

The National Baseball League announced it would expand to 10 teams in the 1961 season, with Houston and New York getting the new franchises.

20 YEARS AGO

Red Chief Remains A Violent Apostle

EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of this assessment of what Red China is up to in Indochina and the Middle East is a veteran among "China Watchers." Stationed in Hong Kong where he is UPI bureau manager, Charles R. Smith has been covering Asian affairs, with emphasis on Red China, since 1957. He was among the first to report on the Chinese "Cultural Revolution" of the 1960s.

By CHARLES R. SMITH

HONG KONG (UPI)—Mao Tse-Tung is an apostle of violence who remains unchanged in a changing world.

The 76-year-old Chinese Communist Party chairman is more convinced than ever that support of armed revolution—which includes limited wars in today's terminology—is the main means for the advancement of communism and China's influence, even at the risk of a major war.

The turn of events in Indochina and the Middle East, two key areas of Chinese trouble-making, have reinforced Mao's belief that this is the correct way, according to diplomats and China specialists based here and in Peking.

"The danger of a new world war still exists and the people of all countries must be prepared. But revolution is the main trend in the world today," Mao declared in a rare public statement last May.

By continuous urging of others in such places as Indochina and the Middle East to "dare to struggle", and helping them with arms where possible. Mao shows that he still adheres firmly to the doctrine of violence that he advocated in one of the first major articles he ever wrote.

"A revolution is not a dinner party, or writing an essay, or painting a picture, or doing embroidery; it cannot be so refined, so leisurely and gentle, so temperate, kind, courteous, restrained and magnanimous", Mao wrote in 1927. "A revolution is an insurrection, an act of violence . . ."

When he wrote that 43 years ago, Mao was speaking of the embryonic revolution he and his Communist comrades were pursuing in China.

Since the success of the revolution, in 1949, Mao has broadened his horizons. He speaks now of world revolution — "wars of liberation" "people's war" and other forms of limited war—with Peking as the center and him as the chief prophet.

Promoting and supporting such wars against American interests, Mao contends, is the best way to undermine the United States and sap the strength of the country that he considers the main enemy of China and Communism.

"People's war is a magic weapon most effective in dealing with U.S. Imperialism and its lackeys," Mao says.

Such wars waged since the end of World War II, Mao said earlier this year, have put the United States into a position where it is "beset with troubles internally and externally, with utter chaos at home and extreme isolation abroad."

Mao's advocation of such wars has brought him into sharp conflict with the leaders of the Soviet Union, who have warned that such strategy runs the risk of provoking a wider war that would benefit no one.

Mao says, in effect: So what?

"With regard to the question of world war, there are but two possibilities: One is that the war will give rise to revolution and the other is that revolution will prevent the war," Mao asserts.

In his last public statement, entitled, "People of the World, Unite and Defeat the U.S. Aggressors and Their Running Dogs," Mao had this to say:

"In the world of today, who actually fears whom? It is not the Vietnamese people, the Laotian people, the Cambodian people, the Palestinian people, the Arab people or the people of other countries who fear U.S. imperialism; it is U.S. imperialism which fears the people of the world. It becomes panic-stricken at the mere rustle of leaves in the wind.

"Innumerable facts prove that a just cause enjoys abundant support while an unjust cause finds little support. A weak nation can defeat a strong, a small nation can defeat a big. The people of a small country can certainly defeat aggression by a big country, if only they dare to rise in struggle, take up arms and grasp in their own hands the destiny of their country. This is a law of history."

The coup d'etat in Cambodia last March, which led to the establishment of an exile government in Peking by deposed Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, gave China the initiative in the Indochina region so far as the Communist camp was concerned.

This came as China was just getting into her most significant, and successful, diplomatic campaign in more than five years.

The campaign was characterized initially by the return of Chinese ambassadors to many countries whose relations with China had soured during the cultural revolution that Mao launched almost five years ago.

Premier Chou En-Lai put the campaign in high gear with a visit to North Korea.

Since then, Chou has dispatched a large number of lower level delegations to other parts of Asia, Africa, Europe and the Middle East. At the same time, a steady stream of delegations from these areas has been coming to Peking. These included such disparate groups as a French delegation led by Andre Bettencourt and a Palestinian guerrilla mission headed by Yasser Arafat.

Chou has a briefcase full of invitations to visit countries in Asia, Africa and the Middle East. There are persisting rumors in Peking diplomatic circles that he is preparing to fulfill some of the invitations soon.

China's foreign policy now appears generally aimed at restoring relations all around and pursuing a more moderate course except for an implacable attitude towards the United States.

But the main thrust at the moment is to increase her influence in the Middle East.

Nothing in recent years has better demonstrated China's impotency in power politics away from her own borders than her inability to influence significantly the course of events in the Middle East, the world's hottest trouble spot.

To change this, the Chinese have embarked on what some diplomatic analysts describe as an "East Africa-Middle East strategy".

This involves building a solid base of diplomatic relations, bolstered by considerable aid spending, in countries along the northeastern seaboard of Africa and in the Middle East.

Key African countries involved in this strategy are Tanzania and Zambia, where China is building a 1,200-mile railroad, and the Somali Republic.

The main middle eastern countries are the Sudan, Syria, the Republic of Southern Yemen (where China is believed to be doing its main training of Arab guerrillas), and Iraq, which is believed to be the main channel for Chinese military aid to Palestinian guerrillas.

China has received delegations from and sent delegations to all of these areas during the past few months.

STILL SAME VIEWS — at 76, Mao Tse-tung, Chinese Communist Party chairman, is reported unchanged in a changing world. He is reportedly more convinced than ever that support of armed revolution — which includes limited wars in today's terminology — is the main means for advancement of his nation's influence. This picture taken last year shows him with another party leader, Lin Piao.

EVEN 'MORE ACTIVISM'

Canadian Society Fashions Goals From John Birchers

By DAVID COHEN

TORONTO (UPI) — "Chicago Seven" lawyer William Kunstler went on trial Tuesday on charges of assault brought on by two members of the Edmund Burke Society.

He pleaded innocent and the trial was adjourned to Nov. 30. Only one witness appeared at the trial's opening.

What, many will ask, is the Edmund Burke Society? Simply put, it is a 3-year-old rightwing group that describes itself as similar to the John Birch Society in the United States but says it is "more activist." Its members believe in "counter demonstration."

If there's a protest march in Toronto against the war in Vietnam, or a peace vigil outside the U.S. consulate, or a radical speaker addresses a meeting, Edmund Burkers will be there — waving flags, ready to fight for "western civilization and you!"

To anti-U.S. chants or songs such as "Give Peace a Chance," they roar back, "Reds out!", or "Kill the Viet Cong!" or, more recently, "Let Spiro speak!"

The Society was formed, according to one of its three founders and present chairman, Donald Andrews, 28, to warn Canadians their country was being driven by its politicans "along the Socialist trail."

The Society says that leftwing activities — protest marches, peace demonstrations, even rock festivals — are condoned, and used, by politicians to achieve this goal.

Andrews explained in an interview with UPI: "It's their way of creating pressure from the bottom of society to allow them to go further along the Socialist trail."

The Society decided on a program of "action and not just words" as a counterforce.

Much of its program has been educational. Members speak at city schools, show movies with titles such as "Anarchy U.S.A." "Revolution Underway" (a public outcry last year stopped the showing of this film by Toronto police), and invited speakers to meetings.

But the Burkers do more than talk. They criticize the John Birch Society, in the words of Edmund Burke Society public relations officer Jeff Goodall, 21, as being "strictly confidential — and that's not enough."

With a proud smile, Andrews told UPI, "I guess we have counterdemonstrated every major leftist demonstration in Toronto in the last three years." The results often have been violent and sometimes bloody.

In April at a banquet celebrating the centenary of Lenin's birth, attended by the Russian ambassador to Canada, Society members were present and refused to stand when a toast was proposed. In the fracas that followed, the Burkers and the Lenin-honorers fought it out with fists, chairs and bottles. The Society claimed one of its members was stabbed. Police said he fell on some broken glass.

On May 9, in a demonstration in front of the U.S. Consulate protesting the U.S. invasion of Cambodia and the student shootings at Kent State University the Society's counter-demonstrators clashed with the protesters. Eleven Burkers were arrested and one was led away with a bleeding scalp. Some 80 other demonstrators also were arrested.

Predictably, the Society made a showing June 22 at the University of Toronto's Convocation Hall where "Chicago Seven" lawyer Kunstler was speaking.

About 45 Burkers heckled Kunstler until he let one of them Paul Fromm, a 21-year-old student, come on the stage to speak. Opinions vary on what happened next. What is clear is that Kunstler emptied a water pitcher over Fromm's head and a melee broke out. Kunstler was thrown to the stage floor. Fromm was later found unconscious, and was taken to the hospital and released after treatment for minor injuries.

Fromm and another society member, Alan Overfield, also 21, both laid assault charges against Kunstler, and it is that case that is due to be heard here Oct. 13.

"The trial will be very important," said Burke publicist Goodall. "We will see if we can rely on the courts for justice."

The trial also promises to be a publicity bonanza for the Burkers.

"You have to be dramatic," said Andrews of the Kunstler incident. "You don't get anywhere discussing things over a cup of coffee.

"But we didn't go to the Kunstler thing looking for a fight. We could have held that stage—we had 45 members there—but only five of us were involved. We went there to heckle and maybe get five minutes to be heard."

Fromm, who is studying for a masters degree in medieval studies at the University of Toronto, founded the Society along with Andrews and an Ottawa school teacher, Leigh U. Smith, 31.

They say they took the name of the 18th Century English parliamentarian and philosopher Edmund Burke to symbolize their conservative attitudes.

Society critics have, however, pointed out that Burke's writings run contrary to a number of the society's stands. For instance, it argues that the Nixon administration is commiting "a kid of treason" by not bombing North Vietnam into submission and thus "win the war."

Burke once wrote, "The use of force is but temporary. It may subdue for a moment, but it does not remove the necessity of subduing again; and a nation is not governed, which is perpetually to be conquered."

Using such reasoning, Burke advised King George III to negotiate with the rebellious American colonists rather than try to suppress them by force.

"We use the name strictly as a symbol," said a society member, Jaanus Proos, 20. "Simply, we believe in individualism, hard work, a sense of history, morality, and personal pride. And we know that a price has to be paid for freedom."

The society was founded in March of 1967 because its founders, according to Burker literature, were "profoundly disturbed by the continuing career of Red imperialism, the official toleration of its fith column activities in Canada, and appeasement of that imperialism by our home-grown defeatists, unilateral disarmers and Quislings as well as by the unmistakeable drift on the part of the leadership ranks of our major parties . . ."

In 1968, the Society distributed a pamphlet entitled "East Wins Over Ottawa" that called Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau a dangerous leftist who had been in Moscow in 1952 and was opposed to Canada having nuclear weapons.

The Society refuses to say how many members it has. A recent newspaper estimate placed the number at 400, about 14 per cent of them women. "Headquarters" is a box in a post office in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough, where Andrews is a health inspector.

Governed by a council of nine, the Society has six chapters in Canada—two in Toronto, two in Montreal and one each in Edmonton and Vancouver. It puts out a monthly bulletin "Straight Talk."

The membership appears to be made up of a mixture of older Eastern Europeans and younger native-born Canadians. They come from all walks of life—engineers, professors, office works . . ." We don't discriminate on the basis of sex, religion or race," Andrews said.

Eastern Europeans, many of them immigrants from territories now in the orbit of the Soviet Union, make up 40 per cent of the membership according to Andrews.

The Society admits to having only a small number of Jews. "Most Jews are brainwashed with the idea that if you're anti-Communist you're a Nazi," Fromm said.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau invoked a special War Emergencies Act Friday to prevent further troubles that began with the kidnaping of two officials by French-Canadian separatists.

The FLQ, which has the goal of a separate nation for Frenchspeaking Quebec, demanded the release of 23 "political prisoners" in exchange for freedom for James R. Cross, a British diplomat, and Pierre Laporte, the provincial labor minister.

The move by Trudeau permits police to make arrests, searches and seizures without warrants and permits Trudeau to suspend civil liberties. More than 1,000 combat-equipped soldiers massed in Montreal as the prime minister invoked the act.

Canada this week also established diplomatic relations with Red China. Relations with Nationalist China were broken.

North Vietnam and the Viet Cong formally rejected President Nixon's peace proposal. But the U.S. team in Paris did not accept the rejection as final.

Nixon announced that 40,000 additional American troops would be pulled out of Vietnam by the end of the year—all part of the 150,000 to be withdrawn by next spring.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird ordered the chiefs of the armed forces to move toward an all-volunteer force. He hopes to abolish draft calls by July 1, 1973.

Congress adjourned after passing a bill setting up a private corporation to run long-distance passenger trains. Senate opponents of the proposed amendment guaranteeing women equality had tacked on changes that probably would kill the measure. The President signed into law an anti-crime bill dealing with bombings and campus disorders. He vetoed a bill to limit broadcast spending by political candidates.

The Commerce Department reported the Gross National Product from July through September rose slightly despite the General Motors strike.

The National Highway Safety Bureau said more than 4,000,000 Fords and Mercurys built from 1965 through 1969 may have safety defects, but it did not have evidence to warrant a request for recall.

A Pentagon official said that it now appeared less likely Russia was planning to build a submarine base in Cuba.

The FBI arrested Angela Davis in a New York motel. She is the black former college instructor wanted in California on murder and kidnap charges in connection with a shootout in a San Rafael courthouse.

The United Nations began its 25th anniversary observance. Security was tight. The public was barred.

The Baltimore Orioles whipped the Cincinnati Reds four of five games to win the World Series.

Reed School Trustees Hold Leader Session

The Reed School District board has met in closed session to decide its course of action in what one trustee termed "the crisis over our interim superintendent."

The board took no action as a result of the meeting, according to board chairman Gordon C. Wright, but decided to hold another closed meeting Oct. 26 to confer with its superintendent screening committee.

Wright confirmed yesterday that the meeting was to discuss "the crisis over the contract of (interim Supt. Stanley H.) Friese," on loan to Reed from the county schools office, where he is deputy superintendent.

Friese's contract, under which Reed pays $100 a day to the county board for his services, was to have extended to Dec. 31 but was cancelled Tuesday by County Supt. Virgil S. Hollis.

Hollis, in a letter to Wright, said he was taking the action "since the Reed board has felt it necessary to object so strenuously" to Friese's delivery of a report to the county board last week.

Wright said yesterday that Reed trustees "tried to persuade Hollis to change his mind, but our attempts were futile."

If Hollis does not reconsider, two choices are open to the Reed board. It can speed its search for a permanent successor to former Supt. Robert B. Gaw, although it probably could not find one before the Oct. 31 deadline set by Hollis for Friese's departure, or it could replace Friese with another interim superintendent.

Hollis suggested the second alternative in his letter to Wright.

At the Oct. 26 closed session, which will convene at 8 p.m. at Bel Aire School, trustees will confer with their 10-member screening committee set up last spring to interview applicants for superintendent.

Subdivision To Seek Crackdown On Nude Bathers

Property owners in the Bello Beach subdivision of Muir Beach want a county crackdown against nude bathing at public beaches.

Ernest E. Emig, who lives at Bello Beach, will ask the board of supervisors Tuesday for a county ordinance against disrobing in public.

In a letter to the board, Emig acknowledged that law enforcement agencies and courts have tried to control nudism but had been "completely ineffective this summer."

Although he said he had observed no more than a dozen nudists at any one time, "my neighbors tell me they have counted 200 at once."

The supervisors are scheduled to hear Emig's plea at 4:30 p.m.

Cotati Gets Good Deal For City Hall

An elated Cotati City Council has voted to purchase a section of Cotati School for a new city hall at a price far below what it had expected.

City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen said appraisers set the price at $3,500. Previously, he had estimated the cost might be as high as $20,000.

Salfen said he is working out an agreement to acquire the older section of the school on a lease-purchase basis with payments spread over five years at a five per cent interest rate.

Salfen said the building could be bought outright, but that some funds must be set aside to repair the leaky roof. He said the repair work could cost more than the entire building.

The council, meeting Thursday, agreed that the Cotati School District could use two rooms for storage until city offices are relocated from rented quarters on East Cotati Avenue.

Salfen said he hoped the move could be made by Christmas and said the building will be painted green to distinguish it from the pink school building at the rear of the lot.

The Cotati City Council also:

PARKING — Heard Police Chief Tony Locarini request that vertical parking on La Plaza between West Sierra Avenue and Old Redwood Highway be changed to parallel parking for greater safety. Michael Ohannesian complained that six parking spaces in front of his business would be reduced to two. The council asked Locarini to present a diagram of the plan for study.

DOGS — Took under study a proposed ordinance that would extend the leash law to 24 hours rather than the present 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. The ordinance would also increase impound fees from a flat $5 rate to $5 the first time, $10 the second and $15 the third and succeeding times. It would also limit the keeping of large animals, such as horses and cows, to two per acre.

COMPLAINT — Heard Victor A. Fontes, 74 Benson Lane, complain that he has been bothered by thieves, rock tossers and noisy motorcycles and has not been receiving adequate police protection. The council said it would look into the problem.

San Rafael Chamber 50 Years Old

Started By Few In 1920

By DOROTHY GARDINER

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce was founded half a century ago by a small group of Fourth Street merchants and professional men.

Next Friday the chamber's manager, staff, 16 directors, five officers, members and guests will celebrate the golden anniversary with a noon luncheon at the Holiday Inn.

The chamber's immediate goal is to unify the city's business districts and double the membership, declared Robert Nelson, a 25-year chamber veteran who took over the manager's job last April after the death of former manager, Glen Adair.

Nelson said he was "amazed" at the contributions of the chamber's officers and directors and praised President Larry P. Biancalana, a 35-year member, who donates at least five hours of worktime weekly and "is personally responsible for bringing in more new members than any other member."

BIANCALANA, Marin district sales supervisor for the Pacific Gas and Electric Co., is also active in the United Bay Area Crusade and the San Rafael Kiwanis Club.

Both downtown San Rafael and the Chamber of Commerce have suffered difficulties during the past eight years, Nelson said. The chambers' 1962 membership of 441 dropped to 258 by the spring of this year. (The chamber is working to double to 516 by 1975 and Nelson happily reported 72 new members have been recruited this year.)

Business in downtown San Rafael has been adversely affected by car dealers moving to Southern Marin and other firms going to the Northgate area, Nelson observed.

The chamber not only lost members during the recent years, he added, but also suffered financial reverses. During the mid-1960s, he added, there was not enough money to hire a manager or pay the rent.

(The late Harry Albert, civic leader, chamber director and son of founder Jacob (Jake) Albert, built the chamber's office building at 824 Fifth Avenue in 1963, Nelson said. During the "depression" in the 1960s, the Albert Estate waived the rent.)

DURING the periods when the chamber was without a manager such men as investment broker Jesse J. France; architect Robert W.F. Severin; insurance executive Clifford S. Lund; Charles W. Try, manager of the J.C. Penney Co. and merchant Stanley K. Goldsmith, doubled their duties and worked both as presidents and volunteer managers, Nelson said.

The Chamber of Commerce is financed by its members "with about 60 or 70 per cent of downtown merchants belonging," according to Nelson. It operates

"Can't I Dryclean My Cashmere Sweater?"

Yes, you can put your cashmere sweater through a self-service drycleaning machine, but you may be unhappy about the result. After all, a cashmere sweater is too delicate to trust to anything but professional care.

There are a number of fragile fabrics which should not be tossed into an unmonitored machine. Among these are angora sweaters, silk suits and dresses, fur-trimmed pieces, chiffon, organdy, laces and nets.

Be careful of throwing flocked garments and those with metallic printed designs into a machine. Some dacron prints and printed sweaters, also, are too delicate for unskilled cleaning.

If you have any of the above garments to be cleaned, Miss I.N.P., you'll be wise to trust them in the hands of a professional drycleaner.

the members volunteering dues ranging "from $50 to $500."

The chamber has two fulltime employees, Nelson and Mrs. Marie Leonardi, secretary since 1958. One part-time office employee, Verle Honsinger, is also employed.

NELSON, a chartered life underwriter for Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co. and former Asst. San Rafael City engineer (1937-40) eyes the "development of the Courthouse Square as a revitalizing force for downtown San Rafael.

He also sees the joining of forces of the Northgate Shopping Center and downtown San Rafael as "an ecumenical movement" that will benefit the entire business community. (He hopes in the near future the chamber will have a president from the Northgate area.)

Predicting tremendous growth in the county and San Rafael during the next decade, he added, the chamber will need new members to help the city improve and develop the "proper economic climate."

For the past 50 years the Chamber of Commerce has worked to promote business, keep the community growing and make San Rafael a fine place to live, Nelson said.

Recently the Chamber of Commerce has turned its eyes toward education and is forming a new committee to help the schools, he added. ("Five consecutive bond issues for the schools have gone down to deon a $25,000 annual budget with $1,000 being paid by the city and feat without the aid of the chamber.")

ANOTHER new Chamber of Commerce group acts as "Court Watchers" volunteering time to sit in courtrooms to collect data that might eventually be used for judicial reform, he explained.

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce also has published a pamphlet, "Shoplifting Tips — A Guide for Merchants and Their Employees" and sponsored the backing for the recent publication of the "Guide to Youth and Parent," Nelson added.

The chamber also publishes and circulates literature listing general information about the county and city for newcomers and visitors. "We really are the front door of the community. We receive at least 30 telephone calls daily from callers looking for information," Nelson said.

When the Chamber of Commerce was organized by 14 men at an informal meeting at the old Elks Club on Aug. 23, 1920, both the chamber and San Rafael were far different than they are today.

San Rafael was a "nice little town" with a permanent population of 5,512 and a "floating" one of about "1,000," according to Mrs. Mae Kirner of San Rafael, widow of Guy Kirner, one of the chamber founders and first directors.

TODAY, according to a preliminary report of the federal census taken this year, 38,493 persons live in the city. In 1920 the city issued 600 business licenses. Today 2,900 are in use — a growth of 2,300 firms since the chamber's founding.

When Jake Albert, Sigfried (Sig) K. Herzog Sr., George V. Kaenel, Kirner and the others organized the chamber "more as a social group," Fourth Street was a mixture of old homes surrounded by picket fences, small stores, three banks and the towering Marin County Courthouse.

Fifth Avenue, now Marin's "Wall Street" was a residential street housing some of the city's most prosperous families in tall Victorian mansions.

Fourth Street's sidewalks were wider than the street. Hitching posts and water troughs still lined the thoroughfare and the horseless carriage was slowly being accepted.

VERY SLOWLY, according to Frank Healion of San Rafael, member of an old Marin family and former partner of George Kaenel in the real estate business. He remembers drivers on seeing approaching horses pulling their cars off the roadway, removing goggles, dusters and waiting patiently until the automobile-shy animals had passed out of sight.

(Kaenel along with Louis W. Becker Jr. owned the first Buick agency in San Rafael.)

The streets were lighted by electroliers hung every few feet. It was these old fixtures the young Chamber of Commerce first decorated for Christmas in the 1920s.

The chamber also launched a campaign to "spruce up the town," recalled longtime chamber member and former Marin County Superior Court Judge Carlos R. Freitas. Residents were asked to do away with their wire and picket fences that had been used to "keep the horses from getting in."

The "floating" population that Mrs. Kirner referred to came across the San Francisco Bay by ferry, transferred to the "electric" operated by the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co. out of Sausalito and were met at the Union Depot in San Rafael by carriages sent by the Hotel Rafael.

THIS 400-ROOM resort had been built above Belle Avenue near Grand Avenue in 1886 at a cost of $700,000 and was the city's biggest tourist attraction until it burned to the ground in December of 1928.

It was in this hotel's dining room on Dec. 16, 1920 that the Chamber of Commerce hosted its first event — a dinner dance.

The program, found in family mementos by Mrs. Aileen Ziegler of Greenbrae, daughter of Sig K. Herzog Sr., announced the founding president as Dr. Rafael G. Dufficy and M.T. Scott, secretary. The first directors included George Alpers, Joseph Block, Elwood S. Rake, R.H. Thayer, A.M. Newhall, Ralph Rogers and Kirner.

SAN RAFAEL "was hot as Hades," Mrs. Kirner recalled. The weather prompted many to "promenade" up and down Fourth Street "long after dinner." They often stopped by Hoover's Candy Store, operated by the Kirners at 501 Fourth Street, for a 10-cent ice cream soda.

The Kirners had moved to San Francisco from the midwest in 1902 and operated a candy store on Market Street until they lost it in the earthquake and fire of 1906. They moved to San Rafael five years later and bought Hoover's.

Mrs. Kirner vividly remembers working "16 hours a day" at a time when "five lamb chops could be bought for a dime and a girl helper was paid $8 a week."

The Kirners's daughter, Blanche, now Mrs. Carl Schieck of San Rafael recalled a carnival coming to town every year, pitching tents in a "great empty lot on Lootens Place between Fourth and Fifth." Youngsters armed with 25 cents visited the sideshows, touched a boa constrictor and rode the ferris wheel and merry-go-round.

ACROSS the street from Hoover's on the site now occupied by Macy's and Penny's, stood a row of stately old homes. A large white house on the corner had been the residence of Judge and Mrs. M.C. Dufficy, parents of the chamber's founding president.

Next door the county operated a detention home for juveniles under the charge of Tom O'Connell, county probation officer. According to Chamber President Larry P. Biancalana, this county official "didn't have anything to do."

In 1942 Jake Albert bought this parcel of land at Fourth and Court streets and erected the largest store in Marin, the Albert Department Store. This firm was sold to Macy's 10 years later but the Albert family still owns the real estate.

During a recent interview, Nelson commented that what San Rafael really needs now "is another Jake Albert and Sig Herzog." These early day businessmen invested in Fourth Street property and worked untiringly to help the community grow.

ALBERT'S DEPARTMENT STORE, founded by Jacob (Jake) Albert, was the keystone of business development in San Rafael for decades.

"Albert really started the chamber of commerce," according to George Kaenel, only surviving founder and a former president. At the beginning about a half a dozen members met informally once or twice a month in a rent-free office Albert provided.

JAKE ALBERT arrived in San Rafael in 1892 with a peddler's pack on his back.

He opened his first store "The Wonder" at Fourth and B streets and with the help of his young wife, Annie, and later his son, Harry, built a multi-million dollar fortune from the trade he developed in San Rafael.

Born in Palestine, he immigrated to Russia and Pennsylvania reaching San Francisco with his family in 1892. He bought a dollar ticket on the North Pacific Coast Railroad and got off where his fare had taken him — Tomales, the center of Marin's ranch belt.

He worked the area from ranch to ranch, pack on his back, even "selling swallow tail coats to the milkers," according to Johannes Petersen of San Rafael, a lifelong resident and businessman.

When the young peddler reached San Rafael, he was promptly arrested for peddling without a license. After paying his fine, Albert decided to turn that fine into an investment and stayed.

LATER ALBERT moved the "Wonder Store" across the street to the present site of the Albert Building. Around 1917 he again moved to the opposite corner of B into the newly completed Aileen Apartment building erected for his use by fellow chamber founders Herzog and Rake. (The building was named for Herzog's daughters, Mrs. Ziegler.)

During the depression, Albert erected the Albert Building, giving the city its first building with an elevator.

In 1937 Albert, a quiet, intelligent and unassuming man, was drafted to run for the San Rafael City Council. He was so surprised and pleased by the number of votes cast for him that he purchased and presented Albert Field to the city.

In 1943 he gave a piece of property at Second and A streets to the Marin Council of Boy Scouts of America and later added $20,000 so that a building could go up on the site.

Albert died in San Rafael three years later.

Sig K. Herzog Sr., mayor of San Rafael during World War I, was 5 years old when his father, Maximillian (Max) Herzog moved to San Rafael and opened a butcher shop at the corner of Third and D streets.

THE SENIOR Herzog, born in Germany, immigrated to New York and came around the Horn to San Francisco between 1864 and 1866. He married Augusta Kramer, also a native of Germany, in San Francisco in 1870. He worked as a butcher there until moving to San Rafael eight years later to improve a chronic asthmatic condition.

His business prospered and Herzog moved his family into a spacious home on Fourth Street, a block and a half east of the courthouse.

Sig Herzog Sr., one of seven children, grew up in San Rafael. His first job was running errands for his father. He started the Marin County Ice Co. and in 1906 leased a 1600 acre dairy in Sleepy Hollow becoming the first local dairyman to market certified milk.

In 1925 Herzog moved his dairy to a site on the Petaluma River. The dairy today is operated by his son, Max Herzog.

Sig Herzog started dabbling in real estate and along with his partner, Elwood Rake, acquired the Marin Hotel property at the southwestern corner of Fourth and A streets; another parcel of land across the street where Sig K. Herzog Jr. built the Herzog-Rake Building 13 years ago; the Rafael Theater building and the property where Herzog and Rake erected the Aileen Apartments.

HERZOG WAS also an original member of the San Rafael Volunteer Fire Department and a president of the Marin County Bank that in the 1920s was located in the Cheda Building. (This bank is now part of Wells Fargo Bank.)

Herzog died in 1953, just 17 days after celebrating his golden wedding anniversary. The home he built in 1903 for his bride, Rebecca Lobree, at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Court Street, now is the site of Bell Savings and Loan Assn.

The Herzog interest in the Chamber of Commerce has been maintained through the years. Herzog's son, Sig Herzog Jr. was president four years ago.

The Chamber of Commerce of San Rafael got down to business in 1930.

JUDGE FREITAS, then a young attorney just five years out of law school, suggested the chamber incorporate as a protection against liability claims. That year he drew up the papers and the Chamber of Commerce was duly incorporated on Dec. 2.

The papers stated the chamber was formed for the purpose of "upbuilding the city of San Rafael . . . encouraging and assisting in public improvements of all kinds . . . attracting and locating schools, colleges and industrial and manufacturing enterprises . . . to foster and promote commerce, industry, physical and moral development of the city.

The nation was in the beginning of the terrible depression of the 1930s and according to Judge Freitas in San Rafael "everyone was poorer but things were not totally black "because we were not a laboring town."

But the judge recalled, "a lot of people didn't eat . . . they went begging or lived by barter."

It was during these troubled years that the chamber sprang to life.

THE CHARTER directors including Harry Albert, Kaenel, J. Harold Dollar, William P. Murray Sr. and Judge Freitas worked to acquaint the business community about the chamber.

Two years later in an effort to try and boost business, the Chamber of Commerce inaugurated a "Trade at Home" festival.

The Saturday night event was described in the San Rafael Independent on Sept. 26, 1932 in a by-line story by the late Florence Donnelly, longtime Independent-Journal women's page editor and historian.

"About 10,000 persons witnessed the parade . . . and declared it the most spectacular and stupendous ever seen in the County. It was an immense pageant. Gorgeous floats, bands, marching units, clowns, pretty girls, everything which go to make a parade a thrilling event . . . ' "

"People were lined from curb to building in one solid mass the entire length of the line of march and it kept a special detail of police busy keeping them from breaking through the lines . . . "

ON OCT. 17 the Independent reported "leading merchants of San Rafael are busily engaged today slashing prices of high quality merchandise for the observance of "Trade at Home Dollar Days," to be started here Wednesday . . . the sales will be county wide in their appeal and every merchant participating will endeavor to make trading at home an economic necessity . . ."

The same year during the presidency of the late John G. Leibert, a building contractor, the chamber held its first major membership drive. Two recruit teams, competed to see who signed up the most members. That year the chamber reported a membership of 231 with $6,498 in dues pledged and $1,752 collected.

The Chamber of Commerce supported the start of the summer season program at Dominican College's Forest Meadows; worked for $100,000 in federal funds to build a post office; fought for the bringing of Hamilton Field to the county in the mid 1930s and for the building of the Golden Gate Bridge that was opened on May 27, 1937.

IN 1936 the chamber members sparked a project to widen Fourth Street and suggested the city adopt a sign ordinance. They supported the building of Highway 101, fought for the original overpass and for all highway improvements made through the years. (Before the fleet oilers and 62 tankers were turned out on the Sausalito ways.

During this time 75,000 men and women became welders, shipfitters, boilermakers, machinists, pinefitters and sheet-metal workers racing the clock to turn out ships for World War II.

Many of the Marinship and Hamilton Field personnel stayed in Marin after the war. The post war years were to see the building of Highway 101, Lincoln Avenue, then called Petaluma Road and later Avenue, was the roadway that led to the north.)

Marin's financial picture brightened in 1942 when the federal government built Marinship at Sausalito.

Sausalito became a seething industrial center when the shipyard opened on a 230 acre site along Richardson Bay. In the three year period between 1942 and 1945, 15 liberty ships, 16 county and San Rafael turn into a new, thriving community.

IN THE early 1950s an old San Rafael family made a decision that was to bring an influx of new residents to the area and open new commercial and industrial centers.

The surviving five sons and three daughters of Marin land baron Manuel T. Freitas agreed to sell their 1200 acre Home Ranch north of the downtown area.

Freitas had purchased the ranch from the Lucas family for $80,000 in 1898 and operated it as a dairy ranch during the following years. The family, who had a large townhouse on Fifth Avenue, used the ranch's three-story, 24 room mansion as a second home.

In 1953 the Freitas heirs started negotiating for the sale of the land, according to attorney Walter F. Freitas, who handled the sale for his brothers and sisters. The following year the dairy was shut down and bulldozers started ripping apart the 400 acres north of what is now the Manuel T. Freitas Parkway. This site became the community of Terra Linda. The land was sold for $2,500 an acre.

After an initial developer changed his mind about proceeding, the 800 acre portion of the ranch that is now part of the Northgate Shopping Center was taken back by the Freitas family.

FOUR YEARS later developer Jerry Draper took over the land and began construction of the shopping center. In 1964 the Emporium opened and the shopping center has been growing ever since.

Fairchild Semiconductor was also built on 10-acres of the Freitas land and in the late 1950s and early 1960s the Northgate Industrial Park began to grow on the marshland of the old ranch.

Quail Hill, another section of the ranch, is now being developed by Commerce Clearing House.

The 17-year-old Manuel Freitas, founder of the family, immigrated to San Francisco from the Azores Islands in 1870. He became a dishwasher and a little later, a fry cook in a short order house.

Soon he started working as a dishwasher and cook in a Portugese hotel in San Francisco and ended up owning the business a few years later.

BY THE time he was 27 he had become a wholesale produce broker. He prospered and in 1895 at the age of 43 married 16-year old Maria Bettencourt, who had come to San Francisco from the Azores Islands.

Freitas brought his bride to live in San Rafael on Lincoln Avenue near Linden Lane.

A "believer in land," he purchased four more ranches in Marin and another in Solano County before his death at 70 in 1923. (He liked to say he had a ranch for each of his six sons.)

By 1911 Freitas had become a partner in Sherry-Freitas Co., a dairy firm in San Francisco. He became a founder and vice-president of the Bank of San Rafael and bought a corner building at Fourth and B Streets and leased it to the bank.

The Bank of San Rafael became the first chartered national bank in the city in 1925 with the commercial department known as the First National Bank and the savings department, the Bank of San Rafael.

Manuel T. Freitas Jr., who worked in his father's bank in the early years, recalled only three banks in the city in the 1920s. The Marin County Bank; the Tamalpais Bank, then located in the Hotaling building on Fourth Street between C and D Streets. (This bank was later taken over by the Bank of America and moved to the corner of Fourth and C Streets.) and his father's bank that later merged with the Crocker Anglo Bank in 1961 and became Crocker-Citizens National Bank in 1963.)

THE SENIOR Freitas became president of the Bank of San Rafael after the death of founding president A.W. Foster.

In the post War II years the San Rafael business community continued to grow.

The Montecito Shopping Center was developed in the 1950s; Francisco Boulevard began growing into a main commercial thoroughfare in the late 1940s; Bret Harte now has 350 business firms, according to Nelson, and a redevelopment of the west end of Fourth Street is underway.

THE CHAMBER backed the building of the $68 million double-decked Richmond-San Rafael Bridge that started in 1953 and was finished three years later.

In 1957, on the 29th anniversary of the Hotel Rafael fire, wind-fanned flames leveled a San Rafael city block on Fourth Street between D and E Streets. Seventeen business houses and one residence were destroyed in the $2 million blaze the night of July 29. Today a complex of new buildings line the street.

The growth and change in the business community has been staggering during the last 50 years, Nelson commented. Looking to the future he said the Chamber of Commerce will continue to work for the prosperity and well being of the community.

Gardening In Hills Near Inverness

By MRS. DONALD S. GRANT

A 35 year "interlude" in the Navy did not daunt his enthusiasm for gardening, stated Capt. L.F. "Ike" Teuscher of Drake Highlands.

His interest in horticulture began in his native Burlington, Iowa, as a boy and was interrupted by Navy duty, to be resumed upon his retirement from active service fifteen years ago.

Upon retirement in 1954, he enrolled in the Ornamental Horticulture course at City College of San Francisco under the G.I. Bill. While there, he received the Alice Eastwood Scholarship awarded by the San Francisco Garden Club. During this time, he and his wife, Adelaide bought three acres of woodland on the eastern slope of Inverness Ridge.

THEY CLEARED two acres, built their home, and began a horticultural development which has continued to the present time. They also maintained a nursery for nine years, but as Ike said, "I was pretty good with plants but a lousy merchandiser." The last year he finally got into the "black" for $5.71.

He enjoys propagating plants and most of the one hundred and fifty species in the yard and one hundred more in the rock garden are his production. He always has fifty to one hundred for sale at the Garden Society of Marin's Fall Flower Show.

He says he feels brave when he prunes a plant and resists the impulse to "stitch" the cutting for rooting.

WITH MUCH emphasis on gardens, the Teuschers have made two, five month trips to Europe, trips to the Pacific Northwest and Alaska and more recently, a seven weeks tour of New Zealand.

While there they were invited to attend a four day Symposium in Christchurch conducted by the Canterbury Alpine Garden Society, which was exceedingly interesting. This included several fascinating garden tours.

Captain Teuscher and his wife Adelaide, reside on the Drake Highlands hilltop along with their loving apricot poodle "Sammy" overlooking Tomales Bay amid a setting of California Native plants, alpine plants and the plants of New Zealand.

There is great satisfaction in knowing this once uncultivated hilltop is now a well manicured garden containing a myriad of native plant specimens, especially when you have accomplished it single-handed.

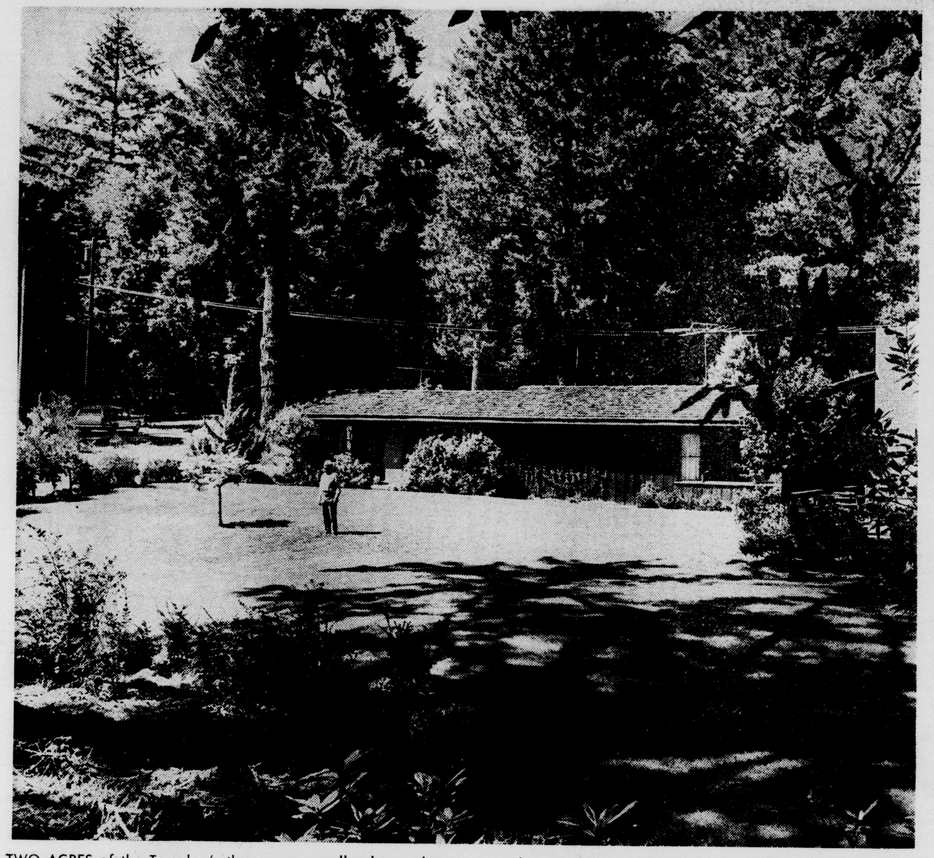
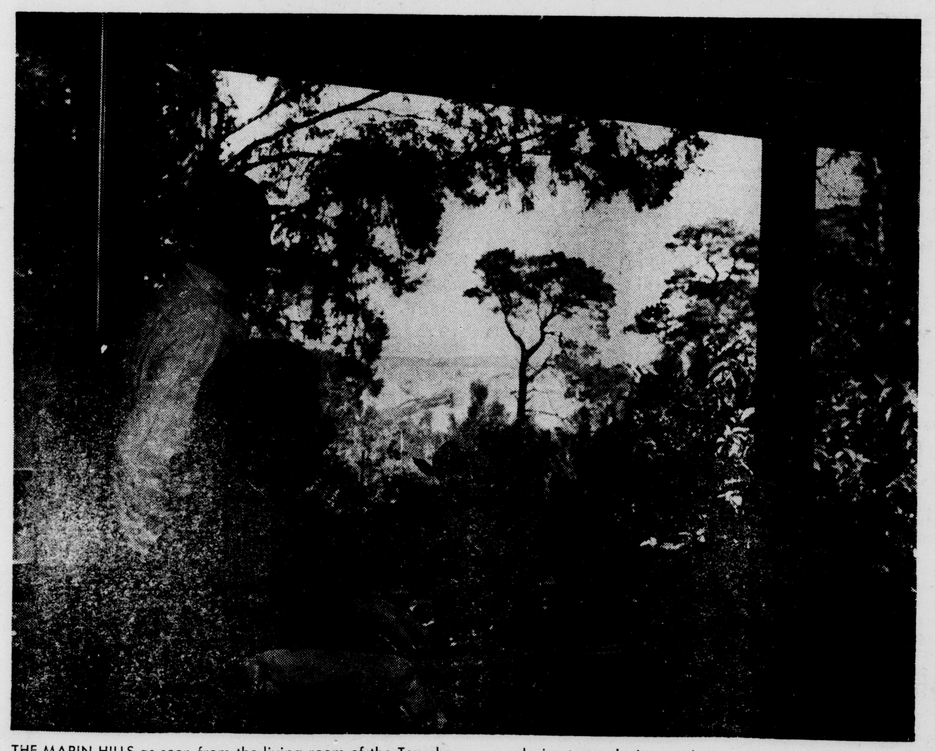
THIS BEAUTIFUL setting of the garden is conducive to reflecting on one's life work. Among Capt. Teuscher's recollections, one stands foremost in his thoughts, that of being presented to King George VI of Great Britian just ten days before the Normandy Invasion when he was in command of 29 L.S.T.'s in the Gold Beach Landing.

Captain Teuscher, who was presented with the British D.S.C. for which he can be justly proud, has many garden affiliations and is honorary President of the Inverness Garden Society, whose membership is limited to the "female of the species."

The Teuschers are members of many years standing in the Garden Society of Marin who will be holding their Annual Fall Flower Festival at the Marin Art & Garden Center. The hours will be Saturday, Oct. 24, noon to 6 p.m. and Sunday, Oct. 25, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.



TWO ACRES of the Teuscher's three-acre woodland parcel on the eastern slopes of Inverness Ridge are cleared providing ample room for the 150 species of plants in the yard and more than 100 species in the rock garden.



THE MARIN HILLS as seen from the living room of the Teuscher home provide a scenic view throughout the seasons; a setting conducive to gardening, and an inspiration to the gardener.

ENJOYING A PAUSE in activity at their Drake Highlands home are Capt. and Mrs. L.F. Teuscher, who managed to include interesting garden tours in their travels, including a recent trip to New Zealand.

NIBBLING AT the ripe huckleberries before the deer get them is "Samantha" or "Sammy," the Teuscher's poodle.

IN A SHELTERED AREA protected from prevailing winds, Capt. Teuscher tends to his bonsai collection.

Western Parks Often At Best In Spectacular Winter Coat

Most people are under the impression that the only time to visit a national park is during the traditional summer vacation months for many of the parks are closed in winter.

But those who have visited the parks which remain open have discovered a very special treat. Summer crowds are gone and one is free to enjoy the splendor of nature at his leisure.

GRAND CANYON is more spectacular than ever, especially when the snow has fallen. The junipers and pines on the canyon rim laden with powdered snow, frame an unforgettable view. And the coloring of the temples and buttes within the canyon seems more brilliant than at any other season.

Snowfall at the south rim of Grand Canyon is usually moderate and highways within the park as well as those leading to it are cleared of snow as soon as it falls. The north rim is higher and colder, and closed from mid-October until May.

The giant trees of Sequoia and Kings Canyon National parks in California are another of nature's wonders which should be seen in winter. Visit there in summer, of course, when the trip through Kings Canyon may be made. But come again when there is snow, especially if you are a winter sports enthusiast.

IN SEQUOIA there are skiing facilities at Wolverton near the park's southwest entrance. Service here includes ski instruction, equipment rental and a snack bar. Food service and overnight accommodations are available at Giant Forest. There is also an ice skating rink and snack bar at Lodgepole, four miles from the Giant Forest.

Death Valley National Monument, also in California, is a special case. While a few hardy desert enthusiasts venture into the area in the summer, from November to April this once feared desert becomes one of the West's most popular vacation areas.

The weather is perfect with seldom a cloud in the sky. Midday temperatures average 64 to 80 degrees, dropping in the 60's at night.

ACCOMMODATIONS are available at either the Furnace Creek Inn or the Furnace Creek Ranch. Golf on an 18-hole-all-green golf course, tennis, riding, swimming and hiking await the active visitor.

Death Valley has nearly two million acres of wild, unspoiled desert. The sand dunes, abandoned mining towns and claims of early prospectors are some of the many points of interest that await those who wish to explore the area.

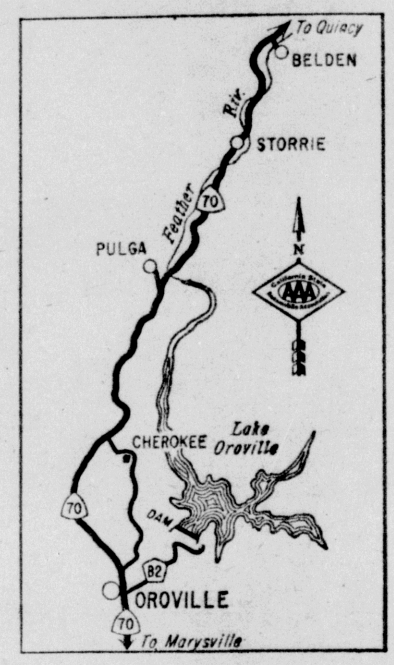
THE RAIN TUNNEL

Historical Land At Feather River



History began for California's Feather River in 1817, when Captain Luis Arguello led an exploring party up its valley.

Because he saw numerous wildfowl feathers floating on the water, he called it "Rio de las Plumas," "plumas" being Spanish for feathers.

Like many another region of the state, it was miners of the Gold Rush times, seeking out every stream and bar where treasure might be found, who made the first real penetration of the mountains of the Feather River Canyon some 30 years later.

THEY FOUND the gold at such places as Rich Bar, Indian Bar, Smith's Bar and Elizabethtown, mostly mere placenames on old maps now, but all serving to recall that the whole watershed of the Feather was rich in gold.

Today, the gold mining is but a memory as are the old mining towns, and the old stage and horse trail is now a modern highway that travels at virtual water-level up the canyon of the Feather.

The portion of it between Oroville and the crest of the Sierra Nevada is one of the most spectacular drives in California, reports the California State Automobile Association.

ALL THE way up through the canyon, the highway and the Western Pacific Railroad play leapfrog at the river crossings. The railroad was built first (1909) and naturally was laid out on the best alignment. At one point the highway bridge is directly over the railroad bridge, the two forming an X. The canyon is so deep and sheer in places that roadbuilders had to be lowered on ropes to drill and blast out a right-of-way for this scenic motor route. Arch Rock and Elephant Butte tunnels run through granite cliffs that drop steeply to the river's edge.

AUTUMN camping on the Feather offers bright fall colors, uncrowded campgrounds and late season trout fishing. One particular area to find this is off state Route 70 about two miles east of Belden along the improved Prattville-Butt Reservoir Road toward the Caribou Power House.

San Luis Obispo Mission Has Retained Its Charm

SAN LUIS OBISPO — An aura of history which bridges two hundred years and melts into the present, premeats the viewer when he visits Mission San Luis Obispo de Tolosa, in the heart of this colorful Spanish town on California's central coast.

The stunning old mission, fifth in the chain of structures built during the late eighteenth century by Franciscan padres under the leadership of Fra Junipero Serra, is still a practicing church — witness the young people's class being conducted by the parish priest. It is also a treasured monument of rare charm and endless antiquarian interest.

ARBORS of grapes still grow profusely in the garden behind the mission during the spring, summer and early fall. An ancient fountain still splashes in the rose garden.

And one after another, august halls and low-ceilinged adobe rooms lure the visitor to displays of artifacts from the old days: mementos of Spanish ranchero life; relics of the pioneer surge, with its raucous and dangerous frontier and gold rush days; the long-lived creative output of the native Chumash Indians, who greeted the Spanish settlers and helped them build one of the largest and most prosperous of all the California missions.

It cared for 900 neophytes, at its height, and grazed 6500 head of cattle and 6150 head of sheep on its lands.

THE MISSION'S museum is open during the day, and the church during the day and early evening. Tours through the museum are free of charge, unless the visitor cares to leave a donation for the missions' upkeep.

The mission sits above a stream running through the city's central business district, where the visitor can find dozens of intriguing shops, many set in the original adobe or pioneer structures of long ago.

Two hundred miles north of Los Angeles on Highway 101, the City of San Luis Obispo is just twelve miles inland from the sea. Its numerous beaches and bays supply a variety of recreation to San Luis Obispo vacationers.

THE STATUE OF LIBERTY standing with the impressive Manhattan skyline still ranks high in list of attractions for tourists to New York.

New York Still Top Attraction

A recent Gallup Poll revealed that the typical American citizen regards New York as the nation's "top city." It is also the "most interesting," and it has the "best food."

What are the sights and attractions that have kept Gotham in the winner's circle? The following list has been compiled by the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau, which each year lends a helping hand to over 16,500,000 annual visitors. Among the favorite attractions are:

Empire State Building. Each year millions of visitors enjoy the breathtaking views from observation decks on the 86th and 102nd floors.

Statue of Liberty. Since 1886, Miss Liberty has lifted her lamp "beside the golden door." From her crown, 22 stories above Liberty Island, visitors have a superb view of New York's bustling harbor.

UNITED NATIONS. The Great Peaceworker is now 25 years old, and each year the U.S. has added new sights, services and activities for visitors. The official meetings are open to the public, there is a one-hour guided tour, and no one should miss the post office, gift shops, restaurants and gardens.

Rockefeller Center. A city within a city, this midtown Manhattan landmark offers countless delights — learn about all of them on the guided tour. You can ice-skate in winter and dine outdoors in summer. In any season, you can sink into the plush splendor of Radio City Music Hall.

Lincoln Center. This beautiful center of the performing arts offers opera, symphony, dance, theatre, films — and a guided tour of the bright new buildings that house them.

THE MUSEUMS. Everyone has heard of the Met and the Modern, and visitors should not overlook the fabulous Brooklyn Museum, the Frick Collection, the Natural History, and the Museum of the City of New York. For striking architecture as well as art, catch the Guggenheim, the Whitney and the New York Cultural Center.

Sport. From all over, the sports fans come to Yankee and Shea Stadiums, and to try their luck at Aqueduct, Roosevelt and Yonkers racetracks. Latest stars in the sporting crown are the new Belmont Park and the new Madison Square Garden Center.

Times Square. Now undergoing a renaissance, "The Great White Way" is looking toward even brighter days. Coming attractions: new theatres, movies, skyscrapers and shops.

Entertainment. New York is still its capital, and its districts are Broadway, Off-Broadway, Off-Off-Broadway, the first-run film houses, TV shows, discotheques, the folk-rock-jazz scenes and night clubs.

Houses of Worship. Food for the soul and impressive works of art and architecture are offered by such landmarks as St. Patrick's Cathedral, the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Temple Emanu-El, the Abyssinian Baptist Church in Harlem, Trinity Church and St. Paul's Chapel in lower Manhattan, and more than 2,500 other religious edifices. You can even visit a Buddhist shrine in Chinatown.

Sightseeing Cruises. Perhaps the most relaxing way to learn all about New York's five boroughs is to take the Circle Line's three-hour sightseeing cruise around the island of Manhattan.

New York and American Stock Exchanges. The nation's marketplaces — the money capitals of the world — are two of the city's best sightseeing bargains. Free tours during trading hours.

Shopping. High and low fashions, antiques, posters, skis, coins, books, toys, pets — you name it, New York stores will produce it.

Stark Fort In Florida

When first seen dominating the horizon in the tropical waters of the Dry Tortugas, Fort Jefferson is an impressive, even starkly beautiful sight. Close-up, though, there is an oppressiveness in its grim vastness and isolation.

Now a national monument administered by the National Park Service, Fort Jefferson is located 68 miles west of Key West, Florida at the end of a string of coral keys.

LARGEST of the nation's 19th century coastal fortifications, Fort Jefferson was started in 1846 but never completed. Construction continued for 30 years, and the cost was over $3.5 million. During the Civil War it was occupied by Federal troops and used as a prison. During the Civil War it was occupied by Federal troops and used as a prison. During the Spanish-American War it was a coaling and refueling stop for U.S. Navy ships. In World War I it was a Navy seaplane base. Then the military moved out and the fort was left to be a ruin.

Covering 16 acres, with a half-mile perimeter, Fort Jefferson's massive 50-foot-high walls are eight feet thick. A 70-foot-wide moat surrounds it. A regular boat makes runs to the fort from Key West. After the tour, and before the boat leaves again, visitors can hunt shells, swim, fish, engage in skin diving on nearby reefs, or watch the many types of birds which congregate there.

Air France has announced that Americans beginning or ending their European trips in Paris will get a free day in France beginning Nov. 1. On the "no charge" list for tourists are hotels, car rentals, museum admissions and even some night club shows. Information about the one-day bonus can be obtained from Air France or travel agents.

Foreign Tours Inc. is offering tours of the South Pacific, including visits to Australia, New Zealand, Fiji, the Samoas and Tahiti starting with an Air New Zealand flight from Los Angeles to Sydney Nov. 1. Other departures in 1970 will be on Nov. 20 and Dec. 20.

FOR LAKES, IT'S AFRICA

Tremendous new artificial lakes rival those of nature in size and beauty, and they are getting bigger. East Africa's Lake Victoria, which is now the world's largest artificial lake, was formed after the creation of the Owen Falls Dam in Uganda.

Lake Victoria, say the travel experts of Trans World Airlines, is large enough to swallow all of West Virginia, but Lake Nasser, now backing up behind Egypt's Aswan Dam, will be bigger when it's completely filled.

SHERWIN MARKHAM
It Could Happen Here

Election Story Tells How Fascist Could Win

THE ELECTION by Sherwin Markham, Random House: 308 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

Can a Fascist become president of the United States? Yes, he can, and in fairly plausible fashion. This first novel by a former Johnson administration aide tells how.

The ingredients are a presidential election year no more inflammatory than 1968. Two moderate campaigners fail to win a majority of the popular vote. The Electorial College comes up short, also. The vote is thrown into the House of Representatives.

During this time a young black incendiary in Oakland (read Huey Newton) takes over ghetto sections with several thousand members of his Black Guards (Black Panthers). The consequences of this act inflame the ghettoes and enrage white suburbs.

A moderate lame-duck president (Lyndon Johnson) seemingly appeases Mamba, the black revolutionary. Freed on bail after surrendering, Mamba leads a giant demonstration onto Capitol Hill in Washington, D.C. A dim-witted Congressman attempts to get through the mob to vote for a new president. His gun-flashing bluster ends in a fatal pummeling. National media coverage of the murder outrages white America. Their representatives cave in to public pressure and vote Jack Parker (George Wallace) President of the United States.

The story is told with an insider's perspective. Markham is authoritative in staging his episodes. The interplay of Republicans and Democrats attempting to stall the radical right-winger Parker is often ironic. Their loyalty to country wars with political self-interest. The power plays, the selflessness, the uncontrolled forces of racism and fear, all mingle believably.

The author falls short of the drama his story should have generated, however. The climactic episode, the killing of a congressman, has been upstaged and diluted by better-presented prior episodes. Only two characters emerge living and breathing, Stu Brady, a young White House aide, who narrates the events; and Charley Jefferson, a black government attorney who is murdered by Mamba's men.

On balance, Markham has written a credible first novel with a dramatic theme.

Observer Of Nature Tells Of A Boy And His Dog

THE WILD RUNNERS by Mel Ellis, Holt Rinehart and Winston; 183 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Richard B. Lyttle.

Take that tried and true juvenile theme — a boy and his dog — add a thread of sociological concern and bill it as an adult book and what have you got?

With Mel Ellis doing the writing, you've got a good book. Mainly it is because Ellis is an expert observer of nature, including human nature.

With a half-breed dog befriended by a half-breed teenager, the jacket blurb tells us that neither can find a place for himself. Both are rejected by the wild and the civilized worlds.

the main thrust of the book. The Indian boy, North Main by Fortunately, this does not seem name, seems little more disturbed than any normal teenager in the battle with authority.

The charm of the book comes from Ellis' knowledge of wildlife and his characterizations. We know his animals very well before we meet the humans in the story. Most memorable character in the book certainly is the Old Man, an Indian who adopts the half-breed boy. And the Old Man plays the key role in the final surge to recapture ancient Indian pride.

Perhaps Ellis himself was unhappy with his creation of an impatient half-breed youth.

AN EYE FOR THE DRAGON; SOUTHEAST ASIA OBSERVED: 1954-1970; by Dennis Bloodworth; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, Inc.; 414 pp; $8.95. Reivewed by Larry Kramer

> "Certain Chinese artists, it is said, put the eyes in last when they painted a dragon, for this brought the formidable creature to life. Others have drawn the region for the western world; I would like to try to give it an eye in which the reader may glimpse something of its awakened spirit (leaving him to put in the other himself)."

And in providing an eye for the dragon, Bloodworth for the second time in this, his second book, has given the interested but non-specialist reader some real feeling for the dynamics of the Far East.

His first book, The Chinese Looking Glass, which appeared in 1967, concentrated on China. An Eye for the Dragon concentrates on Southeast Asia, with which Bloodworth is even more familiar. He has lived in Singapore with his Chinese wife for the last fifteen years and served as Far Eastern correspondent for The Observer of London. His style is breezy, in much the same way that John Gunther's was in his "Inside . . . " books, but his intense involvement with the Far East as a foreign correspondent has given his perceptions a good deal of substance.

Bloodworth points out that Westerners are constantly trying to measure Far Eastern behavior in terms of Western standards. They are constantly using large abstractions, like freedom and democracy, to justify their policies on the other side of the world. They never seem to understand that to the peasant — who in the long run will determine what happens in Indonesia, Indochina, the Philippines — freedom means the freedom to own a small patch of ricelands and perhaps freedom from overwhelming taxation, freedom from brutality from whatever government is in power, even freedom to work long back-breaking hours on his marginal holding, and democracy has no meaning whatsoever. Bloodworth catches this in a few lines, speaking about the Vietnamese peasant:

> "The peasant himself — seventeen men out of every twenty in the country — is not worried or excited or elated or downcast when he is presented with a Khanh instead of a Diem. He is indifferent. Too often his district offcier is a cheat and a bully, and that is all the government he knows. He owes it neither his trust nor his meager treasure. It does not protect him from the Vietcong, and it does not provide his simplest needs. It collects taxes and it takes the young men of the village away to fight. As for the riches of all these white men (Frenchmen, Americans, or whatever they are by now), they never filter down to him."

So much for the theory of foreign affairs that says that by tampering with the top, you can affect the roots. Even in our well-ordered universe, the trickle-down theory did not prove effective in practice when President Hoover tried it in 1930.

Bloodworth is more anecdotal than analytic in his approach, using his stories to set some of the leading characters in bold relief.

One of his most delightful tales concerns Prince Sihanouk, who saw himself as a God/King for whom all things were possible and no criticism was acceptable. Sihanouk wanted very much to have a railroad from the capital to the new port of Sihanoukville. He waited for a foreign power to offer to build it for him and it didn't happen. But then he began to have a new kind of diplomatic function which prescribed not evening dress, but working clothes, and he would invite the heads of the diplomatic missions in Phnom Penh to join with him and his workers in laying the track for the proposed railroad.

> "Every so often, therefore, an impressive convoy of shining limousines set out from the capital, carrying these polished gentlemen from their embassies to their unusual place of work. Shortly afterward sweat-stained ambassadors, wearing anything from khaki shorts and bushwhacker hats to Saville Row slacks and Charvet scarves, could be seen shoveling earth into baskets which were then passed down a human conveyor belt of senior Khmer officials. Loudspeakers filled the air with jazz, while Sihanouk himself, a round figure in shorts and white singlet, dug away briskly. At lunchtime, all retired to a marquee for a superb French meal washed down with champagne. Cynics alleged that urgent coded diplomatic messages were soon flashing to Washington, London, Moscow, and Peking, exhorting governments to present the exigent prince with his new railway as part of the foreign-aid program."

Bloodworth emphasized his claim to being a foreign correspondent and not an historical researcher, but he has come up with one historical tidbit which bears repeating:

> "The Viets were extremely difficult to defeat. They did not come out to fight, but hid in their familiar mountains and used the jungle like a weapon. In consequence, neither side could win. The security forces became increasingly fatigued, and the transport problem involved in supporting half a million men with food and arms progressively worsened. The Viets would raid suddenly, rob, and get away fast, so that just as our army obtained its supplies from the home base, the Viets obtained theirs from our army. Permanent garrisons were established, but the administration only effectively controlled the towns, the plains and the roads."

A philosopher has suggested that if we will not study history we may be doomed to repeat it. The above is not from the New York Times of last week but from the official account of the invasion of Vietnam by Imperial China in the third century B.C.

An Eye for the Dragon is an excellent introduction to Southeast Asia. It is serious without being pompous, critical without being shrewish, and most important of all, it provides an opportunity for the person to whom the Far East is extremely far, to see it through the eyes of a person who is at home with the assumptions and aspirations of the West and of Southeast Asia.

Was RFK Killed By Conspiracy?

"R.F.K. MUST DIE!" by Robert Blair Kaiser; Dutton, 634 pages, $9.95.

By DON KEOWN

After our experiences with the John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. assassinations, we must have known it was inevitable that there would be a book or books casting doubt upon the conclusions of the investigation of the murder of Robert F. Kennedy and the verdict in the trial of Sirhan Sirhan.

Robert Blair Kaiser has written such a book in his "R.F.K. Must Die!"

It is, however, probably more valuable for the wealth of detail — sometimes to the point of irrelevancy — that it provides about the case and trial than it is for any sensational charges that the full truth has not yet emerged.

Kaiser, a journalist with an impressive background with the Phoenix Arizona Republic and Time magazine and with one prior book to his credit, wrote "R.F.K. Must Die!" from a most unusual vantage point. He began as a personal friend of Robert Kennedy, and attached himself to Sirhan Sirhan's defense staff as an investigator so that he was present in person for interviews and psychiatric examinations of the defendant.

He found Sirhan totally unlikable — cunning and deceptive. But he also reached less than favorable opinions about many of the others involved in the case.

There was never any doubt but that Sirhan pulled the trigger of the gun that killed Robert Kennedy. The defense's task, then, was to provide mitigation that might save the assassin from the gas chamber.

The lawyers wavered between two courses — presenting Sirhan as a young Arab patriot who struck down Kennedy out of despair and resentment for the injustices being done his people and motivated partially by the violence and hardships he had known himself as a boy in Palestine (this was the role favored by the defendant himself, and a false one according to Kaiser); or the presentation of a psychiatric defense picturing Sirhan as a person of diminished mental capacity incapable of the premeditation required in first degree murder.

Saddled with an often uncooperative and eccentric client, the defense lawyers never made a clear choice between the two approaches, although they opted for the psychiatric defense as their main line.

Their key witness was Dr. Bernard L. Diamond, the eminent and brilliant University of California psychiatrist, criminologist and attorney and the originator of the diminished capacity principle as a legal defense in homicide trials.

Dr. Diamond, however, went further in this case, and theorized that Sirhan on June 4, 1968, had acted in a hypnotic trance, self-programmed for the act. It was, he admitted, a preposterous sounding theory. And yet, he felt, it was what had occurred. The notebooks of Sirhan from which the quote for the title of Kaiser's book is taken, used by the prosecution to prove premeditation, were actually a part of Sirhan's self-programming, probably written automatically while in a trance-like state, in the opinion of Dr. Diamond.

Kaiser rejects out-of-hand the picture of Sirhan acting as an Arab patriot. It was, the author alleges, a posture that Sirhan adopted only after the killing, greedy for the attention that it brought him.

Instead, Kaiser accepts at least in part Dr. Diamond's thesis. But he doubts that the robot-like Sirhan as pictured by some witnesses was entirely self-programmed. He suggests, instead, that some one else might have used Sirhan, susceptible and interested in the occult and mysticism, as a sort of Manchurian Candidate. In other words — a conspiracy.

Kaiser claims that investigators disregarded witnesses and evidence that pointed in that direction. But the clues he cites are not impressive.

Indeed, the best support for the Diamond-Kaiser theories come from the reader's own reading of Sirhan's garbled notebooks. These are reprinted in their entirety in the book. There are references there — to money, to people, to actions, to complaints — that might well lend themselves to the "programming" interpretation.

And so along side doubts already cast as to the purity of the justice administered in the cases of the John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King assassinations, we now have conspiracy allegations to ponder in yet another national tragedy.

But as noted earlier, Kaiser's book, despite his controversial conclusions, has a greater value for the light it focusses upon a case that was confused and twisted by the intense emotion that accompanied the event.

In the glare of Kaiser's reporting, for instance, we discover that most people involved, including, alas, a major segment of the press, behaved dismally or disgracefully in time of crisis. Mayor Sam Yorty's embarrassing grab for publicity was more typical than otherwise.

We are given startling evidence of the distrust the public holds for psychiatry in the jurors' reasoning and verdict. Those in the profession would do well to read the book and reflect as to the causes.

Said one prosecutor: "I have heard that Charles Dickens once wrote a book in which one of his characters said something about, 'The law is an ass.' And I think that's true and I'm a lawyer. And I think the law became an ass the day it let the psychiatrists get their hands on law." (In fairness, he might have noted that lawyers had already pretty well bent the law in that direction, and that they, not psychiatrists, were Dickens' targets.)

Attorneys, judge and investigators in Los Angeles generally conducted themselves a good many notches above the bizarre behavior at Dallas. But their actions were not unflawed.

Finally, society itself left much to be desired. Almost a century earlier, a verdict had been returned against another assassin, Charles Guiteau, the killer of President James A. Garfield, and Charles Rosenberg then wrote of it:

"Society ... must protect itself, the merciless prosecution of the vicious must not be impeded — no matter how lamentable the circumstances conspiring to form their vicious character."

Apparently, the jurors who not only returned a first degree murder conviction against Sirhan, but specified the death penalty, and the public that overwhelmingly approved those determinations, signified that society has not advanced greatly in compassion since 1881.

Murder is a grim and gruesome affair that generally diminishes all concerned. In this case, the victim was the exception. Although there has been a general decline in the prestige of the Kennedys in recent years it is indisputable fact that esteem for Robert F. Kennedy has grown since his death. More and more have grasped the remarkable truth of his growth from a somewhat cynical, pragmatic politician to idealistic visionary and statesman.

One can accept the truth of the statement in Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's letter to the presiding judge at the time of Sirhan's sentencing:" . . . if the kind of man my brother was is pertinent, we believe it should be weighed in the balance on the side of compassion, mercy and God's gift of life itself."

Or Kaiser's characterization of R.F.K. as "the man we now realized we needed more than we had known."

MEMBERS OF the English Royal Family are depicted as private individuals speaking in candid interviews and as public figures presiding at solemn state ceremonies in "The Queen's Year: The Reality of Monarchy," Doubleday, $8.95 by Andrew Duncan, who closely observed the family during 1968-69. Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip, at top, are shown during one of her speeches with Princess Margaret and Lord Snowden and their children, below.

THE GREAT HIJACK by Alfred Tack; Doubleday, 187 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Described as one of Britain's leading industrialists, Alfred Tack evidently prefers the less remunerative profession of writing, turning out a steady stream of both crime novels and books on business management.

"The Great Hijack" is not one of his better mysteries.

Jack Barclay, a junior executive, finds himself being urged by an old colleague from Military Intelligence to work with him against his boss. The latter, it is alleged, is something more than just the head of a business empire.

Barclay soon finds himself involved in some sinister manipulations including murder and with the inevitable pretty but mysterious girl.

It is, however, a rather routine yarn, and Tack does not use his personal knowledge of big business as effectively as he has utilized it in the past.

Three Roses Win All-America Awards

THE REDGOLD, a showy floribunda of fiery chrome-yellow and red, was the first British rose to win an All-America award in nearly a quarter of a century.

The All-America Rose Selections judges recently named three of the finest new roses as awards winners for 1971.

Redgold, a showy floribunda, Command Performance, a brilliant orange hybrid tea, and Aquarius, a pink and white grandiflora were selected from a large field of candidates tested during a two-year period.

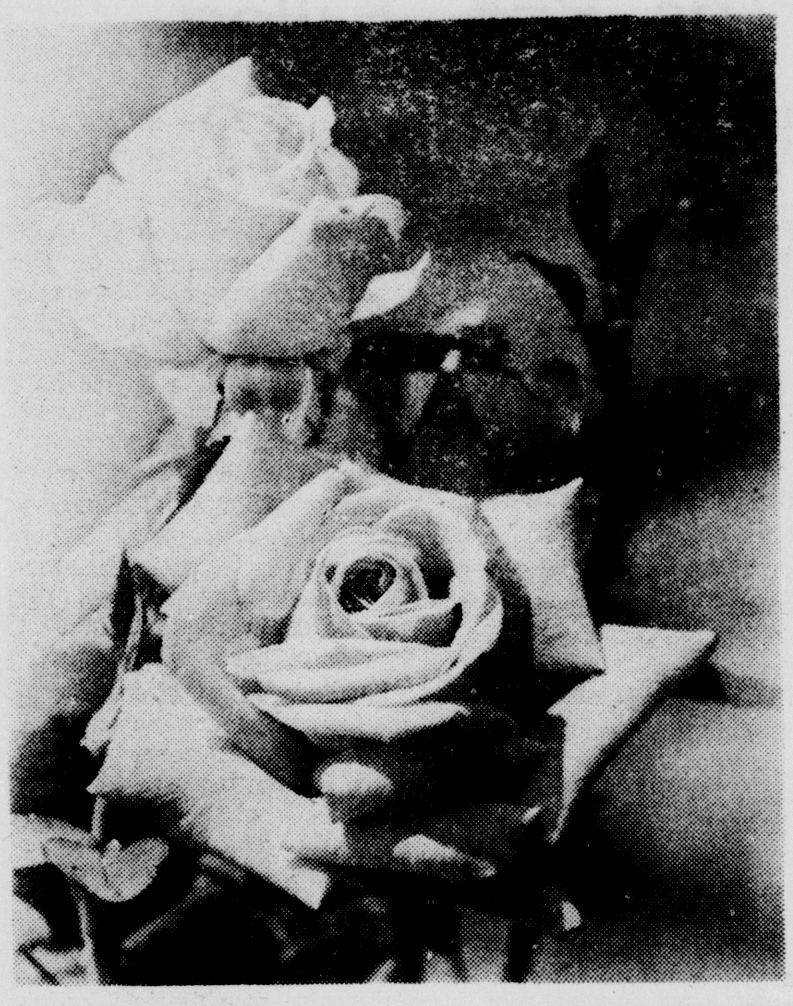
The Redgold was originated by Patrick Dickson of Belfast, Ireland, a fifth generation member of his family in the nursery business.

The Redgold originated when Dickson noted red and gold blooms on a seedling in 1962, the father a Piccadilly, but the mother unknown.

After some experiments the Dicksons managed to find the right combination, and the Redgold came into being.

Command Performance is known as an upright, vigorous plant bearing large quantities of the fragrant blooms on long, strong stems, which should do well in flower show competition.

Aquarius produces fragrant blooms in great quantities with each flower having up to 30-35 petals.



COMMAND PERFORMANCE, a fragrant, brilliant orange-red tea rose, was cited for its exquisite shape with graceful, shapely long buds and its persistant perfume.

Before Selecting Right Tree Ask Yourself Some Questions

Garden Page

Selecting the right tree for the right use and location is as important as selecting the right workman for your home repairs.

The fact that a tree is pretty or that the same kind is thriving in a neighbor's yard is no indication that it will fulfill your needs.

BEFORE selecting any tree, you must have definite answers to two questions:

1. What will be the primary use of the tree?
2. What are the soil and climate conditions of the planting site?

In many cases, you will have multiple answers to the first question, but you must rank them in order of priority. Which is more important to you, shade or privacy, a windbreak or enhancing the beauty of your home?

IF THE primary purpose of the tree is to enhance the appearance of your house, you need to study the outside dimensions of the house. Tall trees will dwarf a single story house, but you need some landscaping height around a house with two or more full stories.

You should also consider the size of the house in relation to the size of the lot.

If it seems to crowd the boundary lines, keep your landscaping low and simple. If there is a considerable amount of lawn, larger trees will give unity to the entire lot.

Many trees can serve dual purposes well. A pin oak grown to maturity, for instance, can shade a patio, provide privacy from the eyes of a neighboring apartment building, and add to the beauty of the neighborhood, as well.

ALSO CONSIDER the shapes that would be most suitable to your site. Would you prefer the informality of a weeping willow or a sour gum, the roundness of a sugar maple, the slenderness of a Lombardy poplar, or the airy, vase shape of an American elm?

The type and texture of leaves is another factor that will have a bearing on the appearance of your yard. Evergreens tend to look heavy and strongly weighted to the ground. Elms and locusts have small leaves and are light in appearance. Horse chestnuts and sycamores have large leaves and appear massive.

You may have special needs, which will require trees with special characteristics. For instance, a corkscrew willow or an Amur maple is good for a small area where you need shade. White pines and Norway spruce are good screening trees. A redbud, dogwood, or Japanese maple is ideal for adding color and beauty to an area limited in space.

ON THE question of soil and climate, consider how much sun and rain the tree is likely to get. What is the nature of the soil — is it predominately sand or clay, or are there lots of rocks in the ground?

Evergreens, in general, are not good in heavily shaded areas. Weeping willows and sugar maples will thrive in a moist location.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- The many striking Hybrid Lilies can be planted this month. Be sure and give them good drainage.
- Plant all spring-blooming bulbs this month and next. Tulips are better planted on the late side — in November and December.
- Choose shrubs, trees, and vines in fall colors at the nursery — now.
- Select and plant flowering Sasanqua Camellias now while they are coming into heavy bloom.
- Plant Cyclamen now for winter and spring bloom.

By JOHN SUNIER

One of the top-selling LP's today is "Band of Gypsys," from the late Jimi Hendrix (Capitol STAO-472). Recorded live at New York's Fillmore East, it has an excitement that cannot be surpassed by any of the many "live" LP's suddenly hitting the record shops.

The sounds created by Hendrix on his guitar, assisted only be Buddy Miles and Billy Cox, are wide-ranging and sensual in the extreme. Hendrix should have been considered one of our greatest composers of electric music today, right next to Stockhausen and Subotnick and the rest.

THE MODERN Jazz Quartet retains its long-time title of greatest small group in jazz with "Space" on Apple STAO-3360. Meat-and-potatoes of the album is a gorgeous arrangement of the adagio from Rodrigo's Guitar Concierto de Aranjuez. There are two originals just penned by pianist-leader John Lewis, "Visitor from Venus," and "Visitor from Mars." What can one say about something as perfect as the MJQ?

"Country Preacher" is the new one from The Cannonball Adderley Quintet (Capitol SKAO-404). It was taped live at "Operation Breadbasket," a project led by The Rev. Jesse Jackson of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. The huge audience joins in with clapping, halellujahs, etc. adding to the spirit and soul of the event.

SIDE TWO of the album creates a new sound out of the blend of jazz with African and Spanish music. The Fender electric piano is a vital part of the Quintet's sound, as is its performer-composer, Joe Zawinul.

In addition, it's great to hear Cannonball on the soprano sax once in a while. If jazz can be this exciting, it won't have to lie down and die because of rock by any means.

KEVIN AYERS is a British composer-singer who looks like a cleaned-up version of one of the Rolling Stones. His LP (Harvest SKAO-421) is distributed in the U.S. by Capitol. A surrealistic quality not uncommon in the work of the Beatles lately is found in generous supply inAyers unusual songs. I for one am not worrying myself with figuring out all the meanings; just digging the sound, especially that of the very sparkling instrumental arrangements, is enough for me. A definite jazz flavor adds piquancy to the backing. Ayer's delivery is fairly straightforward without Jagger-ish posturing.

Hard on the heels of Traffic's "Best of ... " album (United Artists UAS 5500) comes the brand new one by the reconstituted Traffic, "John Barleycorn Must Die" (UAS 5504).

The first contains such favorites of the rock trio as "Paper Sun," "Medicated Goo," and "Dear Mr. Fantasy." It's a great buy if you don't have any Traffic in your collection. The title tune "John Barleycorn" is a bit of acoustic Olde English folk song and does nothing for me.

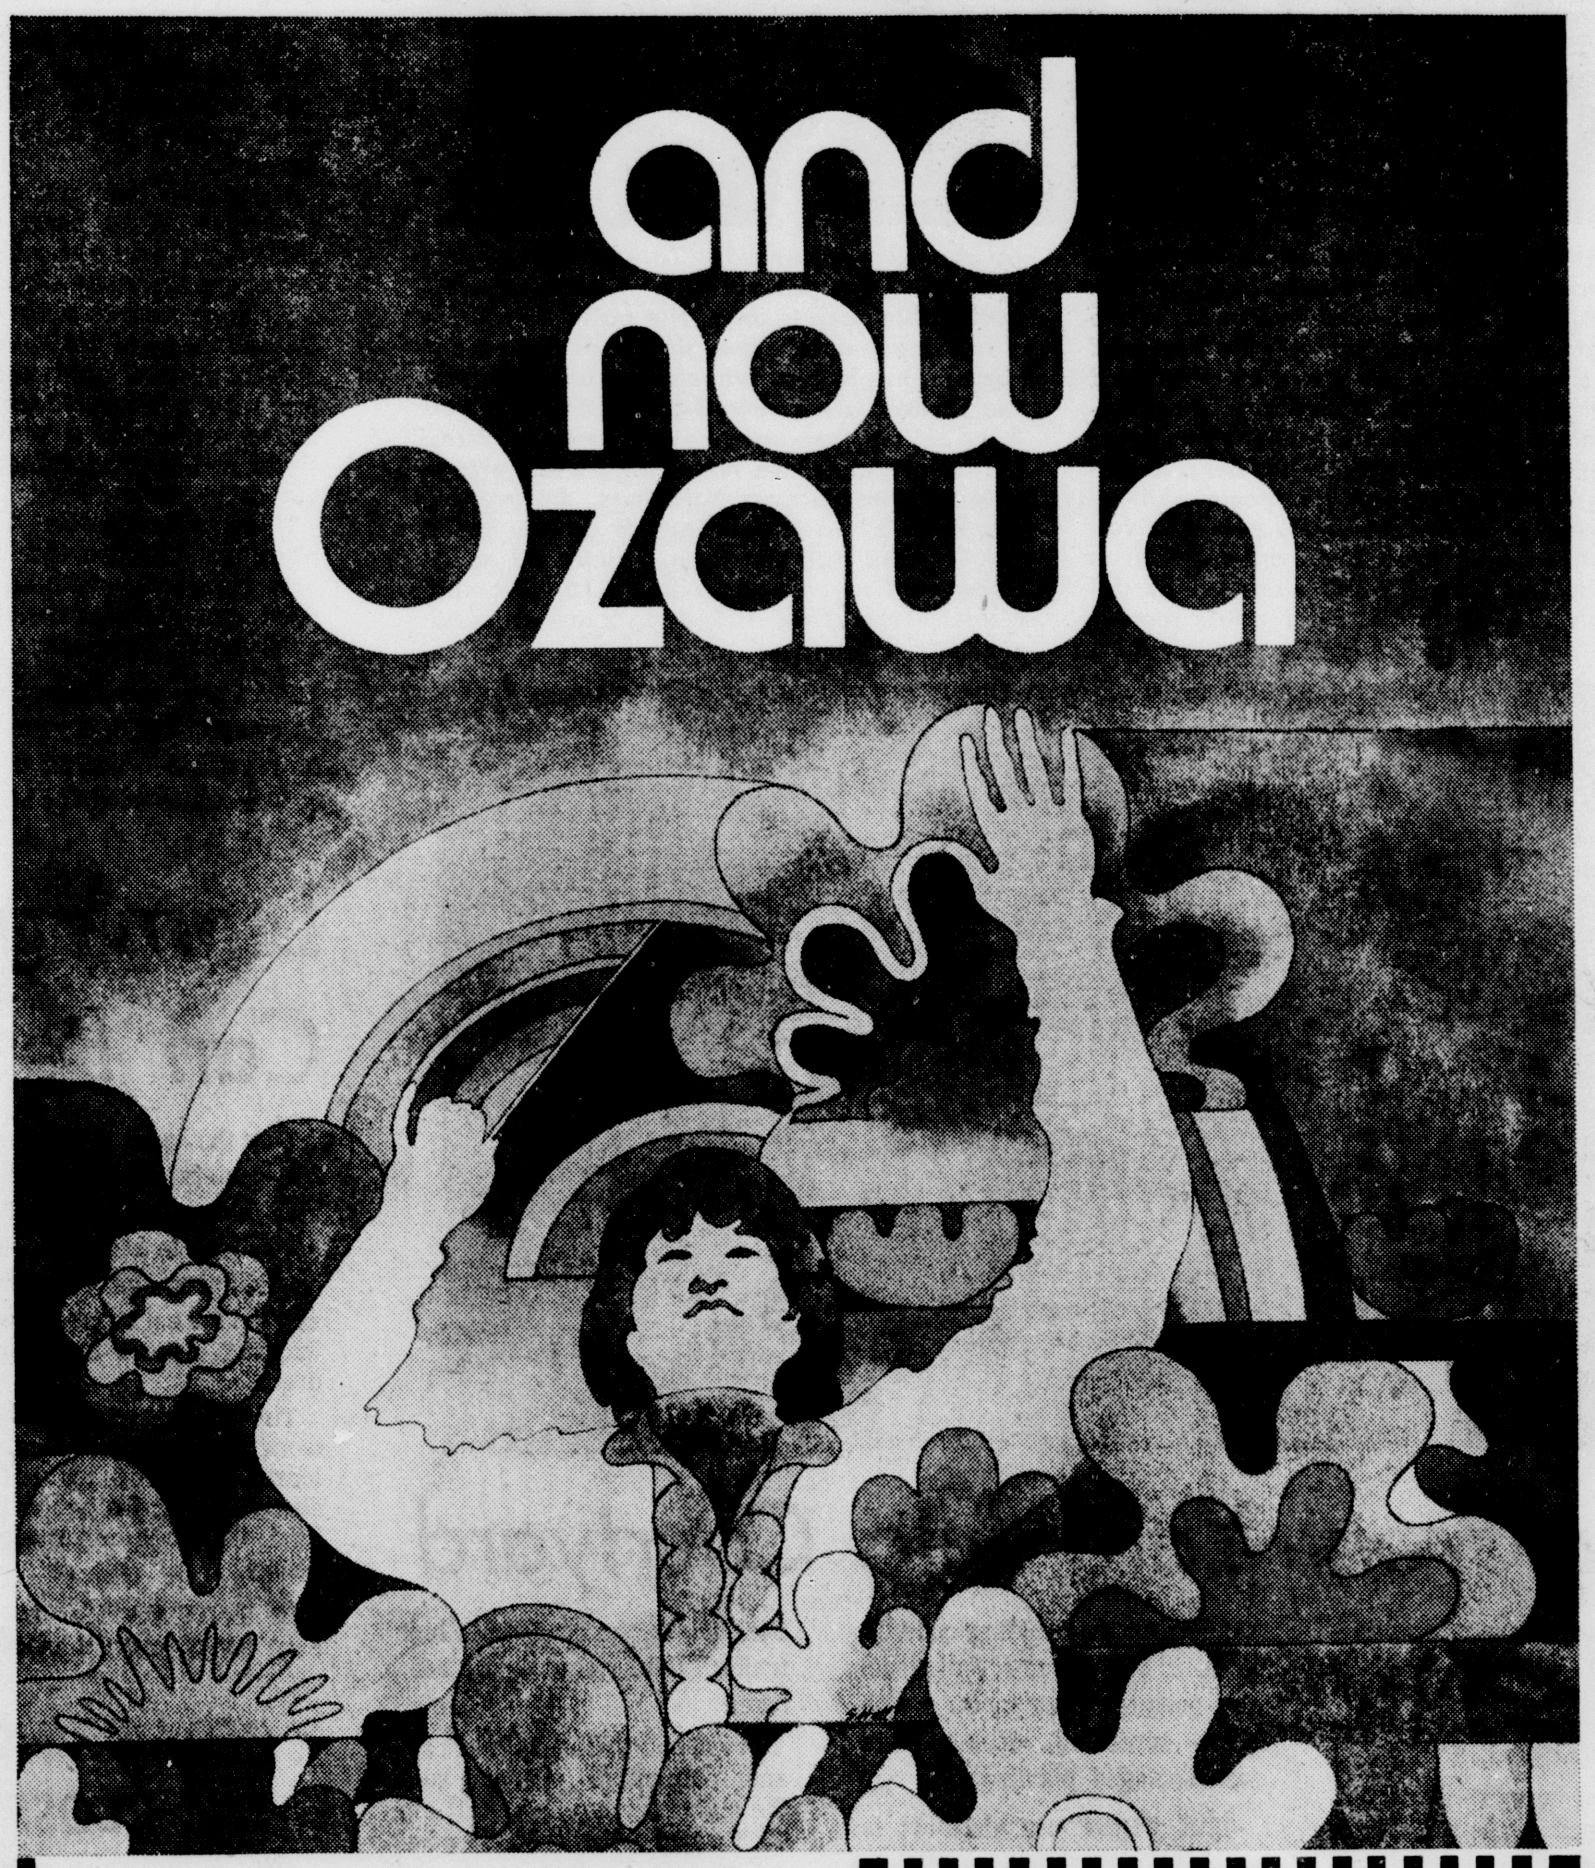
THE REST of the six tracks are superb though, with a much-needed soft-pedaling of the electric guitars and an accent on keyboard, especially Steve Winwood's electric organ — which adds so much to the individual sound of the group. "Glad" is a jazzy instrumental first track, and "Every Mother's Son" a smash conclusion to the new LP.

United Artists Records International Series has released three very attractive albums of sounds from South America. "The Flute Where It Lives" (UNS 15561) is a haunting journey to the sound of the wooden flute.

Two groups, Los Calchakis and Los Guacharacos, are heard. Music from Ecuador, Peru, Columbia, Bolivia, Argentina and Mexico is heard, with other folk instruments such as the tiple, charango, sonajas and cascabeles adding to the exotic flavor. This is not rough-hewn field recording of folk material, but tasteful arranged selections preserved in glorious stereo sound.

BADEN POWELL, though hardly known in this country, is one of the most popular guitarists in both Europe and South America. Segovia, Django, Bach and bosa nova have all had an influence on his music. His program, "Fresh Winds" (UNS 15559) finds Paul Mauriat and his Orchestra providing delicate and tasteful backing for a program reflecting all of the above influences on Baden Powell's style. I particularly liked "Choro Para Metronome" and "Samba en Preludio," with its wordless female voice and cello.

The album employs greatest restraint in avoiding any selections from "Black Orpheus," though there happens to be a beautiful little original tune titled "Eurydice."



He's exciting and magical...a rare combination of grace, dynamic strength and youthful brilliance. A born crowd pleaser with amazing vitality and orchestral maturity, he brings to music a new flair with a fresh new spirit.

Become involved...let Seiji Ozawa and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra entrance you with a new experience in fine classical music.

The excitement of this musical season is happening not only at the San Francisco Opera House, but right near you in Marin County. This year's Second Annual Marin Series will include four Saturday evening concerts at Terra Linda High School. Outstanding guest artists will join Maestro Ozawa to bring you four evenings of superb entertainment.

THIS DELIGHTFUL replica of an old-fashioned doll carriage is easy and fun to build, thanks to the full size pattern offered above. While the original was decorated with the flowered design shown, many are now being finished in natural wood stain. Both have great appeal and become popular sellers for those seeking to start a part-time business. Building this carriage requires no special skill or knowledge of tools. Plywood, plus the full size pattern and hand tools are all that is required. The cost is small since all of the materials can be bought for far less than a fifth of the price paid for a similar carriage purchased ready-made. To simplify buying materials, the pattern tells what is needed and where each is used. The pattern includes a full size template that simplifies cutting out rockers. In place of wheels and axle holders, the rockers are screwed to bottom and you have an old-fashioned covered cradle. Many of the originals are now being used alongside the fireplace to hold logs, magazines, etc. Send $1 in cash, check or money order for Colonial Doll Carriage, Pattern 59 to Independent-Journal, P.O. What's Up Front Counts In Home

What's up front counts in a home.

Some homeowners get so involved with extensive remodeling plans that they overlook one of the most obvious, and easiest, areas for home improvement — the front entrance.

IF YOUR home front has been neglected, or if it's dull and undistinguished, here are some ways to put its best face forward:

Make sure the front door is distinctive. Wood panel doors, rich-looking entries for any home, are especially effective in a style appropriate to the architectural theme of the house.

Panel doors of ponderosa pine are readily available at local lumber dealers in a variety of styles and in stock sizes to fit any door opening.

If feasible, consider a complete new entrance (panel door plus sidelights, overhead pediment, ornamental facade) also available as stock units.

PAINT the door an eye-catching color. A cinnamon red or royal blue door on a black-roofed, white-sided Colonial home perks up the entire exterior. An advantage of wood panel doors is that they can be easily painted — and repainted when you tire of the color.

You might flank the entrance with door-length wood louver shutters. They are an attention-getting accessory, also easily painted for color accents.

DON'T HIDE the front door behind clumsy storm sash. Combination storm and screen doors are now available in styles to match wood panel entry doors. The doors are permanently installed; you simply switch glass and screen panels to suit the season.

Use name and number plates, bells, knobs and knockers that match the door style. Attractive hardware is one of the least expensive and most effective ways to introduce style.

MAKE SURE the door is visible from the street. Don't obscure it with badly-placed shrubbery. Light fixtures should be attractive — but should also give sufficient light.

For safety as well as good looks, keep doorsteps and railing in good repair.

Learning Center Can Be Compact

Why the boom in family learning centers? Sure, since Sputnik, Johnny can read, but that's not enough to keep him clued in on the space age. So, more and more parents are providing learning centers for their children.

This is where school homework gets done, and maybe Dad learns something, too. It's great stimulus to curiosity about mankind, the earth and space technology.

ESSENTIALS include reference books, current magazines, perhaps a moon map and color TV, and other items dictated by the family's interests. And, of course, a place to keep them all together. An extra room to use for this purpose is a big asset, but if you don't have one, a built-in will serve well.

One advantage of an installation of this type in a family room is that it's right at hand and more readily put to use.

If the counter is to be used for typing or other desk work, a pull-out seat, faced with matching cabinets doors, will be most useful.

Other under-counter space may hold records and writing equipment. A tall compartment is useful for atlases and art books.

CONSIDER storing folding tables and chairs in one cabinet. A surprisingly small space will hold a set. Be sure to measure the table top, since sizes vary and the counter will have to be high enough so the table can be placed on edge beneath it.

Higher shelving on adjustable standards and brackets takes care of books, magazines and other items. Most bookshelves should be cut from 12-inch boards. A box treatment for various sizes of books, speakers and other equipment makes convenient, adjustable storage space.

Random-width board paneling of western pine, fir or cedar will make the cabinet distinctive.

Turn Front Yard Into Courtyard

"Don't just sit there, do something!" An old demand, but a good expression of the attitude many a homeowner takes toward his front yard.

The front yard's worth increases when there's a scant room at the sides of the house and the back isn't suitable for alfresco meals or sunning.

Even if the front setback is as shallow as the building code allows, it can become an attractive private courtyard with some screening, decking and well-arranged plantings.

THE FIRST consideration is privacy and that demands a fence. In some situations, a screen of open design bordered with lacy shrubs will do the trick Houses on roads with high traffic flow require a solid fence.

Board-and-batten is an easy and inexpensive type and suits the style of many houses. It can be framed with 4x4-inch posts set four to six feet apart, and capped with a 2x4 laid flat. Beveling the top of the 2x4 will give the fence a lighter, less squared-off look.

Part of the fence may be recessed and the gate set sideways in a recess planted with evergreens such as nandina and dwarf pine. The jogging will relieve the severity of the long, straight, solid fence.

In flooring the courtyard, it is often possible to make use of existing paving and proches.

Benches along other sections of the fence or along the house wall provide instant seating.

CEDARIZING THE CLOSET

Closed space is all that's needed to have a moth-repelling cedar closet. Many families simply convert an existing closet by nailing aromatic red cedar closet lining to the walls.

Available at leading lumber dealers everywhere, each package contains installaton instructions. The cedar boards are tongue and grooved for fast, easy construction.

Cedar covering all space and door that can be closed tight to keep in the aroma are the only prerequisites to creating a fine cedar closet in an existing space.

Storage Space Is Where You Find It

STORAGE UNDER SINK

Even the smallest home or apartment has storage space, but finding it takes a bit of imagination. Having spotted elusive corners and nooks, the home owner can readily enclose and make them functional.

First task is to find storage "where it doesn't exist." Here are some suggestions from Norma Brown, homemaking consultant to Masonite Corporation:

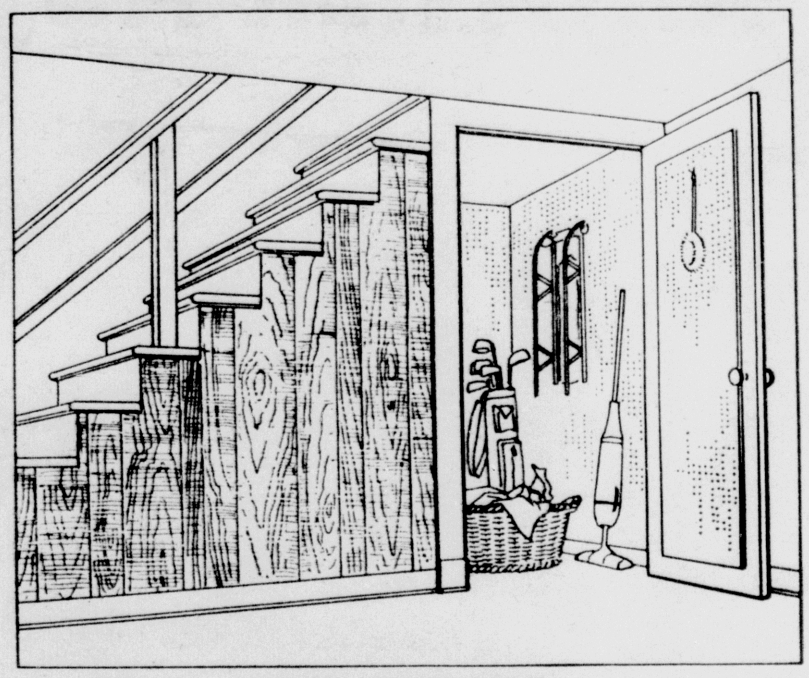
— UNDER STAIRS closet. Usually in basement, this space can be organized and kept clean by stringing some 2x4-inch lumber and covering it with a decorative paneling. There'll be ample space for shelf items, vacuum cleaner and other bulky items.

— Under kitchen sink. An easy-to-build cabinet here will provide out-of-view storage for kitchen chemicals and cleaners. Sides of the space can be lined with peg-board panels, on which can be hung odd-sized kitchen utensils or tools. Either swing-out or sliding doors can be made, using peg-board or a decorative hardboard.

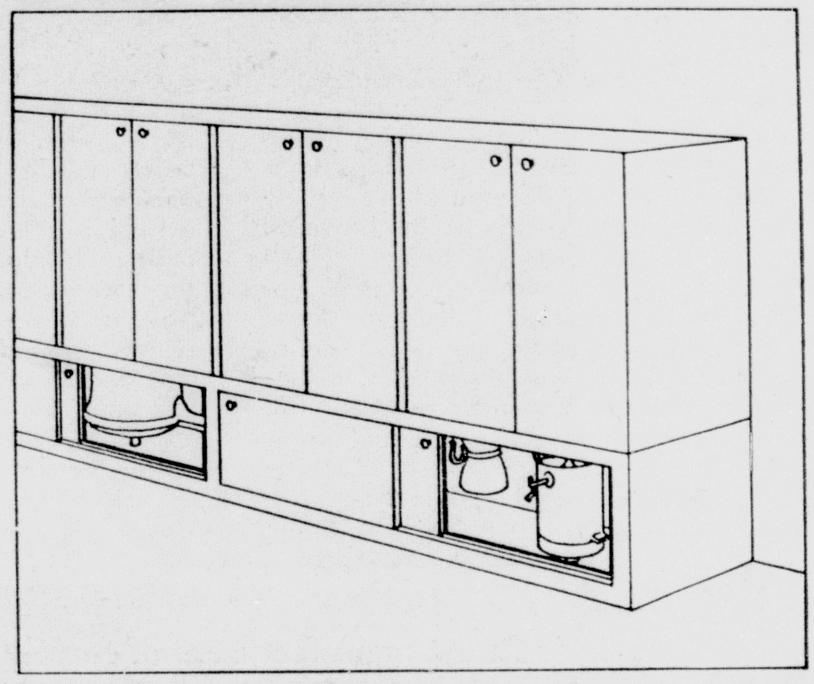
— KNEEHOLE area of desk. After leaving room for knees, install shelves to accommodate stationery supplies and books. By using Peg-Board panels and wooden pegs, the spacing can be made flexible for changing requirements.

— Over-wall cabinets in kitchen. Here is an ideal space to store little-used, outsize platters, coffee pot and other items that don't fit easily into existing cabinets.

— End of hallway. If this place is unneeded for traffic, the handyman home owner can easily convert it into a narrow closet which can be used for storing canned food, for example. If the space is deep enough, it could serve as a closet for street clothes.



CLOSET UNDER STAIRS



TOPPER CABINET

FOR CANNED food storage, handymen often line three sides with quarter-inch Peg-Board panels and support thin wood shelves on pegs. A roll-up curtain can be used to keep out dust.

— Wardrobe closet. This is a possibility in a large bedroom with inadequate storage space; also a basement, utility room or attic for overflow storage of clothing. Write Home Service Bureau, Box B, Chicago, Ill., 60690, for free plan AE-403, which has information on how to build closets and other bedroom facilities.

Do You Know Much About Your Windows?

Even people who live in glass houses may not know much about windows.

Because windows are such a familiar house structure, many homeowners think they know more about them than they actually do. The Anderson Corporation, a leading window manufacturer, points out however, that the more window information you have, the easier it is to select those best suited to your building or remodeling needs.

FOR A quick test of your window knowledge, see how many of the following questions you can answer correctly:

1. The window style recommended for use in awkward locations, such as above kitchen sinks and countertops, is: (a) double-hung (b) hopper (c) casement.

(Answer is casement, which opens outward with an easy-to-reach handle or lever. You don't have to stretch to operate the window.)

2. SEPARATE storm sash is not required in cold climates if a window has: (a) welded insulating glass (b) sufficient weatherstripping (c) a southern exposure.

(Answer is welded insulating glass — two sheets of glass fused together at the edges to form a dry "insulating" layer of air between. Cuts heat loss by transmission. Doesn't require the maintenance chores associated with storm sash.)

3. In an average home, the proportion of the outside wall taken up by windows is as much as (a) ¼ (b) ⅓ (c) ½.

(Answer: as much as 50 per cent in average homes, even higher in some new construction. This shows the importance of quality windows in house design and comfort.)

4. A STRONGLY recommended safety feature for large glass areas, such as patio doors, is: (a) tinted glass (b) decals (c) tempered glass.

(Answer is tempered glass, which is highly resistant to impacts. If it does break, the glass crumbles into harmless, pellet-sized pieces. Tempered glass is standard in Andersen patio doors.)

Whether you scored high or low on this quiz, you can improve your window quotient with two informative booklets: "How to Get Good Windows When You Buy, Build, Remodel" and "The Low-Upkeep Window". They are available free from the Andersen Corporation, Dept. C-1, Bayport, Minn. 55003, and can help you select the proper windows for your home.

Water-Based Paint Outdoors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Something new has been added for the homeowner who wants to paint the outside of his house this Fall — an entire water-based system of paints.

Water-based or latex paints long have been popular for exterior use. But it was not until recently that a quality latex gloss exterior trim was put on the market.

NEW acrylic emulsions developed specifically for outside use have induced a growing number of house paint manufacturers to include water-thinned trim paints in their lines.

In addition to the familiar advantages of latex paints — quick drying, easy cleanup with soap and water, low in odor and no fire hazard — the new acrylic emulsions compare favorably with alkyd and oil-based enamels in performance.

THE PAINTS resist mildew, chipping and discoloration better than solvent-based trims, and for these reasons are recommended for use on outdoor furniture, shutters, panels, doors, railings, fences, bird and dog house and other surfaces out of doors where a gloss finish is desired.

The new trims are applicable to both damp or dry surfaces. Actually, the lap time of the paint, approximately 10 or 15 minutes, can be extended by wetting the surface before painting.

THE ACRYLIC latex trim paints dry in just a few hours, making it possible to apply more than one coat in a day, if necessary. Four or five hours should elapse before recoating.

The paints adhere well over aged, glossy surfaces, as well as primed bare wood, and can also be used on brick, stucco and other masonry surfaces. The gloss levels hold well, providing good color and color retention.

Credo Of Kenneth Clark— 'Order Better Than Chaos'

Kenneth Clark, who presides over the prestigious "Western Civilization" series being shown on educational television, offers this as his credo in the concluding program:

"At this point I reveal myself in my true colors, as a stick-in-the-mud. I hold a number of beliefs that have been repudiated by the liveliest intellects of our time.

"I believe that order is better than chaos, creation better than destruction.

"I prefer gentleness to violence, forgiveness to vendetta.

"On the whole I think that knowledge is preferable to ignorance, and I am sure that human sympathy is more valuable than ideology.

"I believe that in spite of the recent triumphs of science, men haven't changed much in the last 2,000 years; and in consequence we must still try to learn from history. History is ourselves.

"I also hold one or two beliefs that are more difficult to put shortly.

"For example, I believe in courtesy, the ritual by which we avoid hurting other people's feelings by satisfying our own egos.

"And I think we should remember that we are part of a great whole, which for convenience we call nature. All living things are our brothers and sisters.

"Above all, I believe in the God-given genius of certain individuals, and I value a soicety that makes their existence possible."

THE ART OF SELF-DEFENSE

I should stand up and fight I'm told.
Be brave and daring and exceedingly bold.
The time to begin this task is now,
While young enough to still learn how.

He glares at me and I hear him say,
"Never ever run away,"
To walk away and let him win,
Would surely be an awful sin.

It sounds like fun, I think I will,
Fight until I've had my fill.
Fighting together is no crime,
We seem to do it all the time.

Fight-one-two-It's really great,
Fighting with love instead of hate.
Hey, I'm beginning to get the beat,
It's not such a remarkable feat.

Fight - three - four - It feels so good,
To fight the way I never could.
Finding such sweet delight,
Arguing each and every night.

Fight - five - six - still going strong,
Didn't believe I could last this long.
Never going to break or bend,
Fight it out to the bitter end.

SAN ANSELMO — KAREN HUNTER

FREEDOM

Away from claims and trivia,
From the vortex of thought
Pull free. Live
In the silence
Of creativity.
Only aware of the within world.
The lotus of timeless
Individuality.
